Joint Chiefs Of Staff Oppose Part Of JFK Test Ban Plan

Bankers Ask For Tax Cut, High Interest

Action To Solve Persistent Drain Of Gold Supplies

WASHINGTON (AP)—The American Bankers Association recommended Saturday an income tax cut and higher interest rates as steps toward solving the persistent drain on U.S. gold supplies.

After a year's study by two committees, the association came up with recommendations which closely parallel the approach taken by the administration. But it also said President Kennedy should declare that the problem is being given the highest priority.

Dr. Charles E. Walker, executive vice president of the association, said, "We are commending a strengthening and enlargement, recognizing that the government has taken some action in practically all of these areas. The dedication of our treasury officials to the solution of this problem has been apparent. But the problem is so urgent that we are calling for the highest official reaffirmation of the executive branch of the government."

CURB FOREIGN AID

Reduced foreign aid and curtailed government spending were recommended.

A statement by the committee, and Walker, took a complimentary tone toward Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

However, Walker, in answer to a question at a news conference, said "the total administration has to be dedicated to solve this problem."

The deficit in the international balance of payments—the net outflow of dollars to foreign countries—has persisted for 12 of the last 13 years and has resulted in a reduction in the nation's gold stocks from about $22 billion to $13.7 billion. The deficit rose to $3.9 billion in 1960, and then declined until it reached $2.2 billion last year, but the trend was reversed in the first quarter of this year as it reached an annual rate of $3.2 billion.

Negro Would Benefit From Cut Of Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla., said Saturday that a tax cut that would spur the economy would be more beneficial to Negroes than congressional passage of civil rights legislation.

Smathers, a member of the Senate Finance Committee and a close personal friend of President Kennedy, said on a taped television-radio program he will filibuster against the administration's civil rights proposals although he could support five out of seven of them.

But he said it would be tragic if this controversy prevents Congress from acting on a tax reduction.

The House Ways and Means Committee has not yet completed action on such a measure. The Senate Finance Committee will not begin hearings until after the House has passed a bill. These hearings could be halted by a Senate filibuster.

Smathers acknowledged that the expected Southern filibuster will fail unless the Dixie group gets some Republican help.

Another prospective Southern filibusterer, Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., said in a statement he might offer a proposal calling for a national referendum on the President's civil rights proposal. He conceded, however, "I don't think there is much chance of getting it."

Long struck particularly at the proposed withholding of federal funds from states discriminating against Negroes and at the proposed granting to Negroes of equal access to privately operated business.

U.S. Launches 100th Satellite

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE Calif. (AP) — An Agena satellite vehicle fired Friday was the 100th launched from this West coast space and missile site the Air Force said Saturday.

It was the 78th to achieve orbit since the first launch Feb. 28, 1959, when the Agena became the world's first satellite placed in polar orbit, the Air Force said.

BILATERAL AGREEMENT

A-Weapons Deal By U.S., Canada Near Completion

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—The United States and Canada have worked out most of the details of a nuclear weapons deal which was a key item in talks here last May between President Kennedy and Canadian Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson.

The bilateral agreement, it was learned Saturday, will be announced — probably within a month — in a exchange of notes between the two governments.

ACCOMPLISHMENTS

An agreement in principle that Canada would accept American-made nuclear warheads for continental defense missiles was a major accomplishment of the Kennedy-Pearson talks at this Cape Cod resort two months ago.

It came on the heels of a Canadian election campaign in which a major issue was the refusal of Pearson's predecessor, John G. Diefenbaker, to accept the nuclear explosives despite an earlier agreement to do so.

It was understood that one question remains to be answered before the formal exchange of notes. This involved a decision on whether the nuclear warheads for Bomarc missiles and possibly other weapons will be cared for by Canadian personnel working under American supervision or whether American troops on Canadian soil will have full responsibility.

Because, according to usually reliable sources, Kennedy is anxious to accord Canada as full a nuclear partnership in continental defense as would be possible under American law, it seemed likely that Canadians would be given some custodial responsibilities for the warheads.

IN BRITISH MEET

Pennel Regains Vaulting Record

LONDON (AP) — John Pennel of Miami, Fla., sent the world pole-vaulting mark soaring to new heights Saturday when he cleared 16 feet, 8 3/4 inches—highest any man has vaulted outdoors — in the British Track and Field Championships at White City Stadium.

Tuning up for America's impending dual meet with the Soviet Union later this month, the 22-year-old graduate of Northeast Louisiana State College soared over the bar at the record height on his first attempt—and left the arena not knowing exactly how well he had done.

He made a couple of tries at the bar at 17 feet and ¼ inch, but failed.

17 COMING

"That 17-foot jump is going to come," he said, as he packed up his gear and started back to the hotel. He thought he had vaulted 16 feet, 8½ inches.

The confusion came in the translation of the height from meters to feet and inches. The bar was set at 5.098 meters and the announcer at the meet bellowed over the loud speaker system that the leap was 16 feet, 8½ inches, or 5.092 meters.

Later the bar was re-measured and found to be .006 meters higher than originally thought.

Boy, 7, Is Among Week's Winners

A seven - year - old boy who will be in the second grade at Drew School in the fall, won first place $5 award in Class C scenics and table tops in the second week of the Morning World and News-Star Photo Contest.

The prize winning photograph taken by Frederick Lowery, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Lowery, Route One, Box 170, West Monroe, was a view of the lagoon at Bernstein Park, with a fountain in the background and a graceful swan swimming in the water. The photo was made with a small camera he received for his birthday in May.

CAMERA STUDY

A 35 MM camera study of her small daughter wearing a cute bonnet, mother's shoes, carrying a purse, flashing a cheerful expression and waving, won first place in Class A, babies and children, for Mrs. James E. Murphy II, 208 Garden Drive, Monroe.

The picture entitled, "Carla Plays Ladies," caught Carla Marie, then 17 months old, playing a favorite game, her mother said.

"She had done that since she was a small baby, climbing into shoes and grabbing hats and purses," said her mother. "It wasn't posed."

First place photo in Class B, teenager and adult activities, was submitted by Bruce Kolb, 2109 Mike St., Winnsboro. Featured in it were a teenage boy and girl on the sidelines at a reception chatting.

A 19-year-old student at Northeast State College, Miss Judy Breland, 1505 South 10th St., captured first prize in Class D, pets and animals with a study of a goose standing in shallow water at Bernstein Park as if posing for the photographer. Miss Breland is the daughter of Mrs. Verniece Breland.

Two of the other prize winners in second week competition were

Reds Peace, War Views Still Differ

Russians Stop Short Of Open Break In Talks

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Communist party declared today the Russian and Chinese views on war and peace remain diametrically opposed. The Russians charged that Chinese representatives are aggravating Soviet-Chinese differences at their current peace talks in Moscow.

In a sweeping indictment of Red China's policies in Communist and world affairs, the Soviet party also accused Peking of trying to worsen U.S.-Soviet relations and heat up the cold war.

The Russians stopped short, however, of an open break with the Chinese, indicating the Kremlin would wait for Red China to make any such move.

"The immediate future," the Soviet statement declared, "will show if the Chinese comrades agree to build our relations on the basis of what unites and not disunites us."

DOOR OPEN

Red China declared Saturday it did not want a break with Moscow, and held open the door for a resumption of talks if the present ones fail.

The Soviet party Central Committee berated the Communist Chinese leadership in a 35,000-word open letter addressed to "all the Communist parties" of the world. It was published in today's issue of the Soviet party newspaper Pravda, taking up more than four full pages, and was distributed by the Soviet news agency Tass.

The statement was issued a few hours after Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan, often the Kremlin's chief troubleshooter, took a hand in the faltering talks.

Mikoyan's role in Saturday's session was not known, but there was speculation he might have been seeking a face-saving way to break off the talks with the Chinese before the Russians sit down Monday with U.S. and British representatives to discuss a nuclear test-ban treaty.

Red China meanwhile accused the United States of making every effort to disrupt the Soviet-Chinese talks and said Washington is counting on a Moscow-Peking split.

Reds Threaten To Defend Cuba If U.S. Invades

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Communist party Saturday threatened to defend Cuba with rockets launched from Soviet territory if the United States invades that Communist Caribbean Island.

The statement refuted a Chinese accusation of Soviet cowardice in pulling the missiles out of Cuba last October and was part of a 25,000-word open letter published in the today's edition of the party newspaper Pravda.

In defending the Soviet position, the Soviet statement declared "if United States imperialists violate their promise and invade Cuba's territory, we will come to the aid of the Cuban people.

"Every sensible man will understand that in case of an invasion by the American imperialists we shall aid the Cuban people from Soviet territory, just as we would have helped them from Cuba's territory.

At the same time, the Soviet Central Committee said the Soviet Union will never be the first to use a nuclear weapon "unless we are attacked."

This was the first Soviet pledge of rocket support for Cuba since last fall when the Russians promised to pull their missiles out.

It was the strongest statement the Soviets have made in repeated declarations of support for Cuba in recent months.

Marchers Will Defy Militia Law

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Negro leaders in Cambridge, Md., announced Saturday night that they will resume street marches Monday in an effort to break down racial barriers.

Such demonstrations would be in defiance of militia law edicts enforced by National Guardsmen patrolling the troubled Eastern Shore town.

"Our people are restless," said a statement issued by the Cambridge Nonviolent Action Committee. "They want their freedom."

In Savannah, Ga., police headed off a march on the downtown section by about 100 white segregationists.

The march started after a rally in a baseball park, called by the Cavalcade of White Americans. Policemen stopped the march within three blocks of the park and the demonstrators dispersed.

At the rally, Henry S. Brooks, who heads the organization, urged a white boycott of downtown store and called for volunteer pickets. He said that clergymen who appealed for peace and order and biracial negotiations were "sneaky and underhanded."

Savannah has been the scene of racial violence during the past week. National Guardsmen, alerted by the governor, stood ready to move if needed.

More Of Same Predicted Here

The weatherman apparently reused Saturday's pattern to make the weather forecast today as he calls for partly cloudy and warm through tonight with a hint of afternoon showers.

WARM

High today is predicted at 87 - 94 degrees to compare with Saturday's peak reading of 92. Low is set at 70 - 74 degrees. The thermometer's low Saturday was 72 degrees.

Southerly and southwesterly winds of 5 to 10 miles per hour will blow through the area. Outlook Monday calls for little change.

MISSING SINCE THURSDAY

3 Youths Found Alive In Mine

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Three teen-age boys, crawling some 2,000 feet to safety, were rescued from an abandoned coal mine Saturday. They had been missing since Thursday.

The boys were rushed to St. Clair Memorial Hospital where the father of one said:

"They all looked bad-drawn, worn out and dirty. But they're in good shape."

Robert Abbott, 15, and Danny O'Kain and Billy Burke, both 13, were led out of the mine within 2½ hours after they were discovered.

A hospital spokesman said Abbott and O'Kain were in good condition, while Burke was satisfactory. All were admitted for observation.

FIRECRACKERS

Inspector Everett Turner of the U.S. Bureau of Mines credited the discovery of a firecracker with leading rescurers to the boys in the mine containing lethal gas.

"About two hours before we found them," Turner said, "we had indications they were in the mine. Jennings Breedon and Jim Hutchens found a firecracker. They reported to me and I went

200-POUNDER

Cutie Pie Is Ham Of Many Moods

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Cutie Pie is a ham and 200 pounds of many moods.

Sometimes she sits in her house and chews on an old shoe, sometimes she boxes with a dog. Sometimes, for a handout, she'll jump up on her house and do the twist.

"I think she's kind of like a person. You treat her right and she treats you right," said Mrs. Leona Britt in describing her 14-month-old Canadian black bear.

The twist? Mrs. Britt said the bear probably learned that from her 19 - year - old grandson.

Cutie Pie once had the run of the Britt household. Then she began upsetting furniture. Three months ago she tore down a screen door. Her home is now her backyard house to which she is chained.

Mrs. Britt learned last year she could satisfy a childhood desire and obtain a bear through a pet shop for $115.

On Easter 1962 she got an 8-week-old cub, Cutie Pie.

"She was tame from the beginning. I used to walk her on a chain. One time she even got into a car with two policemen," said Mrs. Britt.

Cutie Pie is particular about her food; she wants nothing raw. Her favorites: cooked chicken and beef.

"I still take her for an occasional walk for exercise around the block," said Mrs. Britt. "She draws a crowd, like a circus, wherever we go."

'Consensus' Paper Sent To Subgroup

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, have gone on record opposing some of the terms of President Kennedy's current proposals for an agreement with Russia to ban nuclear weapons tests, informed sources said Saturday.

Their so-called "consensus" paper was presented more than two weeks ago to the Senate preparedness subcommittee headed by Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss.

By accident or design, existence of the document came to light Saturday on the eve of new Moscow test ban talks involving the U.S., Britain and the Soviet Union. First report of the position paper was carried by the Scripps-Howard newspapers.

CLOSED HEARING

The subcommittee has been conducting closed-door hearings on disarmament policy highlighting the proposed test ban. Two of the chiefs—Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, Air Force chief of staff, and Adm. George W. Anderson, outgoing chief of naval operatins, have already testified.

It was Anderson, according to informed sources, who began the chiefs' presentation by giving the unanimous view that a test ban, as now proposed, would not serve the national interest. The other chiefs—Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, Army chief of staff, and Joint Chiefs Chairman, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, are still to present their views in personal testimony.

Actually the views of LeMay, Anderson and Wheeler against ending weapons tests were set forth rather specifically earlier this year in annual hearings on

West Leaders To Learn How Soviet Stands

The situation now developing is potentially one of the most important to arise in the cold war in several years. It could lead into a complete and final split between Moscow and Peking. And it could begin a new period of easier relations between Russia and the West.

Western experts are not betting firmly on this outcome yet. Russia might break with Red China without becoming particularly friendly with the United States. The present Moscow-Peking quarrel could conceivably be patched up, although the best informed Westerners think it has already passed the point of no return.

But the possibilities of change are considered great.

What is a fact at the moment is that peace talks between Soviet and Chinese delegations, which began here eight days ago, are failing. This was disclosed by Red China in a newspaper blast at Russia Saturday. In the official People's Daily, Red China asked whether, since Russia would not come to terms in the peace conference, it was trying to push Chinese-Soviet relations to the brink of rupture.

MILAN, Italy (UPI) — United Nations Secretary-General Thant said Saturday he has drawn "great inspiration" from a speech by Pope Paul VI expressing support for the world organization's policies.

Speaking in Turin a few hours before leaving here by plane for New York at the end of his three-day visit to Italy, Thant said the Pontiff's speech Thursday was "of great inspiration not only for myself in my mission, but for all those who . . . wish to avert a repetition of the tragedies of war."

South's Civil Rights Forces Gather

EDITOR'S NOTE: Congress moving into what some predict will be the bitterest legislative flight of the century — the struggle over civil rights. Providing the main opposition will be the grimly determined Southern bloc in the Senate. The following dispatch deals with the men who make up the bloc and their probable strategy.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One by one they disappeared into the ornate, high-ceilinged room until the massive wooden door had opened and sighed shut 19 times.

They varied in appearance and manner. Some smiled. Others were solemn. Some hurried, their heels clicking hollowly in the long corridor. Others took their time.

But all of those gathered in secret conclave had just one aim and purpose — to destroy President Kennedy's civil rights program.

Grouped around a long conference table — in a scene which will be repeated many times as summer fades into fall — the 19 Senators from the South began to plan strategy for the roughest fight they have ever faced.

The Southern bloc represents the last hope of the segregationist South to block the sweeping civil rights legislation proposed by the President in the face of mounting demands by Negroes for equal rights.

DELAYS IN HOUSE

There will be delaying tactics in the House. And there will be some help from others in the Senate but the principal burden for blocking the bill — or at least modifying it — rests with this group of 19 determined men.

Their weapon is the filibuster. Split into teams, they can prevent a vote for days and weeks. Their full endurance has never been tested.

Who are the 19 men who pose the principal barrier to enactment of civil rights package sought by Kennedy?

Mostly they bear nationally-prominent names which are synonomous within the Senate. Securely entrenched in their posts through the one - party system prevalent in their states, they hold the chairmanships of 12 of the Senate's 19 committees.

STRETCH ACROSS SOUTH

Their home territory stretches from oil-rich Texas to the depressed areas of southwest Virginia and from the suburbs of the nation's capital to the playgrounds of Miami Beach.

The leader of the Southern bloc since 1944, Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., sought the Democratic presidential nomination in 1948 and again in 1952. But when the delegate votes were counted he remained basically a sectional candidate.

One member of the group overcame the sectional label in 1952. Sen. John J. Sparkman, D-Ala., a liberal by Southern standards and pretty much of an internationalist, won the Democratic vice presidential nomination but went down to defeat with Adlai E. Stevenson.

In 1948, four states gave their presidential electoral votes to Sen. J. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C. Again in 1960, a small group of unpledged electors backed Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

POSSIBLE MEMBER

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and a former professor, was mentioned for a while as a possible Secretary of State in the Kennedy cabinet. The post went to Dean Rusk.

And Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., a courtly former Circuit Court Judge, has been rumored frequently as a possible Supreme Court Justice if a conservative is appointed to the high bench.

Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla., Yankee-born and urbane, has never been enthusiastic about participating in a reputation-shattering talkathon. Smathers recently said he could vote for a ban on literacy tests and some other parts of the civil rights package but not the public accommodations section.

The only Republican in the group, and the latest addition at a time when the Southern bloc appears to be shrinking, is pint-sized John G. Tower of Texas.

JOINS SOUTHERN BLOC

Tower, an arch-conservative, has indicated he will go all the way with the Southern bloc. So will these others:

Sen. A. Willis Robertson, D-Va., chairman of the Banking Committee and every bit as conservative as Tower.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., considered the group's outstanding constitutional lawyer.

Sen. B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C., a less well-known member of the group.

Sen. Olin D. Johnston, D-S.C., chairman of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee who is considered an administration back.

HONOR KING

MANILA (UPI) — Thailand's jazz saxophone playing King Adulyadej Bhumibol was awarded an honorary doctorate Saturday by the University of the Philippines. The King composed song for his Philippines visit entitled "When."

Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., son of an apostle of white supremacy, might share his father's views but is much more restrained.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., chairman of the Agriculture Committee, who was barred from four African countries last year because he said Africans were not ready to govern themselves.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., son of the late Huey "Kingfish" Long, was elected to the Senate one day before his 30th birthday and now is second-ranked on the Finance Committee with more than 14 years of Senate service.

Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., has gained his reputation as a tough chairman of the Senate Rackets Committee.

Clergymen Set For Celebration

MOSCOW (AP) — Orthodox churchmen converged on Moscow Saturday for golden jubilee clebrations this week of Russian Orthodox Patriarch Alexei's ordination as a bishop.

The black-robed clergymen are expected to travel to the ancient monastery of Zagorsk, 50 miles north of Moscow, for religious services Wednesday marking the 50th anniversary.

Secretariat officials made no comment on the announcement that the Vatican had assigned two envoys to represent the Roman Catholic Church at the celebrations.

Alexei, 86 patriarch of Moscow and all the Russias, may have invited the Vatican officials as part of the Kremlin-approved search for limited cooperation with the Vatican in pushing the Soviets' current peaceful coexistence line.

The inspectors crawled some 2,000 feet to the boys, then had breathing apparatus brought to the trio.

Abbott told newsmen at the hospital their lights went out about five minutes after they entered the mine Thursday.

"It was dark in there," he said. "We recharged the batteries, but they finally went out. We were scared and nervous. We seemed to get further and further from the entrance."

Asked what had happened Abbott said: "We made the wrong turn. We got lost."

Before the discovery of the firecracker, officials felt the boys were not in the mine although the families of the three steadfastly maintained they were.

The search had to be suspended several times because of the black damp gas. Turner said rescuers actually came within 800 feet of the boys Thursday night but were forced back by the gas.

O'Kain explained that they had been in the mine before, "just a couple of days ago. I know I'll never go back."

Abbott said they never heard the rescuers until they were found. He said the time dragged, and they thought Saturday was Sunday.

Al O'Kain, father of Danny, explained why he felt the boys were in the mine.

"I thought I knew my kid pretty well," he said. "He told me he was an explorer and when he said he was going to do something, I just knew he was going to do it.

"The big thing was they stayed right together the whole time and didn't panic. They must've read something once before. Maybe Tom Sawyer."

GOT TIRED

T. J. McDonald assistant superintendent of the U.S. Bureau of Mines, said the boys "were just sitting around" when they were located.

"They couldn't do anything else. They had to get tired in the low percentage of oxygen."

McDonald said persons have been found alive before in similar situations.

However, he added: "When Mr. Turner called me, he was crying. Mr. Turner is my assistant, and I've never known him to be so emotional."

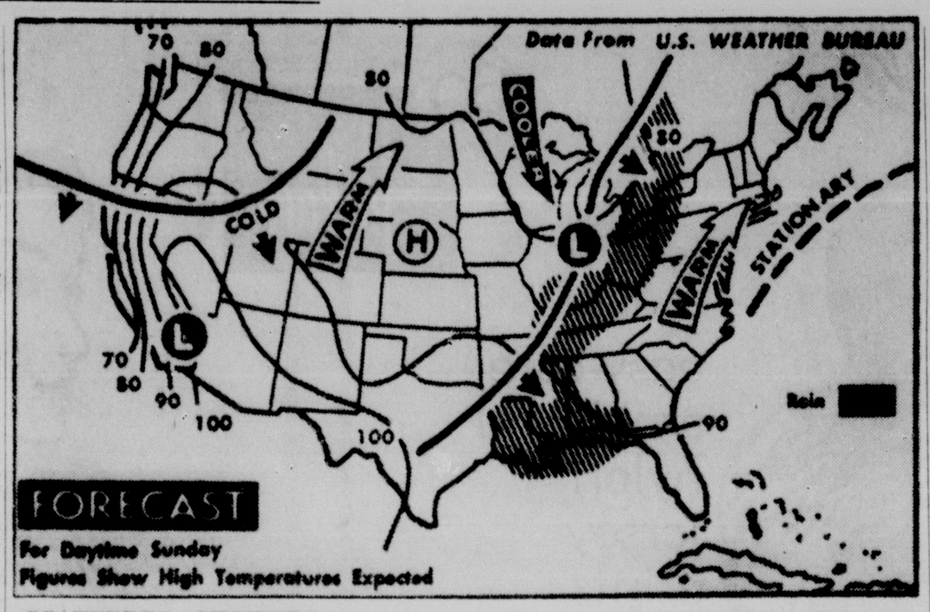
Turner himself said: "I was more excited than the kids were and so was Jim (Hutchens)."

Turner said one of the boys said, when found, "I've got a terrific headache. He quoted another as saying, "I think I've got pneumonia."

Breedon said he and three other rescuers got to within 500 feet of the boys Saturday when their safety lamps went out. They established a fresh-air base, and Turner and Hutchens went ahead with masks and found the boys.

The black damp gas at the spot where the boys huddled was relatively light, Breedon said.

Breedon and Turner returned to the fresh-air base and radioed for breathing apparatus for the boys. Meanwhile, several other rescuers went ahead to stay with the boys.



SCATTERED SHOWERS and occasional rain will occur today from the lower Great Lakes southward through the Ohio and Tennessee valley to the lower Mississippi valley, Gulf coast, portions of the south Atlantic coast states and over the higher elevations of the Rockies. It will be warmer and more humid along the Atlantic and Gulf coast states as well as over the northern Plains. It will be cooler over the upper Great Lakes region with no change in temperature elsewhere. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Boys Tell How They Got Lost

EDITOR'S NOTE — Three teenage boys were rescued from an abandoned coal mine in the Pittsburgh suburb of Castle Shannon Saturday after they had been missing for three days. Here is the story of their ordeal as told by two of the boys to The Associated Press.

By BOBBY ABBOTT
DANNY O'KAIN

PITTSBURGH (AP) — We made a wrong turn. We thought we'd just go to the bottom of the mine and look around. Billy Burke and I (Danny) had been there about six times before, but Bobby had been there only a couple times.

We had gone down just a couple days before but didn't go all the way back in. This time we did just for curiosity and found different passageways. We turned to the left.

After we got in there we couldn't find our way to go back. We seemed to get further from the entrance. That was about an hour after we went in. We got scared and hollered a little bit, but we stuck together.

Our bicycle light kept going out, and we had to recharge the battery. We got real scared in the dark, but we had light most of the while.

We walked around for a little bit, but Billy hurt his back. He said he couldn't move; that's why we sat down. We're worried about him. After a while we got pretty thirsty. And hungry. We didn't have anything with us, candy or anything.

We could hear the train and trolleys rumbling, but we couldn't hear any men. We thought they'd be looking for us, but we didn't know for sure. We prayed a lot and cried, too.

Then we heard the men and saw the lights of the miners. We thought this was Sunday.

We won't go back in there again. We had been told by our moms and dads not to go in before, but we did. It looked great when we started down there—but it doesn't now.

Boy, 7, Among Week's Winners

Richard G. Lowery, P. O. Box 42, Haile, La., won second place and three - dollars in Class B, teenager and adult activities, with a study in expression of a teenage girl, and two - dollar third place award in Class C, scenics and table tops, with a closeup view of dew flecked white roses. In the previous week his entries won second and third place awards in Class B.

Karen Marlowe of Mangham, who won first place in Class B in the intial week of the contest, had two winners in the second round. A photo of a fisherman wading in a stream and casting brought her third place in Class B, and a view of water cascading over rocks in an area stream earned her second place in Class C.

WINNERS

Other winners were:

In Class A-Second place, a picture of a blonde haired little girl trying to drink from a stream of water coming out of a garden hose, taken by C. W. Looney, Box 693, Baskin. Third place, photo by Shelby A. Morse Jr., 1305 Common, Winnsboro, showing a baby in kitchen sink with a gleeful expression, chewing on wash cloth. Class D, second place —Picture of black cat looking into fish bowl. Taken by Patricia Hodge, 3703 Lionel St., it was captioned: "Sandos' daily activity at fish bowl." Third place, pet coon and small dog, picture taken by Mrs. Billy Myers, Route one, Box 84, Oak Grove.

The babies and children category drew many more entries last week than any other class. Scenics and tabletops and animals and pets classes drew the fewest entries.

As in the first week of competition some of the photos submitted had good subject matter or composition but were too fuzzy or gray in tone to reproduce properly.

All photographs must be black and white, since there is no category for color prints. The competition is open to amateurs only, for photographs taken after July 1, 1962. Awards in the four categories will be given every week through the week of August 11. First prize brings $5, second $3, and third $2. No entries can be returned.

At the close of the contest a $5 grand prize will be given to the entry in each of the four categories chosen by the judges as the best entered in the contest.

These grand award winners will then be entered in the Newspaper National Snapshot Awards competition where they will compete with entries from other participating newspapers for cash prizes totaling a minimum of $31,-900.

Complete contest rules will be published frequently in the Morning World and News-Star.

Deadline for entries to be judged in the third week of competition is Thursday. Entries received after that time will be considered in the following week's judging.

There are many beautiful outdoors scenes, activities around the house, in the parks and in many other places that may result in prize winning photographs if they are captured on film.

The name and address of the photographer should be clearly labeled on the back of each print, as well as the class in which picture is being entered.

In taking pictures photographers should bear in mind this important stipulation in the rules which applies to local winners whose prints are entered in national competition following the local contest:

"If you snap a picture which you expect to enter in the contest and in which a person or persons appear, be sure to get their names and addresses. This is necessary because, before your picture can become eligible for entry in the Newspaper National Snapshots Awards, the written consent of such recognizable person or persons to the use of the picture for advertising purposes must be obtained."

'Consensus' Paper Sent To Subgroup

When the subcommittee later resumed its disarmament study, subcommittee members reported there was some reluctance on the part of the Pentagon's civilian high command to have the chiefs' views aired once again.

No report or screened transcript of the subcommittee's sessions has yet been issued. But two subcommittee members — Sens. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., and Stuart Symington, D-Mo. — were signers, along with armed services Chairman Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., of a letter earlier this year which told President Kennedy, in substance, that further concessions in test ban negotiations would be unacceptable.

The text of that letter has not been made public by the White House.

In the negotiations opening Monday, the United States and Britain are reported prepared to agree to a test ban treaty that prohibits all except underground tests. Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev has implied that some such proposal could provide a working basis.

The difference isn't hay

(It's extra dollars for you!)

8% interest per annum computed 12 times a year

Look at it this way: 8% is nearly 78% greater than 4½%. Or, figured in dollars, if your funds now earn $100 in annual interest, they could be earning $177.77 in interest at Affiliated Investment Corporation. Big difference, isn't it?

And, Affiliated's big 8% annual interest rate works just as well, percentage wise, for small investors as it does for larger accounts. Interest is computed and paid 12 times a year — on the first of each month.

Earnings aren't everything, of course. You must consider the Company you're doing business with. Affiliated, since its inception, has had a perfect record of interest payments to its investors and requests for funds have always been met immediately.

Why not open (or add to) your Affiliated Investment Corporation Investment account now? If you prefer, invest by mail; we pay postage both ways. Funds placed by the 15th* of any month earn from the 1st. If you want to increase your Investment income, earn that big 8% at Affiliated. It isn't hay.

Cutting Horse Show Slated Today

Staff Writer

Some shrewd horse sense, skilled riding, and fast action, will be pitted against cattle that don't like to be corralled, in a Cutting Horse Show 2:30 p.m. today at Sherrouse Stables, 4500 DeSiard Road.

The show, to be held by the Northeast Louisiana Cutting Horse Association, has the approval of the National Cutting Horse Association, and points of winning horses will be accepted for record by that organization.

Prizes will be awarded in all classes of competition, and there will be no admission charge for persons wishing to watch the event, according to John Sherrouse Jr., owner of the stables, who has nine registered quarter-horses.

DAILY ACTIVITY

At the Sherrouse stables there has been a daily surge of activity in preparation for the big show, the first to be held there. Two of Sherrouse's daughters, Ann, 12, and Jane, 14, will be riding quarter horses in the event.

Workouts, with trainer Gary Mitchell, start early at the stables' cutting pen. First session every day starts at 5:30 a.m. in the cool of the morning, and lasts until around 8 a.m. This is followed by an animal grooming period. The second workout for horses and riders starts around 6:30 p.m. and runs until 7 or 7:30 p.m.

Considering the constant training routine necessary to prepare a cutting horse for competition and to keep him in shape, similar scenes probably were enacted all over the northeast district during the past week.

A large entry turnout is expected at the show, and Sherrouse estimates that about 48 head of cattle will be used.

Cash prizes will be awarded to winners in all classes, including Novice, A and AA also, a jackpot of $100 will be added to the open class in addition $10 jackpot per entry, and $75 will be added to the $400 Novice class in addition to $10 per entry jackpot.

The $400 Novice Class is open to horses that have not won over $400 in their lifetimes. Mitchell explained that to be eligible for trophies, in addition to cash awards, the entry must have taken part in at least three monthly cutting shows sponsored by the Northeast Association.

Trophies are given in all classes except the two approved by the National Cutting Horse Association, and on these the points for association registered animals are forwarded for record to the credit of the winning horses. At the end of the year these are totalled to determine national champions in various classes.

Judge for today's event will be P. O. Clarke of McDade, La.

Sherrouse, who has had registered Quarter Horses for about one and one - half years, said two of his horses are being trained for cutting and one is being trained for pole bending and barrel racing competition.

In a cutting horse performance, explained Trainer Mitchell explained, the horse works for 2½ minutes to cut a cow from the herd.

"The idea is that the horse does all of the work," he continued. "When the rider determines the cow he wants, the horse is on his own. There is no reigning, and the best practice is to figure on doing it without spurring."

He said some judges will allow spurring between the girths, and some will not.

BEST TRAINING

He advised that it is best to start training a horse when it is young, between the ages of 2½ and 3 years. The animal has to be riden daily, "and it is best to try not to overwork it with cattle because it might sour on this type of work."

"Quarter Horses are born with cow sense and practice makes perfect," he said. "To say that a cutting horse is trained thoroughly it would take three to four years of training. I'd say that the average Quarter Horse could cut until it is 18 years old. But usually around 15 to 18 years they start backing out on you."

The horses being trained at the Sherrouse stables range in age from three to six to 10 years, and include two geldings and one stallion.

Sherrouse explained his reasons for starting a stables of horses: "I had ridden way back 15 or 20 years ago, and decided to take it up again as a family project."

The other two daughters enjoy competitive riding, which is not an easy sport. It takes plenty of practice to be able to stay in the saddle properly when the horses turn and shift suddenly to head off an animal.

Ann said, "I'm impressed with the power of the horse and the way he can turn."

Said Jane, "You can let the horse have his head and he's doing most of the work."

In her first ride on a cutting horse Jane was caught unawares by a sudden shift of the animal, turned a complete flip forward and landed in a sitting position.

"She just got up and got back on as if nothing had happened," said her father.

"Everybody has some bad moments when he first starts out," added Trainer Mitchell.

The Sherrouse stables facilities are spacious. In addition to quarters for horses and pasture, there is a cutting pen which is about 90 by 125 feet, and an exercise pen measuring about 125 feet by 150 feet. In the latter pen barrel racing and pole bending activities are held.

In the regular weekly schedule of events there is a cutting horse workout held every Wednesday starting around 7:30 p.m. or 8 p.m. at the Sherrouse Stables. It was not held this past week, however, because of the heavy workout schedule already being followed.

There is a Northeast Louisiana Cutting Horse Association show held every month at the stables of some member, but all of the shows are not approved by the National Association for record purposes.

Two-Car Crash Injures Seven

GALLATIN, Tenn. (UPI) — A two-car collision seven miles north of Gallatin left at least seven persons injured Saturday, trooper Joe L. Blankenship of the Highway Patrol reported.

The two cars hit nearly head-on and one of them caught fire, the trooper said. Blankenship said the persons in the flaming car were fortunate to get out without being burned. He said a number of spectators from a nearby country store helped those in the burning car escape.

Four persons were hospitalized at Highland Hospital and at least three others were sent to Sumner County Hospital, Blankenship said.

HANDCUFFED THREE TIMES

SWINDON, England (UPI) — Laborer Patrick Jordan was fined $14 Saturday for being drunk after police testified three sets of handcuffs were needed to get him into a cell. One set was used to shackle his wrists and the other two were used to handcuff him to police officers, testimony said.

Police Decline Comment About Racial Arrests

HUMBOLDT, Tenn. (UPI) — Local officials declined comment Saturday on reports that several Negroes were arrested here Friday during an attempt to desegregate a municipal park.

Unofficial sources said about 35 Negroes, mostly in their teens, showed up at the park Friday afternoon and were arrested after they sat down at picnic tables and used playground facilities. They were asked by police to leave and were arrested when they refused.

The adults were taken to the county jail at Trenton to face charges of disorderly conduct and threatened breach of the peace and the juveniles were held here pending a hearing before a juvenile court judge.

The demonstrators were reported to have been led by the Rev. J. T. Freeman, president of the Gibson County NAACP branch.

KREMLIN TROUBLESHOOTER

Mikoyan Had Say In Chinese Talks

MOSCOW (AP)—Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan, often the Kremlin's chief troubleshooter, took a hand Saturday in the faltering unity talks with the Red Chinese.

Mikoyan's role in the session—believed to be one of the last—was not known. But Mikoyan plays a dual role in the Kremlin of having a large hand in saying where Soviet money is spent abroad and—as in the case of Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro last December—soothing irate feelings.

Up to now Mikhail A. Suslov, an expert in Communist party ideology, has been the chief Soviet negotiator..

It was possible Mikoyan went to the meeting at the request of Khrushchev for a fresh look at the bogged down negotiations on whether Khrushchev's policy of peaceful coexistence or Peking's stand for violent revolutions is communism's best route for world domination.

But it was also possible that Mikoyan went there to answer in a new manner the charge published in the Peoples Daily in Peking accusing the Soviet negotiators of raising new obstacles to agreement.

The paper charged that the Russians are "inflaming feeling against China.

"Seeing this, people are fully justified in worrying whether the Central Committee of the Communist party of the Soviet Union wants to push Chinese-Soviet relations to the brink of rupture," it added.

As usual, there was no official comment from either side here. After a morning recess, the Russian and Chinese delegates drove into the big reception hall on the hill above the city where the meetings have been held irregularly since July 5. They met for about three hours then broke up.

Reliable sources said that on the Russian side there was the gloomiest sort of atmosphere as the conversations entered their second week.

Kerdish Rebels Resist Iraq

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Despite Iraq's claims of smashing victories, the Kurdish rebels seem to be putting up stiff resistance against the Iraqi army in their war for self-rule.

Baghdad radio's latest claim, made as the offensive against the Kurdish tribes in northern Iraq went into its second month, said

NEWS ANALYSIS

400 rebels were killed when army troops stormed strongholds on Heibet Sultan Mountain a few miles from the border of Iran.

Interior Minister Hazem Jawad claimed the resistance of Mullah Mustafa Barzani, the Russian-trained leader who has led the Kurds through more than 18 months of guerrilla warfare, was completely crushed.

There were indications, however, that Jawad's claim was more hopeful than factual.

On half a dozen previous occasions, government officials and army officers have proclaimed over Baghdad radio that the war was merely a mop-up operation. But the fighting goes on.

When the government launched its offensive June 10 with three Soviet-equipped divisions — more than half the Iraqi army, backed by air force bombers, National Guardsmen and some progovernment Kurdish tribes—it called on troops to wipe out the rebels in a matter of days.

The government also announced that rebels who surrendered by June 15 would be granted amnesty. So far the government has extended the amnesty four times, and the current deadline is July 30.

The Soviet Union has claimed the fighting threatens its southern frontiers.

It accused Iran, Turkey, and Syria of intervening in support of Iraq. Moscow warned ambassadors from the four countries Tuesday of dangerous consequences.

On Wednesday the Russians threatened to demand a meeting of the U.N. Security Council on the Kurdish question. On Thursday they charged Iraq with a criminal policy of genocide to exterminate the whole Kurdish population.

In the firts days of the campaign, Iraq government victories were quick and easy. They were shelling and razing villages in the flatlands while the Kurdish fighting men waited in the mountains. Now the battle has moved deep into the remote northern mountains where the Kurds have fought tribal war for centuries.

The government has admitted only light casualties.

Jury Recommends 20-Year Sentence

BIRMINGHAM (UPI) — A jury has recommended 20 years imprisonment for Donald Searcy, found guilty Friday in the pistol slaying of his wife's alleged paramour.

Circuit Judge Wallace Gibson postponed sentencing until Monday so defense attorneys would have time to consider filing a motion for an appeal.

Searcy, 41, of Birmingham, was on trial for first degree murder in the death of Edward Robert Goss on Sept. 21.

The jury found him guilty of second degree murder after deliberating more than six hours.

Reunion Set For Sunday In West Monroe

Some 85 persons are expected to be present at the Lenard Family reunion slated next Sunday in West Monroe on the old Henry Lenard place on Tony Bayou Road from 10 a.m. — 3 p.m.

Spokesman for the family, Lloyd Lenard, of Shreveport, said a couple of calves will be barbecued to insure "good eating," and everyone coming should bring along his favorite dish for the "trimmings."

Members of the Lenard family expected to be present stem from the W. W. Lenard - Nan Jenkins Lenard union and will be descendants of their 10 children. Those children include Mary, Albert, Henry, J. E., Allen, Lizzie, Dyke, Pankey, Louise and Minnie Lenard. The descendants of these children reportedly encompasses more than 130 persons, but all will not be able to attend the old fashioned get together.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY BOARD members and representatives from the Circle K Club at Northeast Louisiana State College view the collection of dolls donated to the museum. Most of the dolls are pure china and some are over 100 years old. All the dolls have their original clothing. Pictured left to right are Otis Johnson, OVHS board member; Jim Newburn, first vice president of the society; Prof. Edward Whatley of Northeast, board member; Julia Ann Wilhite, Miss Northeast and Circle K Sweetheart; Bob Ford, Circle K president; and Ron Weir, treasurer. Members of Circle K, an honorary service organization, helped move the relics to the new museum.

Open House At Museum Today

"M-Day is here. Open house will be held from 1-4 p.m. today at the Ouachita Valley Historical Society's newly - established museum. The public is invited to come and view the Louisiana relics at no charge.

Coffee and flowers will be provided by members of the Fifth District Federated Women's Club.

The historical society has spent all the past week moving relics to the museum, which is housed in the old parish health unit building at 129 St. John St.

After today, the museum will be open from noon to 4 p.m. every day except Monday, staffed by two volunteer OVHS members. Admission charges for non-members will be 25 cents for adults and 15 cents for students.

The group's charter will be held open through 4 p.m. today. Anyone joining before that deadline is still able to become a charter member of the OVHS.

A general meeting is planned for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, July 23 at the Frances Hotel, with all members and interested persons urged to attend.

The Ouachita Valley Genealogical Society donated its entire collection of artifacts formerly on display at Northeast State College. Members of Northeast's Circle K Club, under Prof. Larry Smith, sponsor, assisted in the move and will continue to aid OVHS.

Mrs. George Forman, president of the Federated Women's Club, will serve at the coffee table, assisted by Mrs. Elizabeth Manheim and Mrs. John Tolar, of the Monroe Garden Club, who furnished the arrangement.

Officials of the society reported that they wished to express their appreciation to the many people who assisted the formation and opening of the museum.

Although various other organizations have been working for years to establish a museum in the Twin Cities, this is the first time north Louisiana relics have an official home of their own.

Items in the museum were used by the early settlers of Louisiana and represent the history of this area. The history of each item has been traced and is displayed with the relic.

Included in the displays are pictures of old Monroe landmarks, coins, clothing, books and newspapers, furniture, glassware and pottery, an old muzzle - loading shotgun, one of the first typewriters, and a collection of antique dolls.

The Ouachita Valley Historical Society was organized on May 23 for the sole purpose of establishing a museum in Monroe to serve the north Louisiana area.

The City of Monroe donated the old health unit building to the society for a period of two years, provided OVHS met certain conditions as to opening, upkeep and safety.

Today is the climax of almost two months of organizational effort by members of the society plus many other local groups and individuals.

Scientist Probe Bees' Ability To Adjust 'Clocks'

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Scientists at Louisiana State University are studying the ability of drone honeybees to adjust their built in biological clocks to geographic change.

In the United States Department of Agriculture bee culture laboratory here, specialists are using drone honeybees from California and from the Baton Rouge area for comparative studies of the bees' innate response to changes in locale.

LSU said like all other living things, the honeybee's pattern of daily activity is influenced by the position of the rotating earth as it moves through the orbit around the sun.

The scientists at LSU are seeking answers to two questions.

Will the imported California drones adjust their time schedule in response to the change in their position on the earth's surface, and if they do, how long will it take them to switch over to the Louisiana time schedule?

Probe Is Started Into B47 Crash

MADRID (UPI)—The U.S. Air Force said Saturday a full-scale investigation was underway into the crash of a B47 jet bomber in which one man was killed and three seriously injured in northeastern Spain.

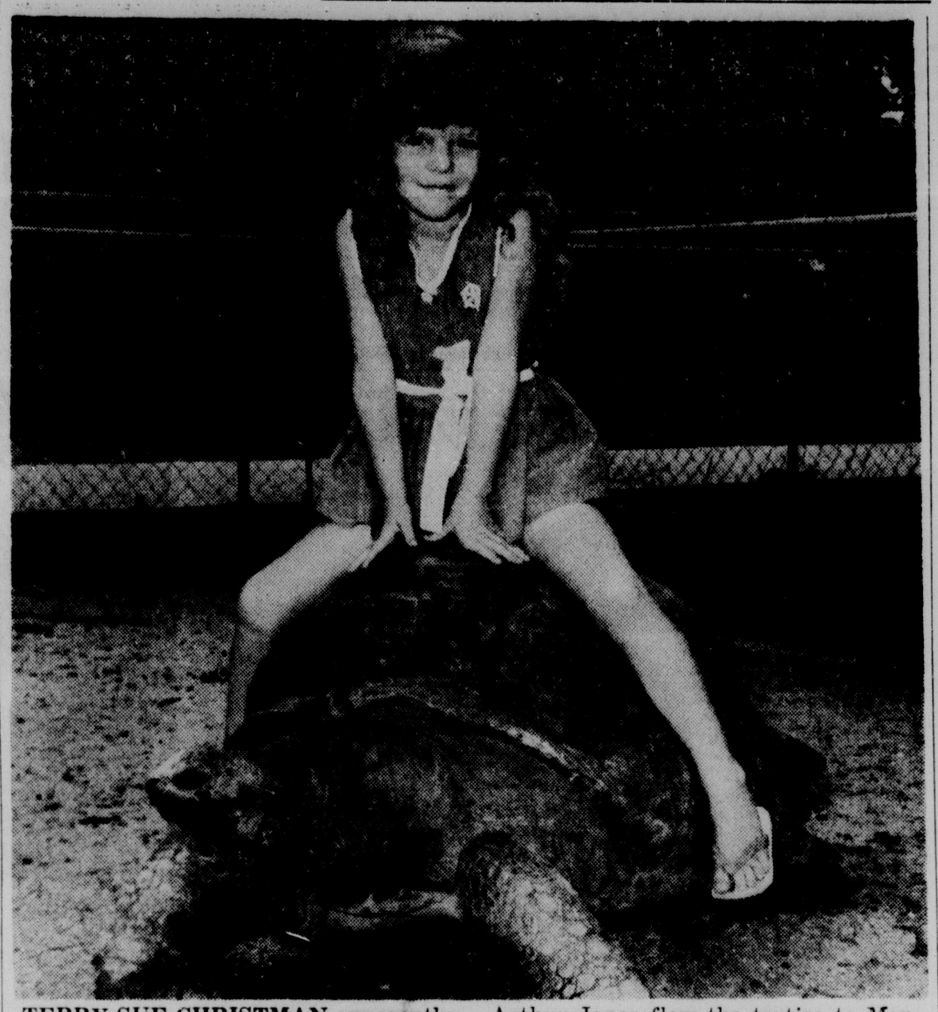
An Air Force spokesman identified the dead man as Capt. Benjamin A. Quam, the ship's navigator. The injured were the plane's commander Capt. P. E Hennings, co-pilot Capt. R. T. Beaham and S-Sgt. A. D. Meyer.

(The spokesman said information on the victim's hometowns was not available in Spain because the records of the crew were kept at Lincoln Air Force Base, Neb.)

The accident occurred early Friday when the bomber skidded sideways and burst into flame at the big Zaragoza Strategic Air Command base.

NO SMOKING PEASE

HIGH WYCOMBE, England (UPI)—The local swimming pool has a "no smoking" sign painted in six-inch letters at the bottom of the deep end.



TERRY SUE CHRISTMAN apparently is in no hurry as she rides newest addition at Bernstein Park Zoo, a 250-pound Aldabra tortise from island off East Africa. Terry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Wayne Christman of Monroe, is in no danger. The 38-inch long female tortise confines her diet to vegetables and fruit. Strictly a landlubber, she does not go near the water. Arthur Jones flew the tortise to Monroe last week and its new home is near the ostrich pen. If she lives out her expected life-span of 180 years, the 35 to 40-year-old tortise should be around for some time. She has a potential of weighing 400-pounds and could grow to the record length, 42 inches. (Staff Photo by Ben Bradford)

Tempers Get Shorter As TFX Probe Lengthens

WASHINGTON (AP)—Tempers apparently are getting shorter as the Senate investigation of the huge TFX warplane contract gets longer. The inquiry started Feb. 26 and the end is not in sight.

Transcripts of the latest testimony given behind the Senate Investigations subcommittee's closed doors showed some acid exchanges between Secretary of the Navy Fred Korth and his senatorial questioners.

At the start of the hearings, senatorial emphasis was on whether favoritism or improper political influences steered the job—ultimately to cost about $6.5 billion—to General Dynamics Corp., which has Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corp., as its chief subcontractor.

Of late, however, committee members have been stressing the question of judgment on the part of the civilian chiefs of the Pentagon in turning down the rival bidder, the Boeing Co.

Under the Defense Department's civilian-control set-up, there is no question as to the legal right of Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara to make the judgment. But the line of questioning in the hearings and public statements outside indicate a growing desire on the part of some members to discredit that judgment as much as possible.

The very suggestions of favoritism or poor judgment have drawn sparks from McNamara, Korth and other Defense Department chiefs.

Chairman John L. McClellan, D-Ark., and some of his subcommittee colleagues challenged sharply Korth's explanations of reasons why the Pentagon civilian executives overrode military evaluations that the Boeing design promised a better TFX at less cost. Korth insisted the uniformed military's evaluations were erroneous. The initials TFX stand for tactical fighter, experimental.

Most of the heated exchanges have been between McClellan and Korth in point-by-point challenge and defense of Korth's testimony that the General Dynamics-Grumman TFX would fly higher, faster, farther and have better combat maneuverability than Boeing's.

Sen. Karl E. Mundt, R-S.D., told Korth the award to General Dynamics—Grumman defies understanding "unless there is some reason that you wanted to favor General Dynamics."

Korth is being called back again Monday and there were indications he may remain on the witness stand through the following Friday.

Secretary of the Air Force Eugene M. Zuckert is to follow Korth to the stand with McNamara expected to be the wind-up witness for the department.

But Korth's testimony has raised some fresh points and it now seems likely that some of the pro-Boeing witnesses among the military brass will be recalled to answer points raised by Korth.

Bird Shot And Targets Fly At Gun Club Meets

Flying saucers are nothing unusual at the weekly meetings of the Pine Hills Gun Club near West Monroe. It takes many hundreds of the bright yellow clay targets to meet the needs during competitive shoots on the club's trap and skeet ranges. Here is a report on the activities and objectives of the organization.

Monroe Morning World
SUNDAY FEATURES
Monroe, La., July 14, 1963 1-B
Editorial — Spotlight — Sports

The shooting is lively almost any Sunday afternoon when the weather is favorable at the Pine Hills Gun Club's skeet and trap ranges in the pine hill section west of West Monroe.

Starting at 2 p.m. and continuing until waning daylight dims visibiiity, bright yellow clay saucers sail from the trap and skeet houses, and the calm of Bancroft Camp off of Puckett Road near Puckett Lake is punctuated often with the sounds of shotgun fire.

The club, which started almost four years ago, now has about 150 members in various sections of the district, and one, Charles Perrault, commutes from Natchez, Miss. to take part in some of the weekly events.

There are a number of good marksmen in the organization, which includes in its membership men, women and teenagers.

'CLAY PIGEONS'

The clay targets, sometimes called clay pigeons, shatter readily when struck by pellets. Immediately after a successful hit there is a sound somewhat like that of rain as myriad tiny clay fragments fall onto the green turf.

The gun club is headed by Dr. R. W. Dickenhorst of Monroe, president, who is considered among the best shots in the organization.

Trap field captain and vice president of the club is R. T. Lolley, West Monroe; Millard H. Williams, Monroe, is secretary; George Wiley, West Monroe, treasurer, and Hugh Spurlock, Monroe, is field captain for skeet.

This is the third gun club of this type to be organized over the years in the Monroe area according to Dr. Dickenhorst. The first one, he said, was formed in the 1930's, and carried on its activities at a location just off of Marie Place, before that area was built up.

For some time after that gun club went out of existence there was no successor. Then from 1948 to 1951 the second gun club was in operation at Selman Field.

FORMATION

The Pine Hills Gun Club was organized around 1959, with Dr. Dickenhorst, Derwood Cann and other lovers of the sport spearheading the founding group.

People from many different walks of life are among the members, and the main objectives are recreation and improvement of marksmanship. Skeet imposes a greater test on the skills of the marksman than does trap, although both call for skill, alertness and fast action.

Some members take part in only skeet or trap shooting, some take part in both. As Dr. Dickenhorst phrased it, "Some shoot trap, some skeet, and some old hardheads shoot both."

Both sports are full of surprises for those taking part.

On the trap field there is a trap house from which targets are hurled from an electrically activated spring mechanism. It is located 16 yards in front of the five stations from which participants shoot. In case of handicapping, marksmen are moved back the prescribed amount of yardage.

Five persons take their positions on the line and fire one at a time, rotating after all have fired in each round, until each has fired a total of 25 shots from the different positions.

SKEET STATIONS

In skeet, there are eight stations, causing participants to shoot from many angles, creating more nearly the conditions that might be encountered in firing at birds on the wing in the field.

Half the shots are fired at targets from the high house at one side of the field and the other half at targets coming from the low house at the opposite side.

MARVIN WILLIAMSON, Monroe, left, pushes button to release skeet target while Bruce Brooks Jr., 18, of West Monroe fires. Brooks recently won the Pine Hills Gun Club skeet championship.

Saucers are sprung from about 10 feet height when coming from the high house, and from about three feet elevation when coming from the low house. Sometimes the participant calls for a double and targets come from both houses at the same time, and there are many members who can shatter both.

Wade Pearson, club member from West Monroe, explained that to shoot the targets successfully, the marksman gets the one from the low house first, and then the one from the high position which will be airborne slightly longer.

When the person waiting for the target is ready to shoot he calls for the target. A member standing near him presses a button which releases the target from the trap or skeet house.

A few minutes of watching the target shooting operations of some of the club's top-notch marksmen can make a pretty vivid impression on a viewer.

SPECIAL SKILL

One marksman who seldom misses, loads his gun and fires with only one arm. And some members report that he exercises similar skill when hunting rabbits or quail.

In trap shooting most participants use 12 gauge shotguns, and in skeet they range from 12 to 410 gauges.

Earlier gun club ventures were stymied by lack of adequate facilities and proper means of preserving them from vandalism, said Dr. Dickenhorst.

Because of this problem there was some hesitancy on the part of sportsmen to attempt to organize another club.

"When we organized the club," said Dr. Dickenhorst, "Derwood Cann and I decided we would have to take the bull by the horns to get the club going, and this is the fruit of our efforts."

Said Dr. Dickenhorst, "Mr. Bancroft had a camp on Cheniere Lake which had a regulation trap setup there. He told us if we got the gun club organized he would give us without charge the regulation trap field and facilities. That got us off the ground.

Continuing he said, "We had close to 90 charter members, and we used the money they paid to join the club to get targets, shells, and build skeet field racks."

Sunday afternoon range activities are carried on about nine months out of the year, but are brought to a halt during the heart of the hunting season when many members are after live game.

SAFETY MEASURES

When shooting is in progress field captains keep the squads moving right, watch to see that safety rules are practiced, and help in instructing the novices.

"On matters of safety," said said Dr. Dickenhorst, "the field captain's word is final."

The club is a member of the National Amateur Trap Shooting Association and of the National Amateur Skeet Shooting Association. It holds regular spring and fall shoots at which trophies are awarded. And once a month there is a challenge trophy shoot in trap and skeet.

To make competition more even, the more skilled marksmen are given handicaps.

The club president explained, "In skeet the best marksmen are handicapped by two targets, and in trap according to yardage. We keep moving the best shots back.

A special annual event held by the club is the Buddy Shoot in which an adult teams up with a boy, 15 years of age or under, in trap shooting. The trophy for the event is donated by Ouachita Parish Sheriff Bailey Grant.

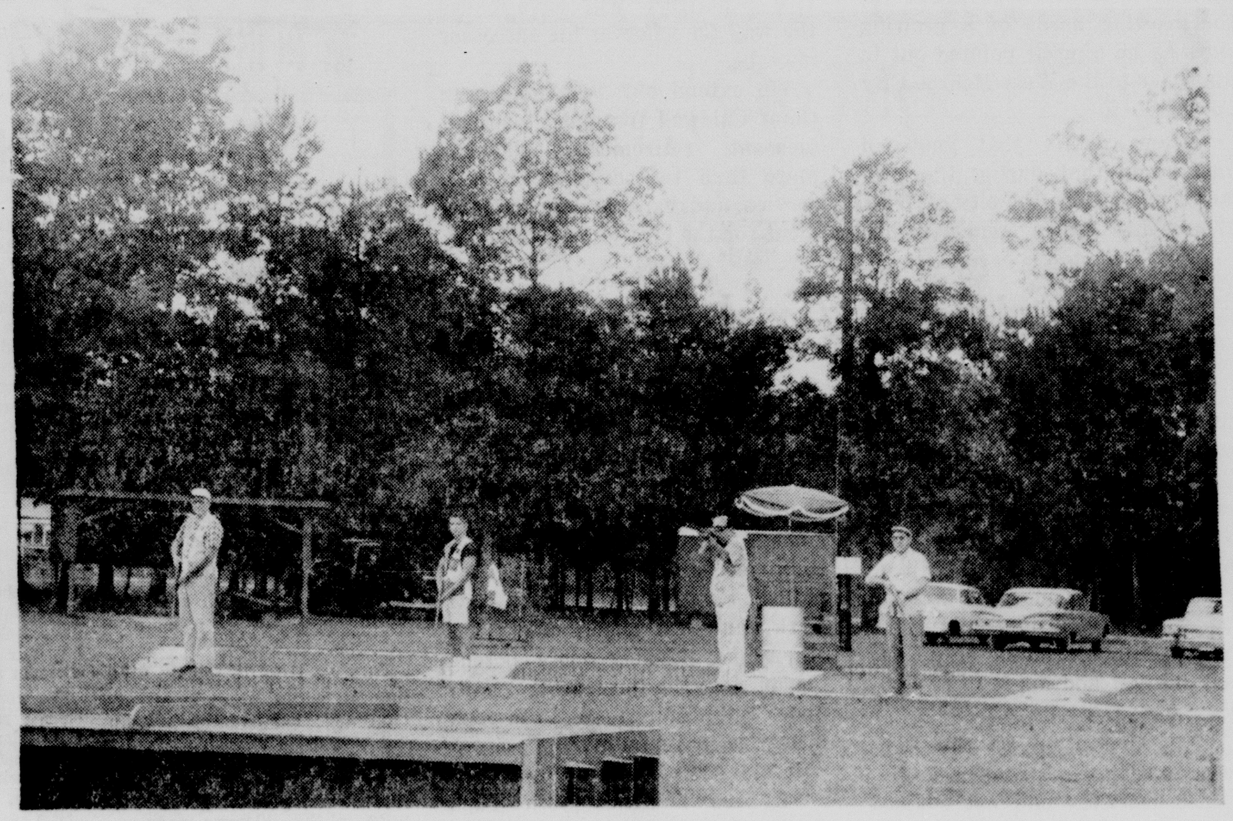
Dr. Dickenhorst said, "This creates good will among the adults and children and helps train youngsters in proper handling of a shot gun and just good all around sportsmanship."

The average member fires about 100 rounds or more at an afternoon shoot. At the weekly session there generally are members present from such places as Mer Rouge, Bastrop, Oak Grove, and Ruston, and sometimes as far away as Natchez, Miss., in addition to those from the Twin Cities area.

Stating the club's objectives, Dr. Dickenhorst said, "We're trying to build up the sport of shotgun shooting like trap and skeet. We are trying to teach people — children and others already experienced in trap shooting, more about proper handling and use of guns. We would like to make this sport a family affair."

In the monthly shoots a member must win a trophy three times in order to keep it permanently. To date only two have won permanent possession of a trophy in the monthly events.

All of the victories do not go to senior members. The most recent winner of the club's skeet shooting championship is 18-year-old Bruce Brooks Jr. of West Monroe.



IN THIS SCENE looking back from the trap house at the Pine Hills Gun Club range near West Monroe are members at shooting stations. They are, from left, R. T. Lolley, West Monroe, vice president of the club; Karl Pearson, West Monroe; Bert Williams, Monroe, and Charles Perrault, Natchez, Miss.

Congratulations, 'Chief'

The Morning World joins with a host of others in the Twin cities in congratulating West Monroe Police Chief Jeff W. Caldwell for a job well done. Chief Caldwell announced his resignation last week after having served his community faithfully and devotedly for the past 23 years. His retirement will become effective as of August 31.

Chief Caldwell's resignation was accepted "with sincere regret" at last Tuesday's meeting of the West Monroe City Council, with Mayor J. Allan Norris and the city's five aldermen present.

In August, 1940, when Caldwell was appointed to his post, West Monroe was a town of 8,560 population. During his 23 - year tenure of office, West Monroe has grown to a city of 15,250. Such growth has entailed a general expansion of all municipal agencies including the police force.

Chief Caldwell had both the experience and the foresight to maintain an adequate department for the growing needs of a growing city. As he himself pointed out in his letter to the West Monroe City Council:

"I am certain that you can understand that during the period of my service the city of West Monroe has grown from a rather small town to a city, and this growth, has of course, required the great enlargment of the department which I have headed and thereby greatly increased the strain of my personal work load in connection with the administration of the Police Department of West Monroe.

"Because I am now 67 years of age, and though I enjoy comparatively good health for a man of my age, my health is not such that it will enable me to continue to perform the rather pressing duties of chief of police for a much longer period of time . . . ."

Caldwell, is a native and lifelong resident of Ouachita Parish. He was appointed to head the West Monroe police force during the administration of Mayor Henry M. Williams and has served under four mayors.

While we may be certain that Chief Caldwell will be most sorely missed by those serving in his department, we are equally certain that a man of his administrative experience will have paved the way for whoever his successor may be.

We extend our best wishes to Chief Caldwell for many years of pleasant retirement following more than two decades of civic service and capable law enforcement for the city of West Monroe.

President And Pope

When President Kennedy made his trip to Europe, many of his top leftist lieutenants opposed it. They professed to think the trip was ill - timed and would be of little value then. In all probability, these men were giving their true opinions. This time the decision was made in an unusually tight circle, possibly including only Kennedy himself and his brother Bobby.

Public opposition by the Kennedy underlings probably was given because they had not advised the trip and did not like to see the president doing anything they had not advised. There is every reason to think the president was acting on his own — or almost on his own.

It is true that Kennedy went over at a time when Germany was about to change governments, when there were indications that England probably would do the same and when President Charles de Gaulle of France seemed in no mood for conciliation.

The president, nevertheless, had several good reasons for making the trip and he may not have wanted to confide them to the men who ordinarily advise him.

For one thing, at that time, he was badly in need of big public acclaim and applause from some source and he wasn't getting it in the United States. That was something he might not want to admit to anyone but Bobby. By going to Germany, he was practically sure of getting it, since the German people still have not recovered completely from the training they received under the late Adolf Hitler that anyone in power must be revered — and applauded.

Also, in Germany, Kennedy hoped to influence politics to some extent and to advance the cause of a more socialist - minded possible successor to Chancellor Conrad Adenauer. He had the same interest in some of the other countries he visited.

Insider's Newsletter, a New York analytical paper, offers another and possibly more potent reason for the president's visit, under the heading: "Will the pope intervene in Vietnam?"

It stated:

"At his audience with Pope Paul, President Kennedy may have asked the new pope to intercede with South Vietnam's Catholic President Diem to stop persecution of the Buddhists in his country.

"U.S. diplomatic informants say Vatican action would be hailed as a concrete example of Paul VI's declared intention of following John XXIII's spirit of good will toward other religions. Informants think the new pope, a highly experienced diplomat, is not unaware of the impact such an intervention would have. He is, on the record, not shy about intervening in domestic affairs of Catholic countries. Last year, while still archbishop of Milan, he sent a public telegram to France asking freedom for a group of students arrested for attacks on the regime."

The Newsletter further stated:

". . . Nobody in Washington expects Pope Paul to visit the U.S. until after the 1964 elections. But there is speculation if he does visit, it will be part of a round-the-world trip for the pontiff."

Hurting Other People

For many years, union bosses have expounded the theory that employers are the worst enemies of the workers and that they must be clubbed at every opportunity. As their power has grown, the union leaders have attempted to drive managements into intolerable positions, apparently never realizing that the prosperity of the workers depends on the prosperity of the employer.

Now there is some evidence that so - called liberals are beginning a principal third factor in disputes between labor and management.

Max Lener, writing in Look, said:

"Up to now, the American liberal has not questioned the moral right of a union to use whatever power it could muster to protect its men against the greater wealth and power of the corporations (a situation which no longer exists.) It has made sense to believe in unions because they have helped the worker to organize, to bargain collectively, to increase his wages and control job conditions.

"But the liberal today is going through a crisis of conviction in his attitude toward strikes. A new social realism makes him ask whether the paralyzing power exerted by a few unions is good for society as a whole.

Views Of Our Readers

Heading For Socialism

West Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

ALARMED? FRIGHTENED? AMAZED by the high - handed and ruthless manner in which our country is heading toward a socialistic state? Are you a shamed that our government takes no stand when foreign powers expropriate our property, assault and take prisoner our citizens, and insult our flag? Are you alarmed when the federal government repeatedly invades the domain of private enterprise, and now desires to dictate federal edicts as to how our personal lives are to be managed?

I must answer that I am ashamed. Yet these harsh words are difficult to say, for I am admitting my guilt. I am guilty of neglect and indifference, when my country is in such desperate need of you and me; for it is upon your shoulders and mine that the responsibility and solution to this dilemma rests.

If we feel that there is nothing that we can do — we are wrong. There is a great deal that you and I can do. Together we can stem the tide of Federalism at home and the "do nothing" policy abroad — the policies of the Kennedys and their "New Frontier."

How? By joining your neighbors and friends. By working with us to form an active, thinking, competitive two - party system in Louisiana.

I feel the Republican party and its forceful leader, Senator Barry Goldwater, are the answer. Many in Ouachita Parish feel as I do and are forming the "West Ouachita Republican Party."

The task is great — The problems are many, but with your help, the grass roots can burn with genuine devotion and dedication, to return our country to sensible, respectable and conservative government.

Meet the challenge. Help us to initiate the defeat of the Kennedys in '64 by joining the "West Ouachita Republican Party."

The East Side Story

West Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

This letter became mandatory for me last Sunday on noticing that the Editor's columns were strangely mute on the recent machinations of the Parish School Board (Kennedyism on the local scene!)

The inference a reader draws from reading the board's actions is that the east side members have joined hands with the politicians to select us a school superintendent — one they can pull strings on like a puppet! This coup de'tet would not have been possible without the executive help from Baton Rouge, and I sincerely hope the voters will remember the Gestapo - like tactics against Mr. Drennan the next time at the polls.

The east side group has just the man to fit THEIR specifications — the basic needs of our children, schools, teachers, and parents not having once been considered. This man is to be ensconsed in the $14.500 chair of the school board Office directly from his college ivory tower, where his claim to the office of superintendent is his experience as a former athletic director — lately turned psychologist. (The consensus of opinion around my neighborhood is that our Parish schools have deteriorated as a result of a superabundance of physical ed majors in status positions in our system!) It seems to me that this politically chosen man would not understand the problems of the secondary schools, let alone those of the elementary schools.

Surely there is some eminently qualified person within the system (NOT an ex-coach) who would know better the needs of the schools — one who would not be under obligation to the politicians.

If only the superintendency were an elective office! The people, and not less than a dozen, would then have a voice in this very important mafter. Let's hear other protests!

Shamed By 'Voice'

Mexico 5, D.F.

To the Editor:

My husband and I are old-time American residents of Mexico. Since the Bay of Pigs incident there have been times when we have held our heads less high, but only last week did we lower them in shame.

We were seated in a small cafe on the remote Mexican - Caribbean island of Cozumel when one of the patrons turned on the Voice of America morning broadcast in Spanish. The Alabama racial crisis was blazing and, as the commentator laundered our country's soiled linen in foreign waters, we felt that a subversive and sinister hate - America peddler was at work. The misleading picture left by the commentator was not only a disservice to the majority of Americans, but it was a disservice to our government and its image abroad.

That the United States has a racial problem, we do not deny. But it is lamentable that Voice of America's broadcasts are not confined to advertising the greatness of our nation.

Eight Civilizations

Mer Rouge, La.

To the Editor:

History records eight different civilizations bordering the Eastern Mediterranean Basin, a relative small area, extending from Rome on the west to the Tigris on the east side. All eight of the different civilizations had contact with Africa. They took Negro slaves and traded with the many tribes. This trading extended back, perhaps, for 10,000 years. The association of the different races throughout the 10,000 years made no appreciable improvement in the Negro's way of life. He did not care to be civilized as he thought it wasn't fun enough, an I besides the effort hurt his head.

But the claim is made by some Northern writers that the Negro never had the advantage of close contact with civilization. The truth of the matter is that he was in contact with civilization many centuries before the wild savage Teutons swarmed down out of Northern Europe and over ran the Roman civilization. Those Teutons readily adapted themselves to the Roman way of life and became civilized as they recognized it as something worth while.

The Negro's present level of civilization can be credited to the white man who literally kicked the Negro up stairs. We of the South are branded as oppressors of the "poor neglected" Negro. The real facts are that the Negro has made very little effort to rise above his environment since Lincoln set him free in an illegal manner, one hundred years ago. Some Negroes have made a measurable amount of success after Freedom. There were two slaves up in 10th Ward of Morehouse Parish who became owners of large and valuable farms. One of the two, in his late life, paid out $30,000 to keep his wayward boy out of the Arkansas State Penitentiary.

Every Negro that was freed by Lincoln had the same opportunity to achieve a like success. They had the same opportunity but not the same incentive of Abraham Lincoln and Booker T. Washington to rise above their lowly estate. Had Lincoln and Booker Washington been mentally as slothful as the average Negro the world would have "little noted" them, as Rudyard Kipling expressed it in 1899 when he originated the phrase, "White Man's Burden." There is evidence that the big cities of the North are realizing how right Kipling was.

Every writer of the North in writing of that burden criticised the South in an unjustly way. We are portrayed as an utterly impossible set of oppressors hell bent on holding the Negro down. They never have encompassed the fact that the people of the South has done far more for him than ever has the North. The entire South are castigated over the killing of Medgar Evers. The South was not as much at fault over the unfortunate incident as was the North which has encouraged the rioting from its inception.

The ambushing of Medgar Evers from a weed patch is not any more heinous than the ambushing of the South's character from generalities published in the Northern Press. Evers' troubles ended at the firing of the rifle but the slur on the people of the South will remain the balance of their lives. Just why the maleficient press takes that view is hard to understand, unless it is from a sadist enjoyment.

The North is now finding that they are living in glass houses and quite thin glass at that. It appears that the Northern writers are striving for a Pulitzer award. That being the easiest way to come into possession — just write something scurrilous about the South in connection with the Negro.

The rioting in Mississippi and Alabama, if we are to take the word of the slick magazines like Look, was a horrible mess fomented by the white people of those states.

Even the riots in Chicago have been placed at the doorstep of Alabama. How unjust can a man get who operates without a sembalance of thought?

It would appear that there are enough sins here now without the Northern press creating more to feed the fires of the Devil.

Thanks For Reprint

To the Editor:

Thank you very much for the reprint of the editorial taken from the Manchester, N.H., Union Leader, in "As Others See It", in the July 1 issue of the Monroe Morning World.

At least one good "Yankee" newspaper dares to openly express an opinion on a timely subject. Why not run this again because some readers may not read your fine editorial page every day, as I do?

Now Adam Clayton Powell may stand up in Englewood, N.J., and say the white man is on the run. Well, let's just consider the the core. Also along with his record speaks for itself — rotten to the core. Also along with his record goes the record to date of the whole JFK administration. JFK and Bro. "ain't got the guts" to be leaders among men — decent men, anyway.

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By BARRY GOLDWATER

U.S. Senator From Arizona

A NEW DRIVE IS gathering steam to reorganize the World Court and increase its power over the internal affairs of the United States. The ballyhoo for the drive was generated at a recent conference on World Peace Through Law in Athens where such spokesmen as Chief Justice Earl Warren urged the creation of an international court with the power to enforce its decisions.

But the immediate objective of the drive is the adoption of a resolution offered in the U.S. Senate June 20 by Sen. Russell B. Long (D-La.). This would instruct the U.S. delegate to the United Nations to sponsor a proposal which would give the World Court compulsory jurisdiction over all members of the United Nations and make its judges world citizens for life. The present right of the United States under the Connally Reservation to keep domestic matters away from the court would be eliminated.

All of which lends significance and importance to one of the best books ever written on the Connally Reservation and the dangers involved in removing its protection. The book, "Too Grave A Risk," was written by Denison Kitchel, a Phoenix attorney and one of the nation's top authorities on international law. Recently published by William Morrow and Company, New York, I have no hesitancy in suggesting that "Too Grave A Risk" is must reading for all Americans who treasure their freedom.

WHAT IS THE CONNALLY Reservation, or the Connally Amendment as it is sometimes called? Actually, it is just six words — "as determined by the United States." These six words were inserted by Chairman Tom Connally of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in a resolution authorizing U.S. acceptance of the compulsory jurisdiction of the World Court. They were put in to make sure that the court couldn't decide a matter which this country considered to be domestic by simply ruling that it was international. They left the determination of such questions where it rightfully belongs — with the United States.

As vital as those six words are to the well-being of this country, there are many among us who have become dazzled by the slogan "World Peace Through Law" and come to believe that the Connally Reservation is the only thing that stands between the world and realization of the idea of peace. For example, the 1960 Democratic platform called for repeal of the Connally Reservation. And today, the agitation for repeal is starting up again.

Mr. Kitchel, in his clear and well-documented book, says the stakes in the Connally Amendment controversy are nothing less than "our national sovereignty over matters of vital concern to our security, to our economy and to our right of self-government.

"Even the most ardent World Court enthusiast would have to concede that there is a risk involved," the author continues "The question is how great that risk is.

"THE UNITED STATES IS at war. We are engaged in a war of survival between the forces of freedom and the forces of international communism. For the present, it is a cold war in which diplomatic trickery and massive propaganda are the chief weapons of our adversary. The Communists are both deceitful and ingenious. The World Court is an international tribunal on which two representatives of international communism sit as judges. Without the Connally Amendment, the court would have the power to usurp the national sovereignty of the United States over matters of vital national policy. Cases involving the Panama Canal, Guantanamo, foreign aid, tariffs and the like could be so contrived by the Communists or by unfriendly interests as to use the court as a device for destroying that sovereignty. We must not belittle the resourcefulness of our enemies.

"The retention of the Connally Amendment — the guarding of our national sovereignty ourselves rather than placing it in the hands of the World Court for safekeeping — is essential to the ultimate victory of freedom in the present struggle.

"For the United States to take any other course of action would involve too grave a risk."

How do you stand, sir?

BASCOM TIMMONS

New Businesses

Establishments Start Up At Rate Of More Than 1,000 Daily

DURING THE PAST NINE years new business establishments have sprung up throughout the country at the rate of over a thousand a day.

Practically all of these fledgling undertakings are classed as small businesses, for it usually takes a number of years plus, perhaps, several amalgamations with other firms for a company to achieve the "big business" designation as the term is applied today.

With so many new business establishments, covering a wide range of enterprises, constantly coming into being, it would seem that the unemployment problem in most communities would eventually be whipped.

Undoubtedly this would be the case, were it not for another and very distressing factor in the over - all business picture: for every ten new establishments launched, more than eight close their doors and go out of business.

In round numbers, the new businesses that have come into being between 1953 and 1962 totaled 3,649,000, while the number of firms closing down during the same period was 3,077,000. This leaves a net gain of only 572,000 new establishments.

IT SHOULD BE POINTED out that by no means all of the business firms that closed their doors during the nine - year period were failures driven to the wall of bankruptcy. Some were voluntarily closed down by their owners, who had salted away a tidy nest-egg from these enterprises; some were combined with other firms in plant - expansion programs and are by now doubtless on the way to becoming "big businesses;" and still others may have been closed on the insistence of their stock holders on grounds they were not producing big enough profits, though they may have been sold or dissolved at no loss to their owners.

But since approximately 95 percent of the 4,752,000 business establishments in the United States at the end of 1961 — the last year in the nine - year period covered, and the latest year for which complete figures are available — fall in the "small business" category, it is an inescapable conclusion that the great majority of the 398,000 firms that closed down that year were small concerns forced out by mismanagement, poor location from the standpoint of patronage, unavailability or high cost of raw materials; sudden and unforeseen increase in production costs, or other factors.

In an effort to eliminate, or at least identify, these rocky shoals of error on which so many small firms have foundered in recent years, the Small Business Administration this summer initated, as a plot project, a series of one - day workshops in its 15 regional offices throughout the country.

THESE ALL - DAY SESSIONS are open to small business owners and managers in the area, as well as those contemplating a plunge into the business world by opening a small manufacturing plant, store, restaurant or other type of enterprise.

All facets of establishing and operating a business are covered briefly in these meetings, from a study of the population characteristics of the area in which the enterprise is to be located to such practical problems as record-keeping, advertising, selecting and training personnel, buying and pricing, and credit and collection policies.

Also some time is given to the legal aspects involved in organizing a new industry, whether it be a proprietorship, partnership or corporation. Another important aspect studied is the financing problem, and here the would - be business owner is urged to take a close look at his family income needs, the initial capital requirements of the business itself, and the various sources of financing.

The Small Business Administration has its own loan program under which firms meeting SBA criteria can borrow to expand or improve their operations. These loans bear a maximum interest rate of 5½ percent.

DURING THE TEN YEARS it has been in existence, SBA has received 76,802 applications for loans totaling $4,555,000. However, less than half of these applications have been approved by the agency.

Through May 31 this year, the SBA has approved 37,179 loans totaling $1,544,000,000. A spokesman said the SBA loans averaged 83 percent of the total $1,854,000,000 cost involved in bolstering these enterprises, with the remaining $310,000,000 being obtained from local banks and other financing agencies.

To date only 1.3 percent of the loan money advanced by SBA has been written off as a loss, a spokesman said.

The Week In Focus

by Jack Gates

Meeting At The Far Meridian

There's an old Russian legend that when two people part for an expected long period of time, they say to each other "We'll meet again at the Far Meridian" which simply means we will meet again someday at some distant point.

That seemingly wraps up the feeling that now exists between the Soviet Union and Red China — the two one-time friendly Communist giants. After a weeklong conference in Moscow — in an effort to patch up ideological difficulties — the two seem to be farther at odds than before and both at week's end seem to be looking for a face-saving out to end the talks.

On Thursday, dispatches reported that the two sets of delegates have run into such trouble trying to patch up their quarrel, that the groups have decided to break off negotiations and will as soon as they can find a way to do so gracefully.

KADAR

Three times during the week, the delegates failed to show up as Premier Khrushchev continued his policy of displaying his ties with other Communist parties and the West. When the Chinese delegation arrived, Khrushchev was on a tour of the Russian farm areas. On his return to Moscow, he ignored the Chinese and instead conferred with Janos Kadar, Red premier of Hungary. Stories said during the meeting that the Hungarians and Soviets congratulated one another on their friendship, fraternal relations as true followers of Lenin. The Chinese contend that they are the genuine Leninists and that Khrushchev has led his own and allied parties away from the true Leninist path.

The major difference between the two is the argument over so-called "peaceful co-existence" which Khrushchev is advocating. The Chinese want to overthrow the capitalist world by violence, and they contend the Russian way is cowardice and that the American "paper tiger" can be defeated in war and revolution.

Throughout the week-long meeting the two have kept up a running war of words in some of the most undiplomatic terms possible.

While no one really knows the full meaning of the split as yet, most western observers believe it is serious — and one that won't be healed for a long time. Whether this will help the West is doubtful.

In Ecuador A Revolt

There have been many excuses for revolt in Latin American. But the best yet came to light Thursday when Ecuador's military chiefs overthrew President Carlos Julio Arosemena Monroy and set up a military junta. The reason for the bloodless revolt was the fact that Monroy was a "hard-drinker" and that he was "revolting" at a Wednesday reception in Quito.

AROSEMENA

After Army units moved in and beseiged the presidential palace, Monroy handed over control and then left the country by plane en route to exile in Panama.

A military spokesman said Arosemena, a known tippler, disgraced himself by getting drunk at a banquet. Guests at the reception said the president shouted abuse at U. S. Ambassador Maurice Bernbaum. Arosemena, who boasted about his "masculine passions and vices" came into prominence as the left-leaning vice president in the administration of President Jose Maria Velasco Ibarra. The Junta says elections will be held as soon as possible. . .

IN LONDON, it was disclosed that a top Russian spy has defected to the West and that as a result the Soviet Union may be forced to revamp its intelligence apparatus. The British government said the defector, a senior Soviet intelligence officer, was turned over to Britian after weeks of interrogation by the U. S. Central Intelligence Agency in Washington. The British said the Russian was as important as any defector on either side since World War II. While in Washington, the government imposed a cloak of secrecy on his presence. His life is described as "being positively in danger.". . .

QUEEN

A FEW MONTHS ago Greece's Queen Frederika and her daughter were in London on a visit. As they were returning to their residence, they were surrounded by a mob of Greeks, whose relatives are being held in Greek prisons. The Queen and her daughter fled and found refuge in an apartment.

Recently Queen Frederika insisted on returning to London. It seems that a Queen is not supposed to take to her heels in the face of danger. As a result of that insistance on returning, the Greek government fell and the Royal line was endangered. Nevertheless, the past week the queen and King Paul returned and spent a four-day visit marked by violent demonstrations. Police repeatedly clashed with demonstrators. Thursday night, the Greek royal couple flew home having accomplished the queen's missions.

British officials however were stunned by the demonstrations and particularly the booing of Queen Elizabeth. The demonstrators shouted invective at the royal English party as it entered and left a gala theatrical performance. Elizabeth was said to have been visibly shaken by the encounter. . .

On Other International Fronts

There was plenty of other developing news overseas. In West Germany, a spy trial procued more evidence that secrets of the highly rated West German intelligence service were leaked for 10 years to the Soviet Union. Heinz Felfe, a former German army intelligence agent who is charged with treason, admitted he passed on names and cover names of Western agents to his contacts in the Soviet Union. . .During the past week, the British, U. S. and United Nations opened an investigation into charges that Egyptain bombers have dropped poison gas on royalist village in North Yemen. Egyptian authorities, who are aiding the rebel forces in Yemen, denied the charge. . . IN THE FAR EAST, Indonesian President Sukarno, a Communists at heart, charged that Malaya Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman broke a promise when he signed the agreement forming the new Southeast Asia Federation of Maylaysia. Britian signed an agreement Monday with Malaya, Singapore, Sarawak and British North Borneo setting up the new federation which becomes effective August 31. . .AND IN Israel, Prime Minister Levi Eshkol aimed a peace offensive at United Arab Republic President Gamal Abdel Nasser, saying he was ready to meet the Arab leader any time or any place for peace talks. . .THE SOVIETS are also unhappy with Iraq. Pravda charges that imperialist powers are involved in Iraq's war with the Kurds and declared "the Soviet Union cannot remain indifferent to what is happening in direct proximity of its southern frontiers. The Kurds, a bunch of wild tribesman who live along the Russian border with Iraq, have been battling government troops for some time. . .

A Polish Hero

Polish air force Maj. Richard Obacz, a jet fighter test pilot, one day last week told his wife he wanted to get in some flying time. He would fly to the Baltic coast and the family could come alone to visit relatives there. Obacz pushed his two small sons under the instrument board, strapped his 27-year-old wife, Mary, in the pupil's cockpit, gunned the engine and took off. For 110 miles Obacz flew at low level across Poland and East Germany, then landed in West Berlin — free of the Communists. He said he had had enough of the Red regime in Poland, which has asked for his return. . . .

MEANWHILE, Red China's race to explode its first atomic bomb has been reported as having been slowed seriously by the withdrawal from China of Soviet experts and scientists. Diplomatic reports said the Russians apparently took with them important "ingredients" when they returned to the Soviet Union. . .AND IN Syria, the ruling Baathist party stunned the Middle East the past week by ousting Maj. Gen. Ciad Al Hariri from all official posts and rushing him to exile in Europe. Hariri brought the Baathist party into power by masterminding the March 8 Coup. . .

FRANCE, which last winter vetoed Britian's bid for Common Market membership — an act that resulted in coolness between the U. S. and France also — has accepted a West German plan for increased economic and political contacts between the market and Britain. The plan calls for regular meetings four times a year within the framework of the Western European Union, WEU, which includes Britian and the market nations. . .

A Mountain Feud

A long, bitter feud between two mountain families in West Virginia exploded into a gun battle the past week when police attempted to serve a warrant at the home of Ernest Moore near Charleston. When the gunsmoke cleared, Moore, 67, and his son, Andrew, 23, were dead. The gunbattle developed when officers attempted to serve a warrant on Moore which had been sworn out by the O. F. Miles family, owners of adjacent mountain property. The Moores and Miles, authorities said, have been feuding for years . . .

AT DENVER, Colorado, the fourth general synod of the United Church of Christ adjourned its convention Thursday with a plea by its president to solicit Negro membership. "It is no longer enough to accept passively a Negro member to your congregation," said Dr. Ben Mohr Herbster. "You must welcome him. You must solicit his membership." Under Herbster's urging, the synod earlier had approved a policy denying financial help to church - related institutions if they fail to have an open racial policy by July 1, 1964 . . . AND IN WASHINGTON, President Kennedy's fact - finding committee goes to work this weekend on a new study of the railroad labor dispute. Its object is to sift the facts in the four-year-old fight over new work rules and have a report ready for the President by July 20. The report will serve as the basis of legislative recommendations Kennedy plans to make to Congress July 22, a week before a truce expires for a threatened nationwide rail strike. The strike was postponed the past week until July 29 . . .

SENATE REPUBLICAN Leader Everett M. Dirksen says the Kennedy Administration has left GOP members of Congress in the dark about W. Averell Harriman's nuclear mission to Moscow. As a result, Dirksen said, congressional Republicans have adopted a wait-and-see attitude toward nuclear test ban negotiations with the Russians. The meeting opens Monday in Moscow and will be aimed at obtaining some sort of nuclear test ban. Harriman, who met with President Kennedy and Secretary of State Dean Rusk before taking off for Moscow, said it would be up to the Russians to decide if a ban agreement is reached. The Russians, in the meanwhile, said it would be up to the West . . .

CALIFORNIA and Florida will have relatively bigger voices in the 1964 Republican convention while such states as West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Nevada, Connecticut and Louisiana will have substantially fewer votes than in 1960. As it now stands, California gets 86 votes next year as compared to 70 before and Florida will have 34, an increase of eight. Louisiana loses six votes . . .

IN WASHINGTON, the administration is still pushing its tax program. Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon told Congress the past week that failure to enact the President's program might invite a recession. He said much of the recent improvement in the U. S. economy is based on anticipation by businessmen of the benefits of a tax cut . . .AND IN NEWBURG, N. Y., Joseph Mitchell, the public official who drew the nation's spotlight with a controversial welfare code and more recently as an exonerated defendant in a bribery trial, has resigned as Newburg city manager to become an official in the John Birch Society. Mitchell's program to crackdown on the welfare chislers drew nationwide attention. His 13-point program was eventually stopped in the court . . .

Slap At Cuba

In a stinging slap at Fidel Castro, the U. S. the past week froze Cuban assets in this country — whether owned by Castro's government or Cuban individuals — and banned Americans from unlicensed transactions with Cuba. The state department said that "thus Cuba will be denied the use of American facilities for transfers of funds to Latin America for subversive purposes."

The freeze order generally puts Red-dominated Cuba in the same class with Communist China and North Korea . . .

DEATH FROM the sky struck at Fort Walton Beach, Florida. An Air Force jet accidentally fired into a protective ground bunker during a competitive strafing exercise Thursday, killing two persons and injuring at least 13. A spokesman said the fire blasted into a bunker where 16 or more persons sat controlling the competitive drill. The accident occurred in a remote area of the sprawling Eglin base complex . . .

IN HOUSTON, Texas, a man and his wife were in jail on charges of stringing up three of their five children by the wrists for hours at a time as punishment. The two are Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Churchill. The couple's five children —ranging in age from 3 to 9 — told police the parents would tie three of them by a rope at the wrists, looping the rope over a nail in a bedroom wall. The children said the punishment was for such things as eating during the day . . .

CHURCHILL

MEANWHILE, the Public Health Service issued a warning the past week against buying and using cracked or unclear eggs that have not been thoroughly cooked. It said there was a current outbreak of salmonella derby, an intestional infection which has hit 775 persons from March 1 to July 8 in 25 states and the District of Columbia . . .

Racial Roundup

The racial trouble continued in the headlines the past week as violence broke out at various spots North and South, East and West.

IN WASHINGTON, committees started hearings on President Kennedy's civil rights package. One section of the proposals — a fair employment practices bill — was approved by the House Education and Labor Committee.

In testimony before the Senate Judiciary subcommittee, which approved a four-year extension of the federal civil rights commission — Secretary of State Dean Rusk said the U.S. is heading into a deep racial crisis. He claimed that racial discrimination in the U. S. is one of the "most valuable assets" of the Communist and said it humiliates African diplomats. He appeared in support of the administration's key civil rights plan — outlawing of discrimination in stores, hotels, restaurants, theaters and other establishments in interstate commerce that serve the public.

Then appearing before the House Education and Labor subcommittee, James Farmer, head of the Congress of Racial Equality, urged Congress to get the federal government out of the business of "subsidizing segregation. "This is a moral issue," he said, "and there can be no dilly dallying with an issue as clear as this."

Meanwhile, President Kennedy appealed to women's organizations to help abolish discrimination in their communities. The appeal was made at a gathering of 300 women in Washington who ranged from the wife of Negro Roy Wilkins to Mrs. Robert Smith, president general of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

At the same time, a southern congressional leader — Sen. Strom Thurmond — charged that the proposal to ban racial discrimination in public accommodations would turn private business into "public utilities." At the same session, Mayor Frank H. Morris, of Salisbury, Md., told a committee that his community would not be on the road to desegregation and racial harmony if a public accommodations law existed.

ON THE VIOLENCE front, the worst outbreak occurred at Cambridge, Md. On Friday, National Guard troops were ordered into the racially-torn city after roving bands of gunmen, presumably Negroes, wounded six white persons in a climax to hours of racial rioting. Among the wounded were three National Guardsmen. The troops were sent in after a night which saw large crowds of both Negroes and whites formed.

And in Savannah, Ga., rioting also broke out, caused by Negroes. State police moved in and quelled the disturbance. In In Illinois, three racial demonstrations occurred the past week.

Three new court orders were issued the past week on integration. In Columbia, S. C., District Judge J. Robert Martin of Greenville ordered the ending of segregation at the University of South Carolina. He ordered the university to admit Negro coed Henri Monteith at the beginning of the next session. And at New Orleans, the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that the combined city-county school system at Mobile, Ala., must begin desegregation this fall. This was the first such ruling affecting public school systems in Alabama below the college level. In Oklahoma City, Robert Dowell, a 15-year-old Negro who was the principal figure in a federal court school integration ruling says he may not take advantage of the order. In that case, the judge ordered complete student and teacher integration in Oklahoma City schools.

Pros And Cons Given On How Fast, How Much To Spend On Moon Flight

EDITOR'S NOTE — You can find intelligent men on both sides of this question: Should the United States go full steam ahead in trying to get a man to the moon before the Russians do? Here are pros and cons.

By JOHN BARBOR
Associated Press Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—For sale: ideal location for flag. Prestige neighborhood. Excellent view. Choose from nearly 9½ billion acres, undeveloped. Zoning open for negotiation. Price $20 billion or more—the cost of getting there.

Ever since President Kennedy entered the U.S. bid for the moon, congressmen have had second thoughts about the price, the wisdom of racing the Russians, the wisdom of trying at all.

The first installment, $500 million, has been paid. Billions more are committed. Now scientists and even spacemen have had second thoughts—not always on the goal, but on the reason.

Listen to some of their statements:

NATIONAL NEEDS

Dr. Polykarp Kusch, Nobel prize-winning physicist: There are many great national needs "that far outweigh the needs for space exploration."

A Senate republican study: Decisions "must be made on the basis of over-all benefit to the free world and not on the adolescent desire to beat the Russians in a space race . . . For momentary transcendance over the Soviet Union we have pledged our wealth, national talent, and our honor."

Rep. Chet Holifield, D-Calif.: "One of the things that is holding back the peaceful uses of atomic energy is moon madness."

Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr., first U.S. orbital adventurer: The accent should be on the exploration of space, not just to the moon, but beyond. "We are certainly aware of the 'race' aspects of the lunar mission, but I feel the program is completely worthwhile even if there were no such place as Communist Russia."

President Kennedy, setting the goal of putting an American on the moon by 1970: "If we are to win the battle for men's minds, the dramatic achievements in space . . . should have made clear to us all the impact of this New Frontier of human adventure . . . But this is not merely a race. Space is open to us now; and our eagerness to share its meaning is not governed by the efforts of others. We go into space because whatever mankind must undertake, free men must fully share."

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, recently: "To spend $40 billion (sic) to be the first to reach the moon is just nuts."

Not everyone, however, feels the cost will be that great. Many incline to a figure nearer $20 billion.

CONFUSION

Rep. Olin Teague, D-Tex, head of the House Manned Space Flight Committee, blames some of the confusion on scientists for their inability to speak in terms Congress will understand.

"They seem almost intent upon bedazzling Congress and the public with a glamorous and bizarre jargon," he complained.

Space proponents also seem to have difficulty in offering pragmatic reasons to their congressional critics.

But even top-flight engineers like the space agency's Christopher Columbus Kraft Jr. can't promise gold and silver, oil or even water from the plateaus of the moon.

It would wrong Congress to say it doesn't want the United States on the moon, first, second or whatever. But in establishing national priorities, congressmen seem to want a better reason than a mere race.

Scientists — at least those who have been critical about the moon race and the space effort—say there is little science involved in it.

But the Manned Spacecraft Center research chief, Max Faget, answers: "This is a completely new experience. All the science is there. All man has to do is observe it."

At the end of Project Mercury, the United States had spent some $500 million so U.S. astronauts could log 54 hours in space. Congress has already granted funds for future projects.

But over the next-door fence comes the word that the Russians have logged over 380 hours in space and have 18 months of shooting time before the U.S. manned space effort will resume.

Congress seems intent on slicing at least $400 million off of the space agency's $5.5-billion budget.

Indian Economy Major Problem

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

NEW DELHI, India, (AP)—John Kenneth Galbraith slouched in his chair, sandalled feet on a coffee table, in an effort to keep his 6-foot-8 frame from towering too tall.

"I never was very starry-eyed about the economic problems of India," the Harvard economist said. "The fascination of India to an economist is that the problems are so stubborn and serious.

"They're going ahead," Galbraith added. "It's a slow, hard struggle, but they're going ahead."

Fascination with the struggle of India to get ahead economically brought him here as the American ambassador. Now, after more than two years, Galbraith is returning to Harvard seminars and writings that have made him one of the best-known modern economists.

FOR HOME

Galbraith, who leaves Monday for home, reflected in an interview on the problems of India's 461 million persons. The average person has an income of $70 a year.

Galbraith listed the basic problems as an uncontrolled increase in population, insufficient progress in raising agricultural production, low industrial efficiency and competitiveness of exports, and lack of jobs.

Galbraith first came to India for three months in 1956, studying and offering advice to Prime Minister Nehru's government that controls the economy in a loosely socialistic way. Galbraith was also here for a month in 1959, after helping John F. Kennedy win the 1960 presidential election. Galbraith asked for the ambassador's job here.

"In the last two years I've become aware of a variety of problems that perhaps were not fully appreciated before," he commented.

GREAT PROBLEM

The greatest problem is the increase in population by about 10 million a year. The Indian economy has to run hard just to keep up with this rising demand, and run even harder to improve low living standards.

"They've got to cut the birth rate drastically," Galbraith said. But present birth control efforts are not really touching the problem, he went on.

"They've got to get people out village by village, state by state," teaching birth control."

HAS CHARM OF OWN

Portugal Now Becoming The Gateway To Europe

As the vacation season progresses, a mass migration of giant jets roar across the skies bearing precious cargoes of adventure-seeking Americans, eager for new experiences in far off places. What better way to enter the Old World than through Lisbon, Portugal, the golden gateway to Europe. As your plane prepares to land at Lisbon's modern Portela Airport, your first impressions are of blue, blue sky, green, green hills and dales, a friendly sun beaming benevolently on gleaming, pastel - tinted houses wearing audacious orange - tile rooftops.

The traveler may be interested to know that more than 18 leading air carriers stop regularly at Lisbon's Portela Airport, connecting with the key cities of Europe, Africa, South America and Asia. Lisbon's busy harbor plays host to some 40 ship lines which made this a regular port of call.

But while Lisbon may be the gateway to Europe, those who linger a while before dashing through her portals will find Portugal as romantic as springtime and experiences to last a lifetime.

Portugal is a wonderful blending of old world charm and today's conveniences—at yesterday's prices. The sky is the limit when it comes to the memorable experiences one can enjoy on a vacation in Portugal, but to help keep these experiences memorable, the government has placed a ceiling on prices. Thus, although Portugal is enjoying zooming popularity with folks from abroad, the rates in hotels and restaurants have not risen accordingly. Today, you can still enjoy a comfortable room and bath in a charming pousada (inn) for $4.00 a day, including three enormous meals and the wine of the region.

Lisbon, Portugal's capital, is a gem of a city — an enchanting contrast of the old and new. Its wide boulevards bordered by mosaic sidewalks, its modern apartment buildings faced with such delightful pastels as marshmallow pink and pistachio green, its hustle and bustle of people and impatient automobiles—all of this is very much a part of the 20th Century. But a turn of a corner can be a journey into yesterday as one discovers the narrow, winding cobblestone streets which climb up and down Lisbon's famed seven hills.

One of the most delightful experiences is to make your way up one of these hills to the Alfama, the old Moorish quarter. You walk on mosaic pavements, encounter children at play, discover tiny hillside parks, and dodge gaily - colored wash hanging from graceful wrought iron balconies.

At the crest of the hill are the ruins of the Castle of S. Jorge which has stood watch over the city like a mighty sentinel from the days of the Moors. From here you look out over the city of Lisbon, a maze of bright orange - red rooftops, bright colored houses, all of which form a sort of crazy quilt pattern of toy houses which appear to be tumbling into the sparkling blue waters of the Tagus River below.

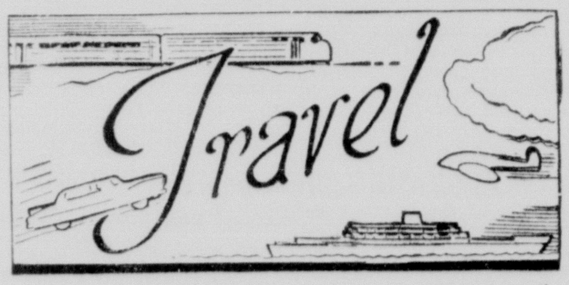
Lisbon has excellent museums — its Coach Museum boosts the finest collection of antique coaches in the world. A visit to the new Naval Museum in nearby Belem takes you back to the "Golden Age of Discovery" when intrepid Portugese navigators were opening the sealanes of the world. Lisbon has an amusing zoo for children, exquisite gardens and parks, and first rate hotels and restaurants. Or just browse along Lisbon's avenues, enjoy a cup of coffee in a sidewalk cafe and watch Lisbon go by. There is an excellent transportation system, including double-decked buses (great for sightseeing), gay yellow trolley cars, the new Lisbon subway, and even the taxis are inexpensive . . . all of which make "exploring" Lisbon less of an adventure but more of a surprise package of memorable sightseeing.

And don't forget Lisbon's suburbs. A fast, clean electric railway takes you out to Estoril, Portugal's fashionable seaside resort town only 15 miles from Lisbon. This is the "Cote Soleil", with its lovely beaches, palm shaded gardens, luxury hotels, gambling casino, golf clubs and tennis courts. For many years, many of Europe's dethroned Royalty have made their homes here in this gracious village. A few miles beyond Estoril, take the road which leaves the sea as it snakes its way up the first slopes of the Serra da Sintra range. Nestled high up on these mountains is Sintra, the charming summer resort once referred to by Lord Byron as a "glorious Eden." Its gay vilas give one the impressions of wedding cakes — a very colorful picture as they cling to the side of the mountain above the village. An unforgettable experience is to visit the Pena Palace at Sintra, an 18th Century palace with golden turrets, tiled doorways, romantic gardens. It is indeed a fairytale setting and gives one the feeling that this is where Sleeping Beauty must have rested all those years.

After this small sampling of Portugal you will want to see more of this country, which, although it is only about the size of the state of Maine, is rich in contrasts. In the north are vast mountain ranges; in the central and eastern regions gentle, rolling plains reach out towards Spain; in the south the land suddenly becomes Moorish in flavor; and etching Portugal's coastline, which is bounded on the western and southern coasts by the Atlantic, are magnificent, crescent - shaped beaches.

As the terrain changes, so do the people. About 70 miles from Lisbon, tucked away in a quiet hollow of the rugged Portuguese coastline, is the fishing village of Nazare, a little corner of Portugal which still bears the mark of the dauntless Phoenician sailors who landed on those shores almost 4,000 years ago. One has only to observe the local folks to know this — the same strong profiles, the dark brows and clear eyes of these hardy people whose lives revolve about the rythm of the sea. Their boats, too, are out of the past, with their long, narrow prows arching upward, painted in brilliant blues, reds and greens.

But history has had other influences on Nazare as the visitor to this unique little village will discover. It will be rather startling to see the local fishermen clad in bright plaids — reds, yellows, blues, greens — worn in fantastically gay combinations. Legend has it that these plaids were brought to Portugal by Wellington's troops during the Napoleonic Wars. The women, too, lend a jaunty note to the scene as they swish along in decorative skirts which are bunched out by the seven layers of petticoats that are a part of their everyday dress.



As you proceed further north, you come to Coimbra, where romantic figures in sweeping black capes roam the city. They are not shadows out of the middle ages, but students of one of the world's oldest universities. Founded in 1290, Coimbra University is located on the crest of a city so old that the "new cathedral" dates back to 1598. There is a mellow, old - world atmosphere in the cobblestone streets which wind through the city, some of which are too narrow to permit the intrusion of the 20th century automobile. Incidentally, it will be noticed that the edges of the students' capes are tattered. One version as to why this is so is that a young lady who grants a kiss to the student is rewarded with a piece of his cape.

One thing, and probably the first thing, the casual traveler through Portugal will be sure to notice is the friendliness of the people, particularly if he is lucky enough to come a-calling during a town "festa." From Easter Sunday to October there is scarcely an area in Portugal that is not enjoying a colorful, exciting festival — complete with folk dancing, fireworks, and bullfighting. And the visitor is not just a spectator — he is invited to join in and share in the fun. One of the most exciting of them all is the "Colete Encarnado" (The Festival of the Red Waistcoat). The streets of the quiet little village of Vila Franca de Xira, about 20 miles from Lisbon, will come alive with excitement from July 6th to the 14th. A highlight of the festivity is the "running of the bulls," a time when the bulls are turned loose as they make their way to the bullring. This is the moment when every would - be toureiro bravely tries his skill, most usually to impress the young lady of his choice. A fast, adventurous, even dangerous sport this, but most like to be better appreciated from the vantage point of a nice, safe, second-story balcony. (From October 6th to the 14th, there will be a repeat performance of the "fun and games" when Vila Franca de Xira celebrates its Annual Fair.)

There will also be gay folk dances, brilliant fireworks and, of course, the Portuguese bullfight. A bullfight — Portuguese style — has color, high excitement and comedy. Best of all, no one gets hurt, not even the bull, for it is against the law to kill the bull in Portugal. There are all the elements of the classic bullfight, except that at the "moment of truth", the sword is never used. Often, very brave matador will, at this moment, reach over and pat the bull's neck, just as gently as though this terrifying animal were the family pet.

One should never leave Portugal without hearing the fado sung in Lisbon. The fado is difficult to describe — it is often called a song of fate; it might more easily be called the Portuguese version of the blues. The fado is synonymous with Lisbon's old quarters, and some evening as you stroll along the narrow cobblestone streets of the Bairo Alto or the Alfama, duck into a little cantinha and be prepared for an evening of sheer romance. Here in these simple, dimly lit cafes, one sips wine and listens to the haunting voice of the "fadista," usually a dramatic looking lady enveloped in a black fringed shawl. She gently touches the shoulders of her two accompanists, throws her head back, and then, to the strains of the guitars, one hears music that is tinged with a touch of the flamenco and that indeed comes from the heart.

Heartbeats From England's Past

THE CONCUBINE. By Norah Lofts. Doubleday. $4.95.

Anne Boleyn is the heroine of this story by an accomplished master of the historical novel.

The hero and villain are one and the same, Henry VIII, that ebullient, domineering, willful Tudor monarch who was so right when he was right, and so wrong when he was wrong.

Anyone familiar with the bare statistical bones of history will know that the whole structure of this story is tragic, in the sense of tragic drama. The author has made Henry a tragic figure whom we can despise, but at the same time one who draws our sympathies.

Henry had grown tired of his first wife, Catherine of Aragon, whose only surviving child was Mary. He had fallen in love with Anne, who was of humble origin. For love, and for the sake of a male heir — who will ever know how much these motives were mixed? — he tried for years to get the Pope to annul his first marriage so that he could marry Anne. But when this had been accomplished, he turned on her viciously, for an infatuation with Jane Seymour.

There are others in the cast — Cardinal Wolsey, a favorite who rose so high and fell so far; Catherine, who emerges as a baffled figure clinging to her illusions, and many others. And in the background, the endless play of politics, the movement for reform in the church.

But Anne is the central figure. Miss Lofts has made her a woman of character — holding off Henry's importunings as long as she could, taking a desperate chance in her desire to give him an heir to the throne (no one knew then that her baby Elizabeth would become one of the greatest British rulers) and endowing her with the intrinsic qualities of a noble lady.

There is a communication here with the thoughts and heartbeats of the past. As a fiction writer on historical subjects, Miss Lofts is an expert at going below the surface to find the emotions, the sweat, hears, pain, hopes, ambitions and transient joys of human beings who played out their roles in destiny's obscure patterns.

Not everyone appreciates historical novels, which carry the pulse and song of another era. But for those who can, there is a feeling of deepening understanding to be found in this book.

16 Essays On Today

FIRST PERSON SINGULAR. Edited by Herbert Gold. Dial Press. $5.

The idea of this book is to bring together personal essays by writers whose main occupation is the creation of novels and plays.

As editor Gold states in his introduction, the result of this essay writing is likely to be, at the least, a "superior variety of journalism." This would be a demonstration that even creative writers are creatures of their own times.

You may be sure that the results are varied.

There is Gore Vidal's piece, now rather well known, about a chat with Barry Goldwater. Also a brief rumination by Saul Bellow on the image created by Khrushchev.

Harvey Swados is represented by a reportorial article on airline pilots, their care, feeding and professional dedication.

There is an item, scarcely distinguished by any discretion, by Mary McCarthy Highly deflating, it arrives at the conclusion that Americans are bound to be pretty uncouth because so many of them are descended from Europe's lower classes.

Playwright Arthur Miller writes about the basic human factors underlying juvenile delinquency; some of his readers, at least, will feel like cheering him for being far more clear-eyed than are most of the professionals in this field.

Collective Farm Is A Major Mess

ONE DAY IN THE "NEW LIFE." By Fyodor Abramov. Praeger. $3.50.

To the American reader, it is a matter of little consequence that this small book is a moderately good piece of realism.

For the literary quality of this story is not its chief attraction. It is interesting for the glimpses it gives of a certain segment of life in Russia — the collective farm.

This is the second time in recent months that we have had works by Russians writing in a critical vein about their own regime. The first was "One Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich," an expose of life in a concentration camp.

Abramov tells about a collective farm's discouraged manager. His farm is in a mess. Not through his fault, but because the Soviet bureaucracy is trying to squeeze results from a collectivized peasantry that has been ground down to animal level without any incentives.

The farm manager is confronted with the problem of operating with a handful of workers who goof off on the official work, and slyly try to eke out some benefits on their own; some of his workers are aged, or feign sickness; the young have departed for jobs that will pay. At the end there is a revelatory flash of what happens when the gain incentive is revived.

Fashey's War Experiences Diary Topic

PACIFIC WAR DIARY, 1942-1945. By James J. Fahey. Houghton Mifflin. $6.50.

Seaman first class on the light cruiser Montpelier. Battle station, a 40 mm. gun mount near the bridge. The Solomons, the Mariannas, the Philippines and on to Japan. That was Fahey's war experience.

So here we have one lowly seaman's view of many of the major naval campaigns of the Pacific one minor actor's reactions to a huge drama which he could comprehend but little; valuable not for an over-all perspective, but for an under-all record of the little horrors and little gripes and reliefs in a situation that varied from fear to pride and down to boredom and revulsion.

Of course Fahey was not very articulate and his grammar was shaky; his observations often revealed a remarkable naivete; but these apparent weaknesses take on a virtue of their own as a part of his sincerity.

His manuscript is laced with the small talk of the day — the food, the miserable weather, the work details, the loss of sleep. But it crackles now and then, and it builds tension with the roar of the guns, the excitement of star shells, torpedo wakes and diving suicide planes. Yet in the midst of these frantic scenes there are offhand references to the old movie the crew saw, or what the radio said about the war in Europe.

Unedited, the diary frequently has a repetitious tone. But at least its very roughness gives it a simple integrity. It is the very personal record of how a good clean American boy — obscenities are notably absent from these pages — felt about his duty, his officers, the enemy, his job, his friends and the winning of the war.

Entertainment

CURTAIN CALL

"The Desperate Hours" will be presented tonight in the third performance of its four - day run.

If you have not already made plans to see the first offering of the Summer Theatre Festival, it is still not too late to reserve tickets by phone or purchase them at the door. Seats for this play are not reserved.

The play has been proved to be quite popular among Little Theatre goers. It takes on a personal quality when the otherwise normal American family is thrown into a most dangerous situation. The drama is suspense - filled escape into the chilling experience of the Hilliard family, an escape both exciting and entertaining.

George Brian, director of the children's play, "The Indian Captive," reports that rehearsals are proceeding very well.

We understand that the costumes and set of this show will be very authentic, in that they are based on the actual clothing and homes used by the Indians, located in the northeast section of Louisiana.

RECEIVING HELP

Brian is receiving a great deal of help from the children's theatre class, one of the workshop courses offered in the summer program co - sponsored by the Little Theatre and the college.

"The Indian Captive" will open July 26 and run through July 29, with two matinees on the 27 and 28, and evening performances on July 26 and 29.

This play will appeal to all ages of adventure loving children and adults.

In connection with the children's theatre, our western correspondents have sent word of this type of activity on the California coast.

"A unique municipal venture is Carmel's Forest Theatre. Built 30 years ago by the WPA, it is an open air amphitheatre on a wooded hillside at the edge of town. This summer it will be the scene of "Alice in Wonderland," which has just gone into rehearsal as part of the community's recreation program for children during school vacation. Try - outs for the play brought forth an attendance of some 75 small fry whose voices were clearly going to have difficulty in coping with the great outdoors, but whose enthusiasm to be cast was unmistakable."

Tryouts for "Send Me No Flowers," a three - act comedy, were held at the Playhouse last Sunday. Just from hearing the sections used in tryout readings, we would judge this to be one of the more humorous plays done by the Theatre.

Our west coast correspondent reports on a conversation with Frederick Rider, director of the Golden Bough Circle Theatre in Carmel, California. In existence since 1953, the Golden Bough occupies a 150 seat circular playhouse in the lower level of a structure that houses a motion picture theatre above.

Unlike the Little Theatre of Monroe, the Golden Bough is owned by about 400 stockholders, but their chances of a dividend are said to be extremely remote. An auxiliary non - profit corporation, the Community Theatre of the Monterey Peninsula, has attracted about 100 members interested in the advancement of the drama. Their annual membership of 15 includes eight admissions to the Golden Bough season.

BROAD VARIETY

The policy of the Golden Bough is to present a broad variety of worthwhile plays, ranging from Broadway successes to avant-garde and off - beat attractions that are not necessarily commercial theatre. Their current production of "The Beggar's Opera," first done in London in 1728, is to be followed by a new French farce, possibly "Let's Get A Divorce." They give seven or eight shows a year, each of which runs Friday, Saturday and Sunday for six weeks, while its successor is in rehearsal. The productions are given in the round.

Except for the professional director and a business manager, all the talent employed at the Golden Bough is amateur and plays are cast from open tryouts like ours. This summer they have the assistance of seven or eight students taking a workshop course sponsored jointly by the Golden Bough and Fresno State College.

Looking very youthful and chic, film star Greer Garson fell into conversation with our western correspondents during a nature walk in the Point Lobos state park just south of Carmel. We wish we could report some inside news of Hollywood or Broadway, but Judy Evans says they chatted mainly about earlier days they had both spent in Scotland. Miss Garson and her family have a home in Pebble Beach.

Lefty Bob Charles Crushes Phil Rodgers For British Open Title

New Zealand Star Putts Way To Win

By JOHN FARROW

ST. ANNE'S, England (AP) — Bob Charles, a willowy New Zealander with the sensitive putting touch of a safe-cracker, smashed Phil Rodgers of La Jolla, Calif., by eight strokes Saturday in their 36-hole playoff for the British Open title and became the first left-hander ever to win a major championship.

Charles, 27, called the "lefty Hogan" by Scottish admirers, fired sub-par rounds of 69-71—140 over the 6,757-yard, par 72 Royal Lytham and St. Anne's course and routed Rodgers, the uninhibited, wise - cracking ex-Marine, who struggled home in 72 - 76—148. They had tied at 277 at the end of the regulation 72 holes Friday.

Charles, a good-looking, 6-foot-2 stylist who plays with no emotion, applied the pressure to his American foe by knocking in a 45-foot putt at the third hole and taking a lead he never relinquished.

Putting brilliantly—sinking 20, 30 and 40 footers as if they were kick-ins — Charles went three strokes ahead at the end of the morning round and shot into a five-stroke lead through the 20th hole.

It was at this point that Rodgers, 25, wearing a jaunty baseball cap and swapping jokes with the gallery all around the course, made his only serious surge. Over the next four holes—the 21st through the 24th — he picked up four shots to cut the New Zealander's advantage to a single stroke.

Then the roof fell on the California jester.

On the 25th hole, Rodgers took a double bogey six and on the 26th, he holed a shot from 50 feet —the back edge of the green—for a birdie three only to have Charles, a man of ice, sink a 25-foot putt right behind it.

They halved the hole in birdie three's, but the American was never the same after that. He became more grim. His shots lost some of their zing, and, before he knew it, he was eight down. He lost strokes on six holes in a row.

The match became a runaway and the crowd, numbering about 2,000 in sunny, breezy weather, deserted in large clusters and trudged back to the club house.

Charles not only is the first player from New Zealand to capture so important a prize but also the first man ever to do it swinging a club from the left side.

While southpaws have excelled in baseball, tennis and football it has been a long tradition in golf that this is a game for the right handers.

"There should be no reason for it," said Charles, who does all other things right-handed. "The courses don't favor the right-handers. I think it's just that players are converted while they're young with the result that golf has few outstanding left-handed teachers."

The playoff Saturday presented a unique study in contrasts. While Charles, the left-hander, is basically a right-hander, Rodgers, who plays golf from the orthodox side, does most other things—such as writing and eating—left-handed.

The blond, paunchy Rodgers played the happy-go-lucky clown. He quipped with the spectators, danced jigs on the green, once sank a putt by holding the club at the bottom of the shaft. The crowd loved him.

Charles, on the other hand, was a study in concentration. He never smiled. He seldom looked to the left or right but coolly went about his job of weaving a shroud of defeat for his opponent.

The Scots likened him to Ben Hogan, whom they christened the "Wee Ice Mon" when Hogan won the British Open at Carnoustic in 1953.

Charles' cash prize, as winner of the British Open, is only $4,200 — chicken feed compared with some of the big purses on the American tour—but the 103-year-old championship carries heavy prestige value. As runner - up, Rodgers collected $2,800. Both will play next week-end in the U.S. Professional Golfers Association championship at Dallas.

He finished fifth in the British Open last year at Troon, where Arnold Palmer win his second successive British title. He captured the U.S. national left-handers title last December in Bradenton, Fla., and became the first left-hander ever to win a tournament on the PGA tour when he took the Houston Golf Classic in April.

The New Zealanders had 11 one-putt greens on the morning round, on which he took only 26 putts in all—ten below regulation. He had four one-putt greens in the afternoon.

"I saw a lot of marching out there on those greens today," Rodgers said after the match.

Besides his 45-foot putt on the third hole of the opening round, Charles knocked in one from 30 feet at the 13th and 12 feet at the 16th. Three times on the round he came out of bunkers to within five feet to save his par.

Charles' one patch of bad golf came at the start of the afternoon round. He drove out of bounds at the 21st and took a double bogey six and he also bogied the 23rd, dumping his approach into a bunker.

However, he never once gave a sign of cracking. He regained control with his matching birdie putt at the 26th, and it was obvious that the playoff was decided. The final holes merely added to the margin.

JOHN PENNEL of Miami, Fla., and a student at Northeast Louisiana State College, clears the bar at 16 feet eight 3/4 inches to reclaim the world pole vault title and win the event at the British National Track and Field Championships Saturday at London. His effort surpassed by three quarters of an inch the world's best previous mark set by Sternberg of the University of Washington. (AP Wirephoto)

Northeast Vaulter Soars To 16-8 3-4

Until this tragedy, Sternberg was the worlds' premier pole vaulter, having beaten Pennel in their nip-and-tuck struggle for honors with the fiber glass pole.

Last April, Pennel took the lead with a vault of 16 feet, 6¾ inches. Sternberg bettered the performance with a leap of 16-7 at Modesto and then went 16-8 at Compton.

Finland's Pentti Nikula vaulted 16 feet, 8¾ inches in a meet at Pajulahti, Finland, in February, but the mark was not considered for a record because it was achieved in an indoor arena.

Pennel's leap Saturday came less than 24 hours after he had been picked to replace Sternberg on the U.S. team, meeting the Russians July 20-21 in Moscow.

Apart from Pennel's mark, it was not a good day for Americans in the British meet. There was only one other U.S. victory—that by Willie Atterbury of Detroit, who won the 440 yard hurdles in 51.2 seconds.

Berwyn Jones, a Welshman, beat Larry Questad of Livingston, Mont., in the 100-yard dash, both clocked in 9.7 seconds. David Jones of Britain edged Questad in the 200 by an eyelash, both registering 21.3 seconds.

JOHN PENNEL

Adrian Metcalfe of Britain won over Ron Freeman of Los Angeles in the 440. Metcalfe did 47.3 seconds, Freeman :47.4.

Pennel said that before cracking the record he didn't feel too well.

"I usually start at 15 feet," he said. "But I wasn't too good in practice so I started at 14 feet to get acclimatized."

The dirt runway worried him.

"I didn't feel I was getting up as much speed as I wanted," he said. "The run-in was more difficult than on the asphalt paths we have in the United States."

So he took an extra long run—and found himself in the way of the three-mile competitors.

"After I had made the record jump I was feeling pretty good and decided to try 17 feet," Pennel said.

"I thought there might be a chance. But it didn't quite come off.

"I have jumped 16 feet, 11 inches in practice, and I feel fairly well towards 17 feet now. It will come."

Pennel is scheduled to fly to Moscow Sunday with the rest of the American team for the match against Russia next weekend.

"What I want most of all is to get to Tokyo for the Olympics," Pennel said. "That depends on the qualifying meet early next summer. It won't matter how good I was today—it is the qualifying day that counts.

"Tokyo is my realdream."

"I've always said the record could go any time," Sternberg said from his hospital bed. "I don't feel bad about it or disappointed, as I would if I felt that I had no chance to come back and try again."

Sternberg is paralyzed from a fall he suffered on a trampoline July 2. Doctors have said the probability is high that the paralysis will be permanent.

Candy Spots Gets Victory By A Length

CHICAGO (AP) — Rex Ellsworth's Candy Spots won the $110,833 American Derby Saturday by one length over B. Major, the colt who beat him a month ago as a 40-1 longshot.

It was another thrilling battle between the 2-5 favored Candy Spots, ridden by Willie Shoemaker and the Elmendorf Farm's colorbearer, piloted by Ray Broussard.

In a steady rain that made the Arlington Park strip sloppy, the two 3-year-olds fought neck and neck from the three-quarter pole on with Candy Spots pulling ahead midway in the stretch.

The time for the mile and one-quarter, in which Candy Spots at 126 pounds gave up three pounds to B. Major, was 2:02 2-5.

Only five were in the race making up the smallest field since 1949. Fred W. Hooper's Sky Gem was a late scratch.

Candy Spots, breaking a two-race losing streak, returned $3, $2.20 and $2.20 to backers in a crowd of 25,508. B. Major paid $2.80 and $2.20. William S. Miller's Crowdus, ridden by Robert Nono, returned $2.20 for show.

T. D. Buhl's Lemon Twist was fourth with River Divide Farm's Cosmic Tip trailing.

It was the sixth victory in nine starts of the year for Candy Spots, who lost to Chateaugay in the Kentucky Derby and the Belmont before B. Major defeated him in the $100,000 added Chicagoan at Washington Park June 15.

The victory was worth $65,833, boosting the son of Nigromante's total earnings to $666,360.

Second place was worth $20,000, with $15,000 for third and $10,000 for fourth.

Earl Battey Bats Minnesota Over Red Sox By 6-4

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) —Earl Battey's two-run homer off young Bob Heffner in the fourth inning helped the Minnesota Twins break out of a five-game losing streak Saturday and sink Boston 6-4 with a three-homer barrage.

Rich Rollins and Harmon Killebrew hit back-to-back homers in the third.

Minnesota tagged Heffner for seven hits and six runs in the first five innings. That was enough for Lee Stange, who became the first Twins pitcher to go the route in a week. Stange's record became 3-1 and Heffner's 1-1.

Despite the loss, the Red Sox remained in second place, one percentage point ahead of rain-idled Chicago. The slumping Twins posted only their second win in 11 games.

Boston got to Stange for nine hits, including solo home runs by Lu Clinton and Chuck Schilling.

Rollins and Killebrew hit homers with the bases empty in the third as Minnesota tied it 3-3. Battery then sent the Twins ahead to stay with his 18th homer, with Bob Allison aboard in the fourth. It was Killebrew's 19th homer and second in two games.

6TH STRAIGHT WIN

Surging Dodgers Beat Mets Again

NEW YORK (AP)—The streaking Los Angeles Dodgers won their sixth in a row Saturday handing the New York Mets their 14th straight defeat 11-2 on a 15-hit attack and Bob Miller's 6-hit pitching.

Wally Moon hit his seventh home run and a triple, driving in three runs. Nate Oliver, a late inning replacement for Junior Gilliam, hit his first major league homer off Larry Bearnarth in the eighth. Gilliam had driven in two runs with three straight singles before he took a rest.

Miller, a 1-12 pitcher for the Mets last year, won his sixth. It was his first complete game since April 25 when he whipped Cincinnati. Tracy Stallard, knocked out in the second, lost his seventh.

Frank Thomas's two-run homer in the fourth accounted for the Met runs.

The victory boosted the Dodgers' lead over the San Francisco Giants to six full games.

DEFEAT YANKEES

Thomas Delivers, Angels Win, 3-1

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lee Thomas, one of the season's biggest busts, hit a decisive two-run triple Saturday as the Los Angeles Angels pulled out of a 10-game losing streak by defeating the New York Yankees 3-1.

Despite the loss, the Yankees retained their 5½-game American League lead. Second-place Boston was beaten 6-4 by Minnesota.

The Angels, ending the longest string of losses in their three-season history, got only four hits off Jim Bouton and Marshall Bridges and needed a Yankee error to pull off the decisive two-run flurry in the third inning.

Leadoff man Jim Fregosi reached base on an error by Bobby Richardson and Albie Pearson drew a walk. Thomas scored them both with a slicing triple to left-center.

Thomas, who batted .290 last season and drove in 104 runs, came into this game hitting only .219 and hadn't batted in a run in two weeks.

Dean Chance was the winning pitcher, with a brilliant job of relief by Art Fowler. Fowler came on in the seventh with the bases filled and one out, and got Richardson on a foul pop and Tom Tresh on a ground out. He then finished, allowing the Yanks a single in the ninth.

The Angeles had scored their first run an inning earlier on consecutive singles by Felix Torres, Charley Dees and Billy Moran.

The Yanks got 10 hits but could score only in the fourth, when Joe Pepitone opened with a single, John Blanchard grounded into a took third on a single by Elston double play.

Sterlington In 4-2 Win, Gets Share of 1st

Sterlington rallied for three runs in the sixth inning to defeat Brown-Rivers-Scogin, 4-2, Saturday night and vault into a tie in the American Legion Amateur League race.

The victory gives both Sterlington and Rotary Club an 8-2 record and puts them a full game ahead of Swartz which is 7-3.

The losers' runs came in the second and fifth innings. Bobby Bryan singled in the second and later scored from second on another one - base hit by losing pitcher George Fruge. Sonny Milletello singled with two out in the fifth and scored on a single by Ray Jones and a miscue by the right fielder.

Sterlington picked up its first run in the fourth. Wayne Sutton singled and after John Pace was hit by a pitch, both men advanced on a bunt by Ike Dumas. Sutton then scored from third on a wild pitch.

The big sixth resulted in the victory for Sterlington. Sutton reached first on an error and Pace singled him to third. Ike Dumas promptly hit safely to right field with Sutton scoring easily and Pace speeding home on a wild throw in from the outfield.

Dumas moved to third on the play and tallied on a sacrifice fly by Coot Dumas.

Parker Haile was the winner with a seven - hitter. He struck out nine men and did not walk a batter.

Ray Jones, Bryan and Fruge all had two hits for BRS.

Two games are slated Monday night in the league, both makeup tilts.

Spicy Living Is Easy Winner In Delaware Oaks

Once the daughter of Gallant Man assumed command nearing the far turn in the 1⅛-mile stake, the race was as good as over. Jockey Jimmy Combest never applied the whip as his filly registered over Thomas S. Nichols' Tona. Tona finished 1½ lengths ahead of W. Haggin Perry's Batteur, who held a half-length over C. V. Whitney's Tirata for the show.

Clocked in 1:50 1-5, Spicy Living paid followers in the crowd of 18,550 $3.20, $2.60 and $2.60. Tona returned $8.40 and $7.20 and Batteur $12.80.

Spicy Living earned $47,875 to boost her 1963 total to 1207,924. She now has five victories, including four stakes, and three seconds to show for nine starts this year.

Another Record

"I always felt he was capable of it," said Jack Rowan, athletic director at Northeast State, Saturday after learning that Indian trackman Jack Pennel had once again broken the world record in the pole vault.

Pennel, who completed his eligibility at Northeast last spring, went 16 feet, eight and ¾ inches in the British AAA Track and Field Championships Saturday to eclipse the mark held by Brian Sternberg of the university of Washington.

"We are very happy for John," Rowan said. "He's the type boy who is made a better athlete by top flight competition. I think this tour will be a very good experience for him. But I hate what happened to Sternberg."

Pennel was chosen this week to replace the injured Sternberg on the U.S. team which is touring Europe. He will also compete in Poland, Germany and Russia.

Sternberg, who previously had a world record pending at 16-8, was seriously injured recently in a trampoline accident. He is suffering from either a dislocated or snapped spinal cord and may be permanently paralyzed.

Pennel first set the world record early last spring with a 16-3 effort in the Memphis Relays.

He upped it to 16-4 at the Northwestern Relays a little while later, but Sternberg came on the scene with a 16-5 effort in the Penn Relays.

The race was on.

Pennel went out in the rain the night he heard the news and cleared 16-6½. A few nights later he made it official, vaulting 16-6¾ in a dual meet with Northwestern.

Sternberg got 16-7 at Modesto, then 16-8 at Compton.

He went 16-5 and ¼ in the Bern International meet July 4 and vaulted 16-4¾ at Stockholm on Tuesday.

Rebels Tough

Basis for this belief is the optimism expressed by members of the Ole Miss coaching staff.

Rebel assistant coach James Poole, speaking in Natchez recently at a meeting of the Adams County alumni chapter, said, "We're optimistic regarding our 1963 team's chances."

Poole also told his audience that if the Rebels did excell once again it might be largely because of a pair of Natchez boys — Perry Lee Dunn and Allen Brown.

Poole's comments weren't made just to keep the homefolks happy.

In the Ole Miss pre-season dope book, Brown, a 225-pounder who stands 6-4, is called the finest wingman the Rebels have fielded since the 1947-48 era of Barney Poole. The Rebs feel he is an All-America prospect "on every count."

Dunn, according to the booklet, figures to add another bright chapter to the Ole Miss list of standout quarterbacks . . . Glynn Griffing last season, Doug Elmore in 1961, Jake Gibbs in 1959-60, Bobby Franklin in 1958, Ray Brown in 1957, Eagle Day in 1955.

Dunn is called a polished, bruising runner, equally good at short or long yardage and a long range passer. He is 6-2 and weighs 202.

"Coach (John) Vaught has proved a coach can be optimistic and get away with it." Poole commented. "We know we have good boys and we believe our boys will again do well."

At Hollandale

Three area collegians are having outstanding seasons with the strong Hollandale (Miss.) High Boys.

Eddie Kincaid, an All - Conference catcher for Northeast State as a freshman last spring, is batting .333. Kincaid, who is only 18, may be the youngest player on the Hollandale team.

Another Northeast All-League player, pitcher Ed Quimby from Rayville, is unbeaten for Hollandale, compiling a 6-0 record through last Sunday.

Teaming up with Quimby to give the Mississippi club 12 victories in its first 13 games is righthander George Woodson from Louisiana Tech. Woodson, who has a 16-4 collegiate record, lost the first game he pitched this summer, a 1-0 decision to Jackson, Miss. Since then he has beaten Jackson four times.

Also playing with the Hollandale club is Dickie Crowe, a former Northeast star and professional ball player for several years. Crowe, who helped coach the Indian nine this spring, pointed out that a lot of the team's opposition is made up of former pros. This makes it pretty tough for the college boys, he added.

Hollandale enters the Mississippi state semi - pro tournament the weekend of July 27 and could advance on to the national tournament at Wichita.

Outfielder Alton Thomas, another Indian who made the all-Gulf States Conference team as a freshman this year, is playing with the STECO Shreveport club in the Ark-La-Tex league.

Playing with Thomas is Dean Bounds, former Fair Park pitcher. Bounds, who put together a 13-4 record with Panola (Texas) Junior College, was signed by Northeast.

Public Spirit

On June 15 a four - picture sequence ran in the sports section of the Morning World showing the new West Monroe recreation center which is housed in a fire station. The accompanying cutline pointed out some of the equipment needed for operation of the center.

Since then the following items have been donated: a pool table, a refrigerator, a TV set, a dining room table and a half a dozen or so chairs.

The West Monroe City Council contributed two new ping pong tables.

Lloyd Williams, assistant recreation director, said the ping pong tables are in constant use and people are often lined up waiting their turn at the pool table.

The center still needs a drinking fountain, Williams said.

GREATEST RACE YET

Decidedly In Win At Monmouth Run

OCEANPORT, N. J. (AP)—El Peco Ranch's Decidedly ran his greatest race Saturday since he won the 1962 Kentucky Derby, surging past the favored Mongo in the late stretch for a 1½-length victory in the $111,300 Monmouth Handicap at Monmouth Park.

The big grey California - bred colt, owned by George A. Pope Jr. of San Francisco and ridden smartly by Manuel Ycaza, came up from the middle of the pack, circled his field on the turn for home and hit the wire in 2:02 flat for the mile and one quarter. He took first money of $72,345.

Mongo, from the Montpelier Farm of Mrs. Marion duPont Scott, took second by 2½ lengths over R. L. Dotter's Guadalcanal, who beat Townsend B. Martin's Sunrise County by three quarters of a length for third money.

Nine horses started in the 28th running of the historic handicap at this seaside course, and Mongo was the 2-1 favorite and the top weight under 126 pounds. He was ridden by Larry Gilligan.

Decidedly, who had collaborated with Ycaza to capture the Dominion Day Handicap at Torontos Woodbine track in his last start, paid $8.80, $4.60 and $3.80,

He packed 120 pounds.

Two Milwaukee Players Square Off In Dugout

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Milwaukee Braves Manager Bobby Bragan said Saturday he doesn't plan any disciplinary action against two of his players who had a brief scuffle in the dugout Friday night.

The players are pitcher Bob Shaw and first baseman Norm Larker.

Shaw was watching the St. Louis Cardinals' Bob Gibson in action and asked Larker to move over so he could study the Cardinal right-hander more closely.

Larker was slow about doing it and Shaw pushed him. Larker shoved back.

"I just held a meeting and told them I didn't want any more of it," Bragan said. "The dugout is hardly the place to air their differences."

Asked if they had shaken hands and settled their differences, Shaw replied "You don't do what I did and then shake hands."

"Shake hands?" said Larker. "Who thought that one up?"

Bragan said that the two players exchanged "a few words, then all of a sudden Shaw started swinging. I never dreamed Shaw would fight over it."

THREE-RUN SHOT

Aaron Powers Braves By Cards With Homer

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A tremendous first-inning home run by Henry Aaron, a three-run shot into the seldom disturbed centerfield shrubbery at Busch Stadium, powered the Milwaukee Braves in a 7-5 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Saturday.

Aaron's 26th homer provided the edge Milwaukee needed to withstand a three-run ninth by the Cardinals, who collected home runs by rookie Gary Kolb and pinch-hitter Charles James in that inning.

Kolb's home run, his second two-run ob in two games, kayoed winner Hank Fischer. James's homer was off reliever Dan Schneider, who then gave way to Claude Raymond. Raymond got Julian Javier on a foul pop for the final out.

Aaron, who had three hits and scored three runs, hit his 420-foot homer off loser Curt Simmons.

The loss gave the Braves a split in the four-game set and dropped the Cardinals to fourth place, two percentage points behind the Chicago Cubs and 6½ games behind the National League-leading Los Angeles Dodgers.

Aaron's homer, following leadoff walks to Frank Bolling and Ed Mathews, staked young Fischer, a southpaw making his first major league start, to a quick cushion.

The Cardinals, who now have lost 10 of 13 games since leading the league by 1½ games June 29, finally broke through in the fifth when two singles and an error loaded the bases. A run scored on a double play.

St. Louis counted again in the sixth, but by then Milwaukee had run up a 5-2 lead and had chased Simmons. The Braves scored twice in the third, after a rain-caused delay of one hour and eight minutes.

BEATS CHATEAUGAY

Outing Class Gets Surprise Victory

NEW YORK (AP)—Outing Class shook up the ratings in the 1963 3-year-old class Saturday with a surprise victory in the $85,000 Dwyer Handicap at Aqueduct as the favored Chateaugay, finished third.

Outing Class, owned by the Greentree Stable and ridden by Bobby Ussery, came between horses with a burst of speed in the last 16th and won going away over a long shot, Tenacle.

Chateaugay, winner of the Kentucky Derby and the Belmont Stakes, closed from far back as usual and just managed to nip Crewman for third. He carried top weight of 129 pounds compared to 122 for Outing Class, 106 for Tenacle and 125 for Crewman.

Outing Class, winner of the Saranac Handicap on July 3, paid $12.70, $5.80 and $3.10 and ran the 1¼ miles in 2:01 3-5. Tenacle, ridden by Johnny Ruane, returned $24.70 and $5.90. Chateaugay, with Braulio Baeza up, was $2.40 to show.

A crowd of 47,399 expected that Chateaugay would take a big step toward sewing up the 3-year-old championship with a victory in the Dwyer, but as it turned out the Darby Dan Farm colt was fortunate to get third by a nose over Crewman.

Match Wits, an entry with Chateaugay, went to the front at the start as expected. Crewman, with Eric Guerin riding, was second with Outing Class and Chateaugay far back in the field of 10.

Crewman moved into the lead coming into the stretch with Tenacle taking over the runner-up spot. Outing Class was closing fast and just when it seemed Crewman or Tenacle would take it all, Ussery found a spot between horses and drove his Nasrullah colt through to win by a length, Tenacle, off at 49-to-1, had ½ length over Chateaugay, odds on at 4-to-5.

Choker finished fifth followed by Tom Cat, the entry of Henry The Eighth and The Ibex, Rocky Ford and Match Wits. Hot Dust was a late scratch.

The victory was Outing Class' third in seven starts this year and the first place money of $55,250 boosted his 1963 earnings to $85,307. He won the Hopeful Stakes at Saratoga last year when he won a total of $127,907 in seven starts, but has been brought along slowly this season.

Senators Down Orioles For 1st Time This Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Home runs by Chuck Hinton and Jim King and a good relief job by Steve Ridzik enabled the Washington Senators to score their first victory of the season over the Baltimore Orioles 4-3 Saturday.

Hinton broke a 3-3 tie with his 10th homer in the sixth inning off Dick Hall, third of four Oriole pitchers.

The Orioles had won eight straight from the Senators, including the first two games of this series.

BOTH MANAGERS EJECTED

Roy Sievers Bombs Two, Lead Phils Over Giants

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Both managers, Al Dark of the San Francisco Giants and Gene Mauch of the Phillies, were thrown out of the game Saturday as the Phillies whipped the Giants 4-3 sparked by Roy Sievers' two home runs.

Willie Mays drove in all three Giant runs with a forceout in the fifth and a two-run homer, his 17th, in the seventh. However, Ryne Duren, who pitched the first seven innings, and Jack Baldschun were too tough in the pinches for the Giants.

Dark was thrown out in the third inning for protesting tight pitching by Duren. Willie McCovey had been hit by a pitch and Mays had hit the dirt to avoid a Duren fast ball.

Mauch was given the heave in the fourth when umpire Augie Donatelli cautioned Duren about his possible finger-wetting style. The incident happened with two Giants on base and two out. Both were left.

Sievers hit his first homer in the second inning and his second of the game in the fifth with two on and two out.

McCovey singled in the seventh to make it 17 straight games in which he has hit safely. Mays followed with his homer, but that was the last Giant hit. Baldscun retired the Giants 1-2-3 in the eighth and ninth.

AGAINST BEANBALLERS

Dark Continues Retaliation Policy

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — San Francisco Manager Al Dark, ejected in the third inning Saturday for protesting the alleged dustoff of two players by Philadelphia pitcher Ryne Duren, says he intends to continue his policy of retaliating against opposing pitchers.

He said he doesn't care if "I get thrown out of every game or suspended for life."

Dark said he is "fed up with my players going up and down like a bunch of yo'yos."

Dark was tossed out of the game by plate umpire Shag Crawford after a pitch by Giants' pitcher Billy Pierce hit Duren in the back in the third.

Earlier, the Giants' Willie McCovey had been hit in the leg by a Duren pitch in the second inning and Willie Mays was sent sprawling backward avoiding another pitch. At this point, Dark had words with Crawford.

Dark also said "everybody knows he (Duren) throws spitballs . . . we can't do anything about that. It's up to the umpires. All we're trying to do is let our hitters know when it's coming."

Crawford warned Duren about wetting his fingers and neglecting to wipe them off before pitching. The spitball squabble broke into the open in the fourth inning. The Giants had Orlando Cepeda on first and two out and Duren was pitching to Jim Davenport. Crawford and third base umpire Augie Donatelli looked at each other and Donatelli told Duren: "once more and you're out."

Phillies Manager Gene Mauch came storming out of the dugout and argued. Donatelli threw him out of the game.

"He wasn't very nice," said Donatelli later. "Besides, if there is one thing I can't stand it's a guy who comes out to criticize."

Dark said Duren had the worst intentions toward McCovey and Mays.

"McCovey hit four home runs in the other games here," said Dark, "and gets plunked by the first pitch. Then Mays has to dive away from a pitch. Strange, isn't it?

"Sure I could have my pitchers hit somebody like Roy Sievers but that wouldn't be the right thing. This game is played that way. I don't blame the pitchers. I blame the umpires.

"This is nothing new with us. It happens all the time. At least one time every series—and naturally they seem to pick on the guy who is doing the most hitting."

Duren denied all the accusations —the spitballing and the intentional hitting of McCovey.

"Some of those Giants don't know the difference between a slider and a spitball," he said.

Early Wynn Hurls Victory No. 300 In 7-4 Tribe Win

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Early Wynn finally gained his 300th major league pitching victory Saturday after a series of frustrating attempts as the Cleveland Indians defeated the Kansas City Athletics 7-4 in the second game of their doubleheader. The A's won the opener 6-5.

Wynn lasted only five innings, the minimum distance a starter has to go to be credited with a victory, in becoming the 14th pitcher in major league history to win 300. The 43-year-old righthander left after the fifth with the Indians holding a 5-4 lead, and Jerry Walker blanked the A's the last four innings.

Wynn, who first pitched in the majors in 1939 with the Washington Senators, has lost 243 in his 23 big league seasons — with one setback coming this year.

Saturday's success came in Wynn's eighth try to capture No. 300, three last year with the Chicago White Sox and five since being signed as a free agent by Cleveland last month. He had last won on Sept. 8 of last season.

Wynn, a five-time 20-game winner, barely squeezed by the A's after being given a 5-1 lead by Cleveland's four-run burst in the top of the fifth.

Singles by Ken Harrelson, Gino Cimoli and Jose Tartabull loaded the bases with none out, then with one away Jerry Lumpe cleared the bases with a double — and was out trying to reach third. Wynn retired George Alusik for the final out of the inning, then retired.

Wynn himself started the Indians' decisive fifth against loser Moe Drabowsky with a leadoff single. Dick Howser singled with one out, and after a two-out walk to Max Alvis, Joe Adcock singled across two runs, breaking a 1-1 tie. Al Luplow later batted acrsos two more runs with a single, but on the hit John Romano was caught in a rundown for the third out.

Wynn, who gave up six hits and struck out three, set a major league record by issuing three walks. His career total now is 1,765 — one more than the previous record held by Bob Feller.

Drabowsky, incidentally, was also on the receiving end in another historic feat — he gave up Stan Musial's 3,000th hit five years ago.

The A's won the opener by coming from behind in the last of the eighth inning on Lumpe's tying homer and Norm Siebern's run-scoring single.

Jose Azcue put Cleveland ahead 5-4 with a three-run homer in the third and loser Jack Kralick stayed in front until the eighth. Ed Chagles had a three-run homer for Kansas City. John Wyatt was the winner in relief.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Early Wynn finally recorded his 300th pitching victory the easy way Saturday, watching the final out from the press box, but said:

"I feel I had this one coming after pitching well and losing so many tough ones. It seems a little strange, though, after waiting so long for it."

EARLY WYNN

The 43-year-old Cleveland righthander pitched the first five innings, left for a pinch hitter with a 5-4 lead, then watched roommate Jerry Walker hold the lead for a 7-4 victory over the A's.

"Birdie Tebbetts had to get me out of there or I might have fallen on my face....I was exhausted."

The 6-foot, 220-pound pitcher, clad in white dress shirt and slacks, made the rounds in the clubhouse, shaking hands.

Finally he found roommate Walker in the shower and yelled:

"Atta boy, roomie, we kept it in the room. Tomorrow we get a Cadillac and we'll both drive it."

Wynn opened a can of beer and conceded the emotional strain of trying for No. 300 became hard to bear.

"Every pitch got to be a great effort," he said. "I tried to make every pitch perfect."

Saturday's game was his eighth attempt for No. 300, a mark reached by only Warren Spahn in the past 22 years and by only 12 other pitchers in baseball history.

AFTER PENNEL VAULT

'I'm Number 2,' Says Sternberg

SEATTLE (AP)—"You're looking at the No. 2 pole vaulter in the world," Brian Sternberg told his mother Saturday.

The remark was made public by Gene Esquivel, Post-Intelligencer sports reporter who has covered Sternberg's pole vault career since high school. Esquivel was allowed to visit the paralyzed University of Washington vaulter in his hospital room Saturday.

Sternberg, whose spinal cord was crushed in a trampoline accident July 2, set a world record six weeks ago with a vault of 16 feet, 8 inches. It was erased Saturday when John Pennel, from whom Sternberg wrested the world record, soared 16-8¾ at the British National Track and Field Championships in London.

Pennel, of Northeast Louisiana University, will take Sternberg's place on the U.S. team to compete against the Russians in Moscow July 20-21.

"I really think it's great about Pennel," Sternberg told Esquivel. "He's the most deserving of all of us to represent the United States at Moscow.

"I don't know of anybody who has tried harder and put more into vaulting than Pennel. When I beat him out for the No. spot, I think he was trying too hard."

Sternberg remains paralyzed from the neck down, but said he feels much better.

"As a matter of fact," he sid, "I feel so good now it almost scores me. I've got to fight the moments of depression. This will be my biggest problem. Already I've felt like throwing in the towel, but I come right back. I feel this is going to happen at least two or three more times."

Sugar Ramos Retains His World Title

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Sugar Ramos, a transplanted Cuban, retained his world featherweight championship Saturday night by outpointing Nigerian challenger Rafiu King in a 15-round title fight at the El Toreo Bullring. Ramos weighed 126, King 125.

It was Ramos' first defense of the championship he won March 21 in a 10th-round knockout of American Davey Moore in Los Angeles. Moore died of injuries suffered in the fight.

Ramos had King close to a knockout in the sixth round, but the challenger rallied and had the champion in trouble in the 12th.

Ramos, who had predicted he would win by a knockout within seven rounds, had to call on all he had for the decision which followed a whacky day in which he struggled 50 minutes before making the weight limit and then was rushed into the ring an hour early because of the threat of rain.

Redskins Official Enters Hospital

Marshall, in his late 60s, has been suffering from diabetes for several years and underwent a hernia operation last summer.

He has been in poor health for a number of months despite a long rest in Florida earlier this year.

Dr. George Resta, Washington team physician, would say only that Marshall had entered the hospital for "a period of observation and tests." He said that nothing is seriously wrong, but it was thought desirable to have Marshall in a hospital for observation.

DAVE HILL of Jackson, Mich., shows his form as his driving and putting were outstanding in the third day of play in the Hot Springs, Ark., Open. Hill battled for the lead in the first nine holes of play Saturday for a hot 34 before thundershowers stopped the play for the young golfer. He went into Saturday's play with a 139, three strokes behind the leader, Mike Souchak, who finished Friday with a total of 136. (AP Wirephoto)

Recreation Softball

The Papermakers defeated New Chapel Hill, 10-3, in a West Monroe adult league softball game Saturday night. Jerry Hicks and Kenneth Parker were the winning battery. Estep and Haynes took the loss. Jerry Hicks of the Papermakers led the hitting with three hits including a home run.

Stunning Cadiz Cops Gold Cup; Satan Too Late

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Cadiz, a longshot from New Zealand, scored a stunning upset in the $162,100 Hollywood Golf Cup Handicap Saturday as the heavy favorite, Crimson Satan, finished dead last.

The 7-year-old Cadiz, given an excellent ride by jockey Eddie Burns, got through a hole at the top of the stretch and rushed on to win decisively over the front-running Aldershot.

Olympiad King, the lone colt in the field, was third in this 24th running of the summertime classic.

DEFEATS OPPERMANN

Lunn Captures Crown In Public Links Meet

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Bob Lunn, a San Francisco teenager, built a three-hole lead after 27 holes, then held off the desperate rally of neighbor Steve Oppermann and won the National Public Lins Golf Championship 1 up.

The 18-year-old Lunn's final margin over Oppermann, 21, of South San Francisco, in the final analysis came at the 24th hole of the 36-hole showdown when Oppermann missed a 12-inch putt.

Lunn never trailed in the match over the 6,702-yard, par 36-36—72 Haggin Oaks golf course but four times Oppermann pulled even and Lunn could not cinch the victory until he dropped a four-foot putt for a par at the 36th.

Lunn played the morning round in even par, parred the first nine holes in the afternoon, and slipped only one over par on the final nine holes.

Only twice did Lunn win holes with birdies. But seven times Oppermann lost holes by bogeying.

Lunn was 2-up at the lunch break, but lost the 19th hole when he three-putted.

Oppermann missed an eight-footer at the 20th and drove into trees on the 21st, bogeying and losing both times.

Oppermann's desperate rally began at the 26th hole when he dropped a 12-foot putt to match Lunn's birdie.

A 300-yard drive and sensational three-iron shot to the par-5 30th hole gave Oppermann a birdie, and he moved within one hole when Lunn missed a four-foot putt at the 33rd. But from then on Oppermann had no chance. He needed a 15-foot putt to halve the 34th and recovered from a poor drive to halve the 35th.

Lunn hit the par 4 18th green, and Oppermann was on the fringe. Lunn putted short his first time, but then, with 3,000 fans ringing the green, put his second into the cup.

SHOOT 8-UNDER 209'S

Trio Deadlocked In Hot Springs

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (UPI) — Mike Souchak, Rex Baxter Jr. and defending champion Al Johnston moved into a three-way tie Saturday for the third-round lead of the rain-splattered $25,000 Hot Springs Open golf tournament. All had 8-under-par 209s.

Souchak, the second round leaders, shot an even par 72. Baxter, who was a stroke behind Souchak Friday, had a 71. Johnston made up three strokes with a 69.

Four others were tied a stroke back at 209 heading into the final round Sunday. They were Bo Wininger, who had the day's best round with a 67; Dutch Harrison, Bob Goalby and Dave Hill.

Miller Barber, Harold Williams, Paul Bondeson and Harold Kneece were tied another stroke off the pace at 210. Barber had a 68 Saturday, Williams a 69 and Bondeson and Kneece 70s.

Souchak and Johnston, playing in the last threesome, birdied the 18th hole to tie the 208 already posted by Baxter.

Baxter started badly, taking a double-bogey on the par-e second hole. He managed only pars until he sank a three-foot birdie putt on No. 9.

He caught up with par with a 30-foot birdie putt on No. 10, and went one under when he sank a 15-footer for a bird on No. 12.

Dove Count Up In State

With Sam Hanna

Decline Reported Elsewhere

While doves may be losing ground in some parts of the United States, there doesn't seem to be any shortage of them around here.

Anywhere you go you see them, either feeding on the side of the roads or winging across a field.

And this is backed up by biologist Larry Soileau of the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission. Soileau, from Opelousas, was in Monroe for a few days heading up a dove study project.

"We have an increased dove population, according to our counts conducted from May 20 through June 10," Larry explained. "This, of course, is inconclusive since the doves are still nesting through September."

Since the U.S. Department of the Interior reported a three-year decline in other parts of the nation, it would be logical for some dove hunters in Louisiana to become concerned.

And it could very well be that a decline in other parts of the nation will have an effect on hunting in Louisiana, because doves migrate.

Larry pointed out that because Louisiana's dove population is on the upswing doesn't necessarily mean that Louisiana will have a better season this fall.

"Many doves killed in Louisiana migrate from the north," he said.

Louisiana home - grown doves, meantime, migrate south — some to South Louisiana, others to Texas and still others to Florida. Others stay at home.

The biologists know this because they trap doves, band them and follow their migration patterns. In fact a while back Chili Baur of Monroe was noted for having banded the most doves of any wildlife man in the country.

Louisiana is included in one section of the country, however, where the dove population has declined for the past three years, according to the U.S. Department of the Interior.

Because of this, the federal government has cut the bag limit from 12 to 10 for states in the eastern section, including Louisiana. It must be remembered that while the state commission reports an increase in doves in Louisiana, the dove is a migratory bird and therefore is taken into consideration under federal law.

In its framework handed down, the Interior Department provided 70 consecutive half days for Louisiana, or split seasons of not more than three periods totaling 70 half days.

The Interior Department cut the framework to 60 half days for states in its central management area, but did not change the framework for the western area.

It's unfortunate that a decline in the dove population has been noted, but a bag limit of 10 doves is enough for any hunter.

Federation Membership Up

Membership in the Louisiana Wildlife Federation, according to president Lloyd Voorhees of Monroe, is on the increase, but Lloyd says there's still much to be done.

When he became president last March 20th, the membership in the state-wide organization had dropped off to about 6,500, or the lowest in sometime.

Since then Lloyd has driven about 3,800 miles in Louisiana for meetings with various groups of sportsmen in an effort to create more interest in the federation.

And apparently Lloyd's work is paying off for the federation. He reports that the membership has "increased considerably."

New clubs have been organized at Marksville, Iota and Union Parish while the Lincoln Widlife Unit has been reactivated under president Ernest Shaw.

Lincoln, in fact, has moved the Ouachita Wildlife Unit out of first place in membership, reporting a total now of more than 500 members. The Lincoln club is the biggest in Louisiana.

Voorhees, taking a couple of days of his vacation, will go to Norco and New Orleans the latter part of this month to meet with groups down there.

This is what it take.

Within our own association with the federation, the federation was strongest when Lloyd Amedee of New Orleans was president. Amedee had a job that took him all over the state, giving him an opportunity to visit with the different clubs.

Voorhees is doing much the same, but more so on his own time. He's doing a good job.

Lake Louie Meeting

A meeting regarding fishing conditions in Loke Louie will be held Friday, July 26, at 7 p.m. at the Sicily Island School in Sicily Island.

Fishermen in the Sicily Island-Winnsboro area have been invited to meet with representatives of the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission, plus lawmakers from that section.

Mark Butler, a Winnsboro fisherman, and Bruce Edmons, a member of the Catahoula Parish Police Jury, asked for the meeting.

Mark says fishing in Louie is not what it should be. He said the meeting was called in hopes of improving the fishing.

So if you're interested, it's yours for the going.

Improved Waterfowl Conditions

For the first time since we can't remember when, the U.S. Department of the Interior reports that waterfowl nesting conditions are improved generally.

But — this pertains to the tri-state area of North Dakota, South Dakota and western Minnesota. The department says Canada's grassland areas of southern Alberta and southern Saskatchewan are still suffering from a drought that has plagued the prairie pothole country several seasons.

The report said:

"Throughout the primary breeding grounds in the Prairie Provinces of Canada, the distribution of birds was spotty in response to nesting conditions. Where conditions were good, ducks were present in increased numbers."

At the present, a Louisiana delegation, including representatives of the Wild Life & Fisheries Commission and federation, is in Candada conducting a survey of conditions.

It'll be interesting to see what they report when they come back home.

Little Man's Corner

Fishing has been good and that of course means the little men are making news afield.

Two local anglers, Mark Mahan and Charley Shambro, are catching bass in Black Bayou. They're fishing with the black and white Bomber and the plastic worms.

But the new self-acclaimed King, Bob Downing, says he's been having trouble lately catching bass. We haven't heard anything out of the other fellow who claims the Throne, John Elmendorff.

Meantime, fishermen from other places are having luck. Bill Butler of Winnsboro caught the limit of bream in Lake St. John.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hankins, who live on St. John, and Jim Johnson, also from the lake, caught the limit of bream also. So did Mrs. Louise Lee.

Still from Lake St. John, Pete Boykin, Scooter Browning and N. J. Wall landed the limit of bream on worms in Old River Lake near Vidalia.

Reno Hall of Vidalia landed the limit of bass at Deer Park. And catching the limit of bass in Lake Concoridia were Dewey Roe, and Bill and Al Strickland, all of Ferriday.

Bob Dearing of Vidalia got the limit there too. And so did James Waycaster of Ferriday. As did Mrs. Rip Collins of Ferriday.

In the Lake Providence area, Charley King of Lake Providence landed 12 bass at Gassoway, but lost as many. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Wells of Transylvania had a good trip with catfish and white perch in the River Chute.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Foutz of Lake Providence had a good fishing trip at Lake Concordia while Mr. and Mrs. Alvie Lambert of Delhi landed 50 white perch.

Pirates Stop Houston, 3-0; Law Pitching

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Backed by a pair of home runs by Donn Clendenon, Vern Law went the distance for the first time this season as the Pittsburgh Pirates shut out the Houston Colts 3-0 Saturday.

Law, hampered by a series of injuries since he led the Pirates into the 1960 World Series, scattered six singles, struck out two and walked just one man to pick up his fourth victory against three losses.

Former Champ Takes Western; Defeats Kansas

The 36-hold match at the Broadmoor course was decided when Miss Ashley's 15-inch putt rimmed the cup and bounced out on the final hole.

Miss McIntire, who operates the golf shop at the Broadmoor course, was 2 over par, firing only one birdie in the final round. Miss Ashley three-putted a total of 11 greens and came in 13 over par.

Barbara won the Western Amateur crown once before, in 1958, and was national amateur titlist a year later. She came here several years ago from Hollywood, Fla.

Miss Ashley ousted defending champion Carol Sorenson of Janesville, Wis. in the quarterfinals. She was a member of the Curtis Cup team last year and was runnerup in the National Amateur in 1960.

FOOTBALL NEARLY HERE

Grid 'Spring Training' Started In Pro Camps

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Hang up the fly swatter and throw away the bug bomb—the football season is just around the corner.

The "spring training" phase of pro football already is underway in many camps. By July 25 all of the clubs in both professional leagues will be hard at work.

Vince Lombardi must do a little patching and filling to close the gaps at Green Bay left by Paul Hornung's suspension and the trading of Bill Quinlan. The Packers will be shooting for a third straight National Football League title, a feat never accomplished since the conference playoff system was inaugurated in 1933.

Kansas City inherited not only a franchise, but the defending champions in the American Football League when the Dallas Texans moved into town and became the Kansas City Chiefs.

The 14-club NFL opens its regular season the weekend of Sept. 15 and the eight-club AFL gets underway a week earlier, Sept. 8. But the first of the exhibitions—or pre-season games as the leagues prefer to call them—will be played Friday, Aug. 2, at Chicago when the Packers meet the College All-Stars.

The Chicago game has an important bearing on the training program of most of the teams in both leagues. Because the college stars are working together for their own game, they miss early practice with the pro teams. Some of the clubs called their rookie backs, especially the quarterbacks, into town early for a few weeks of briefing in the coaching staffs.

In the NFL, the Western Conference clubs will be working on plans to stop the Packers, who will train at West DePere, Wis. Detroit, training at Bloomfield Hills, Mich., must come up with a defensive tackle to replace Alex Karras, who was suspended indefinitely with Hornung as a result of the investigation of betting by players.

The Packers hope to plug the gap at defensive left end with rookies Dave Robinson of Penn State and Tony Liscio of Tulsa. The Lions think they can tighten their offensive line with Daryl Sanders of Ohio State and Roy Williams of the University of Pacific. Either Floyd Peters, former Cleveland Brown, or reserve Mike Bundra is due to replace Karras.

The Chicago Bears, working at Rensselaer, Ind., expect to be in the thick of the race if they can avoid injuries. Rookie receiver Bob Jencks of Miami of Ohio and tackle Steve Barnett of Oregon are the top new men.

Baltimore will have new coach Don Shula cracking the whip at Westminster, Md., where the Colts hope John Mackey of Syracuse may be the answer to their fullback problem. Bob Vogel, top draft choice from Ohio State, should help the offensive line.

The San Francisco 49ers, at St. Mary's, Calif., will take a good look at Kermit Alexander of UCLA either at defense or as a running back to team with J. D. Smith. The Minnesota Vikings at Bemidji, Minn., have high hopes for newcomers Ray Poage of Texas, Paul Flatley of Northwestern and Ron VanderKelen of Wisconsin.

Harland Svare, starting his first full year as coach of the Los Angeles Rams, will have his work cut out for him at the Orange, Calif., camp. The big name rookie is quarterback Terry Baker of Oregon State.

In the Eastern Conference, once again it will be all out to beat the New York Giants, who have won the division title two years in a row. They open their rookie camp Monday at Fairfield, Conn., with all eyes on the quarterback of the future, Glynn Griffing of Mississippi.

Pittsburgh probably will take a good look at Bill Nelsen, the Southern California quarterback, at the Steelers' camp in West Liberty, W. Va., where another big problem is replacing the late Big Daddy Lipscomb.

Blanton Collier opens a new regime with the Cleveland Browns at Hiram, Ohio, with the job of replacing Jim Ray Smith at guard the late Don Fleming in the defensive backfield plus finding a back to run with Jimmy Brown. Top rookie is end Tom Hutchinson of Kentucky.

Washington opens its camp at Carlisle, Pa., with optimism over the future of the prize rookie end Pat Richter from Wisconsin. Dallas, at Thousand Oaks, Calif., thinks it has some fine prospects in Lee Roy Jordan of Alabama, Jim Price of Auburn, and quarterback Sonny Gibbs of Texas Christian.

The St. Louis Cardinals return to Lake Forest, Ill., hopeful that Jerry Stovall of Louisiana State and Don Brumm of Purdue will provide new strength. Philadelphia, at Hershey, Pa. expects help from rookie Ray Mansfield of Washington.

In the AFL, the New York Jets, with new coach Weeb Ewbank, already are at work in Peekskill, N.Y., trying to make up for the fact that it was left out of the player draft last year because the previous owner had the financial shorts.

The Houston Oilers, Eastern Division winners last year, are at Colorado Springs, Colo., for their pre-season conditioning with their No. 1 draftee, Danny Brabham of Arkansas, in the fold. The Boston Patriots open camp Monday at Andover, Mass., and the Buffalo Bills, who fared well in the draft with Daryle Lamonica of Notre Dame, Dave Behrman of Michigan State, Jim Dunaway of Mississippi and George Saimes of Michigan State on their roster, don't get started until July 22 at Blasdell, N.Y.

Red Mainland Said Invaded By Nationalists

TAIPEI, Formosa (UPI) —The official newspaper Central Daily News claimed Saturday that Nationalist Chinese guerrillas invading the Communist mainland set off a peasant revolt and a prison uprising that freed 2,000 inmates.

The Nationalist government had no immediate comment, but it has announced a campaign of guerrilla raids similar to the one described in the newspaper.

The newspaper published an account of the fighting by a guerrilla it identified as Mai. It said Mai has now returned to this nationalist island.

Mai said the raiders landed last month near Chungshan, in Kwangtung province opposite Hong Kong. They reached Communist coastal waters in a motorized junk, then headed for the beach in three motorboats.

Mai said three Communist gunboats intercepted the raiders but heavy fire, including a rocket launching, kept the Communists back.

Mai said the nationalists ran into no further resistance because the Communists on the shore had their hands full with the peasant uprising, which he said began after the exchange of fire among the boats.

He did not say how many peasants were involved or give the size of the invading party. But the two forces joined up, he said, and went into a nearby mountainous area under the leadership of the nationalist guerrilla commander.

NEW OUACHITA BANK BRANCH

Open House Set This Afternoon

J. P. Mosley, assistant cashier of The Ouachita National Bank, has been appointed manager of the bank's Northside Office it was announced Saturday by R. L. Vanderpool, Jr., president.

The formal opening of the branch office will be held today from 1:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m., Vanderpool added. The branch will open for business on Monday, July 15.

Mosley has been associated with the Ouachita National Bank since 1955. He is a graduate of Northeast Louisiana State College and a veteran of eight years naval service. Mosley was elected assistant cashier of the bank in 1962 and has been serving as assistant manager of the bank's Jackson Street office. He is married to the former Margie Wink of West Monroe. He is a member of the First Baptist Church and the Optimist Club of Greater Monroe.

The building, located at the corner of North Eighteenth and Hudson Lane, was designed by Johns & Neel Architects and erected by Breck Construction Company, Inc. The building features two Bay-type drive in windows with two-way loud speakers, five interior teller windows, night depository and safe deposit boxes. The building also contains two private offices, two coupon booths, a vault of 12" reinforced concrete protected by 1½" steel door, an employees lounge, and adequate storage space.

Unusual tile effects are a distinguishing feature of the building. The entire vault is covered with Mosaic tile and the roof is outlined by a light aqua tile fascia. Extensive use is made of glass throughout the structure and a very pleasing lighting effect is created by the use of numerous incandescent and flourescent bulbs within the building as well as landscape lights surrounding the building. Automatic timing devices control the lighting effects at night. The all concrete parking area contains 28 parking spaces of which five are completely covered.

Other members of the staff of the new office will be tellers Bobby Joe Jackson, Mavis Ainsworth, and Suzanne Murphy.

Jackson, who has been with the bank for five years, is a graduate of Northeast Louisiana State College. His principal duties in the past have been as note teller in the main office. He is an army reserve captain, married and the father of one daughter.

Mavis Ainsworth has been employed in the bank statement department for two years. She is a native of Baskin and attended Humboldt State College in California.

Suzanne Murphy is a newcomer to the Ouachita National Bank having been employed at the College Town office for the past few months. She was born and reared in Iowa, Louisiana and attended Northeast Louisiana State College.

The new office will offer all services, including checking and savings accounts, safe deposit boxes, loans of all types, exchange money transfers, and collections.

MILITARY BUDGET

May Reflect Some Weapon Changes

WASHINGTON (AP)—The military budget for the next fiscal year, now under preparation in the Pentagon, may begin to reflect some of the expected major changes in weapons and the over-all defense program.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara told a news conference last week "I think in some areas we must continue to increase" but added he beleives the size of defense budget will level off or perhaps decline in subsequent years.

This presumably means that McNamara intends to provide for possible boosts in some weapons systems development or production programs by trimming in other programs and by his cost-reduction program.

He insists that no reduction in over-all combat power of the U.S. military is contemplated, that the firepower of strategic and tactical forces will be maintained at high level.

McNamara now is beginning to receive from the services and from his own office proposed changes in the five-year program which is revised annually as each yearly budget is submitted.

In his news conference, McNamara did not specify the areas of the military budget in which he thinks there must be increases. But some of them are being suggested in requests by the armed forces, in testimony given for the current fiscal 1964 budget and by general trends in technology and weaponry.

One proposal being handed McNamara comes from the North American Air Defense Command, for a new design of interceptor capable of intercepting or inspecting future airliners—or bombers—which would fly faster than most interceptor planes in the present Air Force or Navy inventory.

McNamara himself has mentioned a research program looking toward a new, advanced design of an intercontinental ballistic missile. This presumably would be intended for carrying more powerful warheads with the same or perhaps smaller boosters and include refinement in accuracy.

A step-up is possible in anti-missile projects, with increased spending on the Nike-X weapon system which is a developmental outgrowth of the Armys' Nike Zeus program.

More funds quite possibly will go into military space work. In manned space vehicle research, the Pentagon now has joined with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration in the Gemini program. This will be in addition to the Defense Department Air Force's own X20 orbiting program.

MRS. STANTON E. HUEY JR.

S. E. Huey Jr., Bride On Nassau Wedding Trip

The Union Church of Newellton was scene of the wedding of Miss Margaret Moore and Stanton Ennes Huey Jr., which was solemnized Friday, July 5 at 7 p.m. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. E. Pickens of Ferriday, assisted by Rev. Paul Snellgrove of Newellton.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. J. Dudley Moore and the late Mr. Moore of Newellton and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Stanton Ennes Huey of Monroe.

Mrs. W. B. Netterville presented a concert of nuptial music and John Arnold and Donald Newton, both of Monroe, lighted cathedral tapers in wrought iron candelabra, flanking a lighted cross of antique brass banked with emerald foliage. White iron lace baskets on wrought iron pedestals holding fan shaped arrangements of white majestic and Killian daisies framed the satin prie dieu where the couple exchanged vows. Standards of cathedral tapers were placed on either side of the wedding party and the aisles were marked with bows of white satin and maline.

Miss Janice Parker of Monroe presented two vocal selections preceding the ceremony and sang The Lord's Prayer as a benediction.

Miss Martha Louise Netterville served as maid of honor. She wore a gown of daffodil silk organza featuring a plaited bell skirt, and fitted bodice, embroidered with seed pearls. Her headdress was a double bow of matching organza with face veil of illusion and she carried a crescent bouquet of killian daisies tied with daffodil maline and taffeta ribbons. Bridesmaids, Misses Mary Amelia Moore and Dorothy Moore, Newellton, sisters of the bride, were dressed identically to the honor attendant and carried harmonizing bouquets.

Markley Huey, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. Groomsmen-ushers were John Arnold and Donald Newton of Monroe and Thomas Chumney of San Antonio, Texas, cousin of the groom.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Moore wore a lace sheath of Windsor blue over matching summer satin. She wore a hat of matching material with halo veil, matching satin slippers and a mauve cymbidium orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Huey wore a gown of muted pink linen with matching slippers. Her white linen hat was an open circlet with halo veil and her corsage was a white cymbidium orchid.

RECEPTION

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the social rooms of the church. Presiding at the registry table was Miss Betty Grooms, of Dallas, Texas, cousin of the bride. A mass arrangement of white chysanthemums and white maline flanked by white tapers in silver candelabra centered the linen-covered bride's table. Mrs. David Groome of Greenville, Miss., served the tiered wedding cake and Mrs. Truly Parker of Newellton, presided at the punch bowl.

Misses Susan Poe of New Orleans and Georgine Lawley of Newellton distributed yellow rice bags from a table centered with a yellow maline rice bag tree. Other members of the house party were Mrs. Dorothy Aly, Mrs. Benjamin Burnside, Mrs. Frank Burnside, Miss Amanda Burnside, Miss Carolyn Wallace of Newellton, Mrs. John Ensminger and Mrs. Marcus Mapp of Monroe and Mrs. Clifford Berry of St. Joseph.

Summer Jewelry Big And Bold

Summer fashion is colorful but very simple. Skimmer dresses and jersey shifts key the mood. So jewelry must be big and bold to make the necessary accent point.

The coolest way to wear summer jewelry is in pins and earrings, leaving off necklaces and bracelets, which are likely to result in a cluttered, therefore hot, look. The favorite pin theme this year is nature itself, in motifs ranging from turquoise owls through rainbow-hued fish to flowers so like real ones you have to touch them to find out they're enameled.

Look for dazzling parakeets, dogwood blossoms, rosebuds with one diamond dewdrop, desert flowers with topaz centers. Look for golden conch shells, rhinestone-paved starfish, pink glass flowers.

Children have the choice of sleek, tapered styles in gleaming patents, or squarish, countrified shoes in rugged suedes and leathers.

A style-hep Pop is expected to shine up to waxy finished leathers in casuals, cordovan-types in dress shoes, and even orange leather golf shoes.

Summer is for children. Whether off to camp, house-guesting with relatives, playing baseball, going to the library, or just amusing themselves around home, young people find activity for every hour of long, hot summer days.

Waldemar campers leave tomorrow for six weeks at the Texas camp. ANNA SLAGLE is taking fifteen girls down by chartered bus. This past Friday morning, CLARICE Johns invited the group, with their mothers, for a get-acquainted party at her home. Waldemar colors of orange, purple, and green, were carried out in the use of marigold, lariope, and foliage on the table, where bottled soft drinks were served with miniature doughnuts.

Luncheon at noon honored PAM CLAY, who leaves for Waldemar tomorrow and who is to go direct to her family's new home in Ohio when camp is over. Pam has been staying here with her relatives, PEGGY and JOHN CLAY, since her parents, the BOB CLAYS, left town.

Friday's party was held at Bayou DeSiard country club with Peggy as hostess. The green-covered table was centered with a wicker travelling bag filled with orange zinnias and tiny camp figures. Ten girls enjoyed a luncheon of chicken a la king in patty shells, and salad of fresh fruit with melon balls.

Later Friday afternoon, JIBBY FOX entertained with a patio party at the home of IRENE and JOHN FOX. CARROLL HUSTED and JENNIFER FRAZER who also leave for Waldemar tomorrow, were named honor guests for this affair.

Jibby also carried out the Waldemar colors in her decorations, using purple asters in a green straw container placed on a gold straw mat. Green honeydew balls, orange cantaloupe, and purple ice cubes echoed the theme. Goodies served to about thirty-five girls included bottled soft drinks, chicken salad sandwiches, cheese bites, and fudge cakes.

Young miss DEBORAH MADDEN celebrated her fourth birthday with a treasure hunt Wednesday morning at home. Each of eight little guests received a sack marked with his name to hold favors hidden about the yard. Refreshments were ice cream and cake.

A swimming party honored MARK ANDERSON on his seventh birthday Wednesday. This party, attended by twenty-eight boys and girls, was held at Bayou DeSiard country club. After swimming, supper of hamburgers and birthday cake was served. The cake, decorated with a baseball diamond and players, centered the table with its red - checked cloth . . . Special guests for this party were Mark's cousins, MIKE and TOMMY BARKER, here from Shreveport visiting the Andersons.

Also visiting the Kent Andersons this week was DR. RAMONA CORMIER, formerly of Monroe. She left on Friday to return to the University of Tennessee, where she is an assistant professor. BETTY MOORE was hostess at luncheon on Wednesday for Ramona and Yvonne.

On her fourth birthday, Wednesday, LAURIE BUNN was honored with a party in the Jade room at the Paragon. Large balloons of various shapes covered the walls and hung from the ceiling of the party room. The birthday girl was wearing a party dress of white organdy with eyelet embroidery and a pink satin sash. A Cinderella doll which served as centerpiece on the refreshment table set the theme of the party. Cinderella's gold coach decorated the cake, which was served with punch and ice cream to twelve boys and girls.

Guests in the O. C. RODDEY home over the Fourth were the OTHA CHARLES RODDEYS, JR., and their children, HILDA, CHUCK, LEAH and ROBIN. They left early this week to return to their home in Dairien, Connecticut.

A newcomer to Monroe, DOROTHY BROWN, was named guest of honor for luncheon at Bayou DeSiard country club on Friday. Hostesses on this occasion was IRIS BROOKS and JANICE CALDWELL. Dorothy, with husband WAYMON BROWN, moved here recently from Shreveport. The table on the porch was covered with a yellow cloth and centered with a bouquet of white and yellow summer blossoms. The menu included melon ball cocktail, creamed chicken with Parmesan rice, and fresh strawberry parfait. There were fifteen guests.

Prior to their scheduled departure for North Carolina next week, the JACK MADDENS have been entertained at several farewell parties. On Tuesday evening, MAMIE and TOM SCOTT invited the Maddens and their children, CONRAD, BRENDA and DEBORAH for an outdoor supper party at the Scotts' bayou home. Others who shared this occasion were the JOHN MULLINS and their children, MIKE, LARRY, and MARTY; and TOM SCOTT and his fiancee, JANEY BARTET of Baton Rouge.

Boating and swimming were on the agenda for grown-ups and children. Later barbecued hamburgers were served in the yard, with help-yourself sundaes for the young people and pie for adults.

A late evening boat ride and supper party was the treat planned for July Fourth by CAROL and PAUL TENNIS, DORIS and SANDY STEPHENS, and SPEED BANCROFT. About twenty couples attended the party, which included boating, swimming, and dancing to the hi-fi on the upper deck. Late supper consisted of barbecued chicken, baked beans, and salad.

Due home today are a party of friends who have been weekending in the Ozarks. PAT and BILL RILEY JR., MARY ALICE and D. V. LOFLIN, DAN MOORE, CATHERINE and FRED COTTON went on Thursday to Lake Ouachita. The JOE DIXONS and FRED KINGS drove up yesterday to join the group.

This week we visited the new home of the MORT COOPERS at the corner of Forsythe avenue and Katherine street. Antique brick is used for construction of the Cooper home, with a veranda across the front. Here are turned posts and boards and battens construction painted a pale celadon green. Shutters are a darker, almost-black green.

In the entrance begins the quarry tile floor which continues into the family room straight ahead and the kitchen beyond. Walls in the entrance have wainscotting painted a pale celadon, with green silk above. A green ladder-back chair stands beside the fruitwood console.

Three bedrooms open from the hall to the left of the entrance. White walls and carpets are used in each, with variations in color in draperies and other appointments. Daughter CAROL's room, with antiqued white provincial furniture, has sheer lavender draperies and accents. Her white-tiled bath features lavender and purple towel and rug . . . In the master bedroom, colors are shades of blue on a white background, used for draperies, bedspread, and upholstered chairs . . . All bedroom closets have louvered floor-to-ceiling doors.

Straight ahead from the entrance is the family room, with its quarry tile floor and pecan panelling. The antique brick used in outside construction is repeated in the open fireplace. In this room are the piano, bookshelves, stereo, television, and comfortable day-to-day furniture. Draperies of a gold and brown print on natural linen pull across the windows which overlook a circular brick patio.

On past the family room is the family dining area and kitchen, also pannelled in pecan. Paper used above wainscotting and cabinets is a gold Williamsburg print on white grounds, with white curtains at the window. A hall from the kitchen leads past the utility area to Mort's home office. This small and efficient room, also panelled in pecan, has its private entrance to the carport.

Our poem today, quoted from Family Weekly, is by Dick Emmons, and entitled "The Saga of Billy Smith":

When Billy Smith was only three.
He knew what he was going to be:
He knew, without his parents' urgin',
That he would someday be a surgeon:
To prove it, Billy marched upstairs
And cut the legs off several chairs.
When Billy Smith had grown to four,
He knew what fate had put in store,
He knew deep down inside his chest
He'd be a gunslinger out West;
He took his gun and with precision
Slung it through the television.
When Billy Smith accomplished five,
He knew what trade would make him thrive;
He knew one day in early summer
That he was meant to be a plumber;
He battered pipes down in the basement
'Til water lapped against the casement.
When Billy Smith was thus concerned
With how his income would be earned,
His parents, whose careers were set,
Gave up their work with small regret:
The day that Billy Smith was six,
His folks were full-time lunatics.

MR. AND MRS. CLARENCE FRANK RYDEEN

Rydeen-Kenny Nuptials Read In Baptist Church

Baskets of white gladioli and white tapers in branched candelabra formed a setting in Highland Park Baptist Church, Monroe, for the wedding of Miss Gerry Kenny of this city and Clarence Frank Rydeen of Cape Canaveral. Rev. Edgar L. Wiggins performed the ceremony at 6:30 p. m. Friday, July 5.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Daurice Kenny and H. M. Kenny, both of Monroe and Mr. Rydeen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin F. Rydeen, Livingston, Montana.

Mrs. Philip Kulcke, organist, played appropriate nuptial selections and accompanied the soloist, Larry Kulcke, brother-in-law of the bride.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a floor length gown of white georgette. The skirt was defined by a billowing back pouf. Lace appliques embellished the basque bodice with bateau neckline and flared sleeves which formed a cape effect. Her circular tulle veil was held in place by a crown of pearls and iridescents and she carried a bouquet of white feathered carnations.

Mrs. Larry Kulcke, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a gown of georgette in deep aqua with matching georgette hat and shoes and carried a bouquet of carnations in pastel shades of pink, blue and white.

Malla Johnson of Fort Walton Beach, Florida, served as best man for Mr. Rydeen and ushers were Kenny Cagle and William Kenny, brother of the bride.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Kenny wore a gown of pink chiffon with matching pink hat and accessories. Her corsage was of feathered carnations.

Following the exchange of vows a reception was held in the church social room, where an all pink theme was carried out in the appointments. Pink carnations centered the bride's table where Miss Sherry Shepherd served pink punch and Miss Connie Simmons served the tiered wedding cake.

For a wedding trip to Florida the bride wore a yellow ensemble with matching accessories..

The bride graduated from Ouachita Parish high school and Northeast Louisiana State College with a B. S. in Medical Technology, and has been employed at St. Francis Hospital in Monroe and presently at DeKalb General Hospital in Atlanta, Georgia. She was formerly active in Little Theatre of Monroe. He attended Perkinston Junior College, Perkinston, Miss., University of Southern Mississippi at Hattiesburg and Florida State University at Tallahassee Fla. He has since worked with Douglas Aircraft in research and development on the Skybolt and presently is with RCA at Cape Canaveral.

Boots March On Autumn Fashion Scene

The knee-length boots were seen —and heard—in trend-setting designer collections of suits unwrapped during the 41st national press week sponsored by the New York Couture Group for 275 fashion scribes meeting here until Saturday.

The movement to boots, bound to draw cheers from the shoe polish makers, is expected to bring jeers from veteran girl watchers. But dame fashion has spoken. The gams go undercover. The suit without boots just won't be as fashion correct as the booted suit.

The trend afoot is a tip-off to the drawing boards of designers who keep us females well suited. The suits shown were casual, slouchy, relaxed, sportive, bulky, tweedy, nubby. They've taken on so many country airs, they tend to be homespun — to boot.

The nonchalant suits featured corduroy and fur vests, three-cornered scarves worn as babuskas, V-shaped cardigan necklines and knit turn-down collars.

MISS MARTHA JANE GODFREY

Loose Shift Seen In Fall Collection

The surprise of Anne Klein's fall collection for Junior Sophisticates as revealed in the national press week showing sponsored by the New York Couture Group, is her refusal to espouse the fitted shift, which is otherwise appearing to be the dominant fall dress. Anne's shifts are still loose, her belts often at the hipline, for a young swagger air.

Her jumper dresses look new, as a gray pin-stripe loose tunic jumper worn with a cream crepe shirt with cowl neckline. Her sports look has a checked doublet worn over a gray flannel turtleneck dress, the doublet bound in leather. She also has a district check Sherlock Holmes cape, leather-bound tweeds and tweeds combined with velvet.

Low-belted walking suits, straight double-breasted coats, a leopard and black cape coat worn over a leopard print shift, a red velvet middy blouse two-piece dress, are just a few of the ideas in this highly creative sports-with elegance collection.

The bride-elect has chosen Mrs. W. D. Godfery Jr., to serve as matron of honor. Bridesmaids will be Miss Joellyn Thompson and Miss Frances Robert.

MAKE-DOWN

The current trend to make up, is to make down. The 'in' look is a glowing, natural look achieved, of course, through artifice. The trick is to control a too-heavy hand, to use paler colors and thus have the make-up work for you instead of against you.

ANNOUNCEMENT is made today of the approaching marriage of Miss Kathryn Eldridge, daughter of Mrs. Herbert Prestridge of Crowville and the late Marvin Eldridge to A/3c Don Parker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Landis Parker of Crowville. The wedding will be solemnized August 9.

Glove Length Is Determined By Wearer

Which fashion editor do you read? Says one, wear elbow length gloves with sleeveless dresses. Says another, wear shorties. They look younger, smarter.

Like most things in fashion, glove length surely depends on the woman wearing it. The young girl with slender arms certainly looks more her charming age wearing wrist-length gloves with sleeveless dresses.

Petite Sizes To Be Called Young Elegants

Women hardly ever think of themselves as petite, and hardly ever come into the store and ask for a petite sized dress, claims Larry Aldrich, president of the New York Couture Group.

That is why he has changed the name of his labels in clothes for diminuitive women to "Young Elegants." He is trusting to clerks to recognize a petite figure, and to guide her accordingly, but without mentioning her minor size to the customer.

Daylily Society Has Supper At Clear Lake Home

An al fresco covered dish supper was held at their July meeting by members of the Dixieland Daylily Society Monday. Scene of the event was the lawn overlooking Clear Lake at the home of Mrs. Fred Cox. Co-hostesses were Mrs. J. D. Cartlidge and Mrs. Rowena Mulhearn.

Following the supper the group adjourned to the living room for a business session presided over by Mrs. Ruth Pylant. Focal point for the coffee table was an arrangement of daylilies.

Mrs. J. A. Kilpatrick, Mrs. Mulhearn, Mrs. Cox and Mrs. W. R. Gates gave reports on the national American Hemerocallis Society convention which they attended recently in Shreveport. Plans were made for member participation in the 1964 AHS meeting to be held in Valdosta, Georgia.

A round table discussion on fall planting and care of daylilies featured the evening's program.

Mrs. Eva Boughton was welcomed as a new member and guests present were Mrs. Betty Gunby and Mrs. Effie Garrison. Members attending were Mrs. Pylant, Mrs. Beulah Albright, Mrs. Cartlidge, Mrs. June Hill, Mrs. Wiley Roach Sr., Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Kilpatrick, Mrs. Cox, Mrs. J. G. Haynes Sr., Mrs. Warren McGee, Mrs. Mulhearn, Mrs. A. R. Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Clay and Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Gates.

FRESHEN CLOTHES

Fall and winter clothes, which are wrinkled and dull looking from summer storage, can be freshened in the automatic dryer, according to home economists. Tumble them in the dryer for a few minutes, using the "no heat" setting. The machine will remove most of the wrinkles and fluff the fabric. Best of all, musty odors and the smell of moth crystals will disappear.

YOUR PROBLEMS

Common Sense Should Guide Hem Lengths

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: As the owner of a neighborhood hardware store I would like to thank you, personally, for stimulating business.

Recently you published a letter in your column about a teenage girl who did a great deal of talking on the telephone. Her mother decided to put a 5 - minute time limit on her phone conversations. She bought an automatic egg timer and placed it by the telephone.

Since that letter appeared I have sold seven eggs timers to mothers of teenagers. Each mother told me she got the idea from Ann Landers' column.

One woman who came in to buy an egg timer bought a power lawn mower. Another woman paid her bill which was long overdue. My best wishes to you, Ann, and my thanks. — Happy Merchant

Dear Happy: You're welcome. But I do hope I made it clear that a mother who sets the egg timer at 5 minutes is a bit hard-boiled.

A 15 minute limit is more realistic and not unreasonable.

Dear Ann Landers: We are two teenage sisters who need your help. All our skirts are at least two inches longer than they should be. We've talked until we've run out of wind, but mom says the skirts are going to stay where they are and that's final.

We feel out of place with the other girls who appear so sharp in their short skirts. It's getting so we hate to go anyplace because we look like we just came over from the Old Country.

Almost every day mom quotes "what Ann Landers said" so we know she has respect for your opinion. Please be on our side. Thank you. — Long Skirted Sisters

Dear Sisters: Hem l e n g t h s should be guided to a degree by fashion trends. But common sense and good judgment is more important than any trend.

Each of us knows better than Trigere or Dior what our legs look like. If you gals want your hems above the knee I'm with your mother. A good length for teenagers is about two inches below the middle of the knee cap.

Confidential to DIRTY TRICK: Why expect your friends to judge you by your good intentions while you judge them on the basis of their behavior? It's awfully hard to read minds these days. Get with it, Kiddo.

To learn the booby - traps of teenage drinking, write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teenage Drinking," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

SAFEGUARD SWIM SUITS

Any swim suit will retain its new look and last longer if rinsed after each wearing and washed frequently. Otherwise, pool water, chemicals, sea water and sand will take their toll of the fabric. Many of the newer swim suits are made of Spandex and these launder beautifully; however never use a chlorine bleach.

Long-Waisted Figure Suited For Shift Style

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

Q: My fashion problem is one of fit. Although I'm a size 10, I'm exceptionally long - waisted and find myself buying a larger size for the waistline, then having to get alterations. Do you know of any make dress with longer waistlines?

A: This is difficult; most sizes are standardized measurements. Perhaps other readers may have suggestions. Meanwhile, look for shifts with waistlines undefined, or basque torso dresses, which are so long anyway that the waist is the whole body line. It's possible, in other words, to solve the problem by buying styles without waistline defined with seams, belts, etc.

Q. A woman friend and I are going to Hawaii in late July, taking in stops in Los Angeles and San Francisco. We are going by plane, so what would you suggest as a minimum wardrobe?

A: Make every piece count by having it go with other pieces. For instance, wear on the plane a light knit three-piece costume and carry summer all-weather coat in silk. Coat will do for evening, costume can be broken up to wear with other tops and skirts in your luggage, be a city costume for San Francisco. All pieces can be summery sportswear, because Hawaii and Los Angeles require only simple, informal clothes. Color coordinating will keep heavy things like shoes, handbags to a minimum.

As a minimum I would suggest two skirts, four tops, two dresses, one cocktail dress, one sweater jacket. If you aren't taking shorts, swimsuits, more pieces may be added. Three pairs of shoes: one day pair worn on plane, sandals and evening pumps in luggage.

Q: What clothes do I wear on the plane for a trip to Florida, and what is worn there?

A: Any summer - weight costume or tailored two - piece dress will do for the plane, with easy skirt for sitting. Florida clothes need be only sportswear separates, cocktail dresses for evening.

MISS MARGARET JAN BUSBY

Details Vary In Unchanged Silhouette

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

In an era when silhouettes remain relatively unchanged, women may get the feeling that it hardly pays to buy anything new. But a little observation proves that details now make all the difference.

The suit, for example, is new when its jacket is longer, even to tunic length, more fitted, has band-cuffed gathered sleeves. It's especially new if it looks like a pullover.

The dress is new if it is unbelted, long torso or high-waisted, has the same sleeves as suits, is a tunic.

Coats for day look sportive, in bathrobe or trench coat style. For dress they follow the high-waisted cut, but are looser than the skinny coats of the past year. Buttons are an important detail, being wood or leather on sportive coats, jewels on dress coats.

In costumes a coat and dress are newer than a jacket and dress, unless the jacket is tunic length, almost a coat. Linings and dresses no longer match, thus enabling the two pieces to be used separately.

There is, in general, a strong feeling for line, plus one or two definite accents. The look is unfussy, but too strong to be dismissed as "classic." It's likely to be either very country or very elegant.

SPORTIVE LOOK

The new "sportive" look features vests, long sleeved shirts, skirts and jackets, lots of tweeds and cable - knit stockings which call for low stacked heels.

Miss Busby To Marry Phil Corder

Engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Margaret Jan Busby to Phil M. Corder of this city is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Busby of Chase. The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bonner Corder of Monroe.

The wedding will take place August 16 at 6 p.m. in Chase Baptist Church with Rev. William O. Busby Jr. officiating.

Attending the bride will be Miss Doris Busby of Chase, as maid of honor; and Miss Sarah Sloan, Bastrop and Miss Cloy Lea Byrd, Ferriday, as bridesmaids.

Phares Corder will attend the bridegroom as best man and serving as ushers will be Doug Stedman, Alan Petty and James Jenkins.

Miss Busby will be a senior at Northeast Louisiana State College this fall. A graduate of Neville High school, Mr. Corder attended Northeast Louisiana State College where he was a senior when he entered military service. He is presently stationed at Fort Benning, Georgia.

Consider Face Shape, Age In Selecting Hat

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

Q. What is the right way to choose hats? I keep trying them on, but the first two or three horrify me so I give you.

A: Hats can horrify because they are so close to the face that they reveal every fault if they're the wrong ones for you. A self-analysis is in order, of face shape, features and age before trying on again. One kind of hat which flatters everybody is one of its infinite versions, is the turban.

Q: I'm always puzzled about what color shoes to wear with light colors other than beige. Pinks, oranges and yellows, even light green or blue, stymie me. Black and brown don't look right, but matching color is surely too jazzy by day.

A: Bone color, being a neutral like black, can be worn with almost anything. Otherwise, choose shoes in a darker color of the costume rather than in brown or black. Brown, however, does look well with pink, green or blue.

Q: You frequenly recommend separates for travel. Aren't they more suitable for young girls? I'm in my 50s, a size 12.

A: Separates are the same as other clothes, only in pieces for greater convenience of switching around. There are styles meant for women as well as styles meant for girls. Look in better departments for more mature separates.

Learn To Remember Through Association

By JOY MILLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Do names fall trippingly off your tongue while performing introductions, and do you never forget a face?

Do you always remember exactly where you parked your car?

Can you invariably go straight to where you laid your glasses or keys or sewing, hours before?

Then you need no advice from Dr. Bruno Furst and Lotte, a fellow memory instructor and his wife of 35 years.

But most of us belong to the masses of the great forgetful, those who depend on a recall that's ridiculous—we usually remember only trivia—and a string-around-the-finger technique that fails most of the time.

"Anyone can develop a good memory," says Dr. Furst. "Look at me. My very bad memory when I was a law student in Munich 50-some years ago was a classroom joke."

That's when he got interested in menemonics (the science of memory) and later was able to astound judges and sway juries with his impeccable recounting of testimony and previous rulings. An outspoken anti-Nazi, he came to this country in 1938 by way of the University of Prague, with an unforgetting wife, a phenomenal memory and practically no knowledge of English.

In the last 20 years, he has taught at least 25,000 absent-minded Americans—in his School of Memory, at adult education courses in Brooklyn College where he and his wife are instructors and at various business firms where he guides young executives in remembering names, price lists and sales talks.

His most recent venture is training the staff of New York's newest hotel, the Hilton, to be ingratiating by remembering everything about guests down to the choice between olive or lemon twist.

Kindly, balding Furst, who beams encouragingly at your every toddling step toward a grown-up memory, and who can recite every card in order after one riffling of the deck, thinks memory must be trained like muscle, and sneers gently at the thought that the mind can become overcrowded.

He has numerous systems of memory, but for those who would just like to be able to remember the names of newcomers at the garden club meeting, he recommends:

Make sure you hear the name. Ninety per cent of introductions are slurred, he says. If you don't hear it, ask again. It's flattering to the person you meet, because it sounds as if you really are interested.

Then repeat the name as often as you can in the ensuing conversation.

Form an association with the name. Mr. Black, black hair. If there is no meaning find a substitute. Barlow: bar, barely, barley. (Using the same first letter.)

Write the name down as soon as you can.

And while you courteously append his name to every sentence as you talk, study his face. The biggest reason you can't remember a face is that you really don't look at it.

After you do look, Furst likes you to apply his charts. They break down the features into various types. The FBI, he says, uses his charts but, you aren't likely to have access to these. So find outstanding features, just as if you were a cartoonist. Draw the face, on paper if it's available; if not, in your mind.

Then compare your drawing with the real person and correct it.

What about remembering where you park the car? The second you get out, form an association between the car and its location, connecting it with a drugstore, or a peculiar tree or a green shuttered house. It doesn't hurt to look at the street sign on the corner, either.

MISS DONNA SUE REED

September Vows Announced For Donna Sue Reed

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar M. Reed, 119 Thompson, West Monroe, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Donna Sue Reed to Wayne Mathis Oglesbee of Natchez. He is the son of Mrs. Marie Oglesbee, 1526 Bailey, West Monroe and James L. Oglesbee, Baton Rouge.

The wedding will be an event of Friday, September 13 in the chapel of First Baptist Church, West Monroe. Dr. Clifton Tennison will perform the ceremony at 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. Arlon Terrell has been chosen to serve as matron of honor and bridesmaids will be Miss Gail Oetgen and Miss Linda Averett. Serving as best man will be Lantis Oglesbee and ushers will include Arlon Terrell and Ricky Futch.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Womack, West Monroe and the late Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Reed, Perry, Iowa. Grandparents of the prospective bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Copeland, West Monroe and the late Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Oglesbee, Eros.

Both are graduates of West Monroe high school. After their marriage they will reside in Natchez, where Mr. Oglesbee is employed.

Compact Evening Gown Defines Lean Silhouette

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK

The high - waisted look was repeated in many collections. Some designers outdid the empire look, presenting what amounted to a bound - bosom top. Some skirts were slit ankle to knee.

Mrs. Kennedy's designer, Oleg Cassini, offered a full-length tennis dress — shaped like the usual tennis sweater, but reaching to the ankles and paved with white sequins.

In other designer collections, braid and jet combined to give a Spanish accent. Samples of other elegant touches: brocades, knee-deep in sapphire-like jewel embroidery; jackets twinkling with bearded fringe; dresses embroidered over-all.

Evening coats accompanied the most elegant and included floor-length satin, mohair, velvet, and matelasse. Some furs for evening also went to floor-length.

Highlights of collections featuring clothes which will be in stores by the end of the month:

—Hattie Carnegie drummed out the little nothing dress and introduced the "something" dress. These were fluid in line with exceptional use of the bias for arched curved insets.

The Carnegie suit silhouette: the plumb line. This was straight at the sides and back and accented the bosom ever so slightly in front.

—Originala unwrapped trench coats with such military detailing as raglan sleeves, welted seams, sleeve straps, epaulets, shirt fronts and lap seam shoulder yokes.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Sprig, Twig Gives Show

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

The Sprig and Twig Garden Club of Monroe presented the T.V. and Garden Center Program last Wednesday. The president, Mrs. W. M. Rasberry, and several of the club's members made seven outstanding designs.

The first, made by Mrs. Vernon Whitlock, featured roses with dusty miller in an alabasta compote container. The roses were light pink, buds at the top of the design, down into a deeper rose and larger blossoms at the base of the design. The dusty miller formed the over-all oval design for the roses used as filler. The rose foliage was used as the filler and added the contrast and background for the roses. It would be a beautiful design for the entrance hall table or buffet.

Mrs. B. L. Talton used iris foliage and calla lily foliage with the fantasy zinnias in a shallow footed bowl (olive green color). For interest in this design three of the iris leaves were knotted and placed to one side of the primary line (made of three tiered iris leaves). On the opposite side calla foliage was placed to form the left side of the asymmetrical triangle design. Three of these bright orange-red zinnias were placed within the primary line starting with the small bud type blossom down into a full flower at the base. This created a striking, modern design so suitable for today's home.

IRIS FOLIAGE

Mrs. R. F. Wilson used iris foliage for the primary placement in a dark green compote. This line was modified with variegated euonymus foliage. Euonymus also formed a filler throughout the design and formed a background for the golden "cut-and-comes" which filled in the triangle design. The color combination was quite effective — green and yellow made a very cheerful, longlasting design.

Mrs. Talton made a second design using the beautiful magnolia grandiflora bud (placed high in the design), next the half open bud lower, and the open blossom low in the design. The background line was established by using tiered yucca foliage. The lower part of the triangle was formed by placing three calla leaves to the lower right side. A rosette of magnolia leaves formed a background for the open magnolia blossom. The bowl for this design was a low green ceramic. Since it was shallow the water did not reach the stems adequately. This so often happens when a shallow bowl is used with a needle point holder. Mrs. Talton very cleverly remedied this by placing a piece of cotton over the stem of the magnolia into the water on both ends. This acted as a syphon and drew water over the holder—thus keeping the stems moist. This was such a cool looking design it would be perfect for the home now during these hot summer days.

DESIGN CONTAINER

Mrs. W. M. Rasberry used a ceramic "old fashioned" high top shoe that she had made herself for a container for her design. The triangular line was created by placing variegated euonymous in a plastic holder in the top of the shoe. "Cut and Comes" filled in this line — smaller buds starting at the top — down into the larger blossoms in the central part of the design. Very good gradation was achieved by doing this. This would be a good conversational design if used in the den, kitchen or family room.

For her second design Mrs. Rasberry made a miniature design using a very small brandy snifter for a container. Within this she placed a tiny design of miniature roses (fairy) rose red color. Just ideal for the "cheerful note" on the bed tray or the bed side table.

Mrs. Wilson made a second design for the show using canna foliage for the asymmetrical line in a black compote container. These leaves were furled and rolled to create interest. The primary vertical placement contained two tall narrow leaves. These formed a background for the red roses used within the over-all design. The roses were massed at the basic part of the triangle. It was a lovely complimentary color design. This arrangement would be so suitable for the church as well as the home to create dignity and color.

Thanks to these ladies of Sprig and Twig Garden Club for such a lovely program.

GATHER MATERIALS

Don't forget that this is the time to gather materials for those dried arrangements later on in the fall and winter. The cattails are in full bloom now. If you wait too long they will be over-matured and will shatter when pulled. To be sure this doesn't happen coat them with clear shellac after gathering them now. This seals in the tiny compact seeds. Don't forget our old stand-by — the dock. There is still some to gather. Most of it seems to have dried a deep brown. This should be pulled green —then dried upside down. Of course the borax and sand method can always be used to dry flowerheads most any time of the year. The best time to do this is when the blossom is in it's prime. There are quite a number of helpful books at the center available for your use giving valuable information about drying and curing plant materials.

Speaking of books — I found a beautiful book on my desk last Saturday when I arrived at work. The title is "The Romance of Shells — In Nature and Art" by Louise Travers. It was presented to the Fifth District lending library by Mrs. V. S. Garnett of Monroe.

It is one of the prettiest and most interesting books in our library collection. If you are a beachcomber and love the lure of the sea you will enjoy seeing this book. You will learn the many possibilities in using shells artistically in plaques, flower arrangements (called shell decoupage) by the author. Also, other shell craft and new worlds of art and nature of science, legend and history. So, if you go to the seashore this summer bring back a collection of shells and learn many ways to use them from this wonderful book. You may become another Aristotle or Leonardo da Vinci who designed a spiral stair after studying the structure of a snail shell. Or you may become inspired when you consider the contribution to the life of the world that the tiny shell has made.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Color Need Is Varied

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Filling up the landscape with flowering trees and shrubs is not a satisfactory answer to the labor problem because flowering trees and shrubs alone do not bloom long enough to satisfy our need for color and variety.

Only amongst the perennials and bulbs are we able to find the flowers and color which we demand. Here in the South, we have begun to develop gardens and landscapes that are both beautiful and easy to maintain by planting masses of bulbs and perennials in front of shrubs and under the trees.

TOUGH PERENNIALS

Tough perennials like the daylilies, the plantain - lilies (flukia or hosta), sedum spectabile, stokesia, salvia farinacea, the cone flowers, blazing stars, butterfly weed, red - hot pokers and bulbous plants like the red, pink and yellow spider - lilies (lycoris), sternbergias, colchicums, daffodils, hyacinths, blue-bells, snow - flakes and gladiolas — to name but a very few — can be maintained with a minimum of work for years and years in the same place.

In front of a background of broadleaf evergreens and flowering shrubs, masses of daylilies are a stunning sight. You can carry these masses right on into the woods, too, because daylilies will bloom in shade. When you plan a color scheme for a shrub, perennial and bulb garden, you have an almost unlimited range of colors and shapes to choose from. Only in the blues are we limited here in the South. This is why we are constantly on the lookout for lavender, violet and "blue" flowers in botanical gardens, nurseries and private collections of plants all over the world. There seem to be more blue flowers in the colder parts of the world and more violet and lavender ones in the tropics than we have here in the Temperate Zone.

BLUE PLUMBAGO

Fortunately, vitex will grow in most parts of the South. Along the coasts from Wilmington to "Corpus," blue plumbago from South Africa provides a bright pale blue that is the envy of gardeners from the Piedmont and mountains. New Orleans has its deep blue hardy morning glory (Ipomoea leari) and other sub - tropical wonders, but the rest of us must fill in with the annual heavenly-blue morning - glory.

Some kinds of California lilacs (Ceanothus) are hardy in the South, and the little so-called "blue - spirea" (Cariopteris) is hardy, but it is not very effective. For the most part, however, we can find near blues and blue in the new veronicas, the new stokesias (natives) salvia farinacea (native) and the other mints like salvia longifolia and the dazzling bright blue wild salvia azurea of the Gulf Coast and Texas.

As we have mentioned before, the South African agapanthuses, with their huge heads of violet blue flowers waving in the wind on long wands three to four feet long are the latest and most exciting new blue semi-bulbous perennials for the South. This year, some of the Northern as well as the Californian nurseries are offering them in their catalogues. Two that are proven to be hardy even in the North are agapanthus moore-anus and A. inapertus. As this is written, your columnist is admiring a four-foot-long scape of A. inapertus with a head of flowers six inches across.

Stamp News

Women fliers in the United States, striving for greater recognition in view of recent Soviet achievements, will be using the issuance of the Amelia Earhart stamp as a springboard for nationwide attention. The Earhart stamp will have its first day ceremonies at Atchison, Kan., on July 24.

The Ninety-Nines, an international organization of more than 1,700 licensed women pilots, will participate in the commemorative stamp celebration. As a tribute to Miss Earhart, who was their first president and who named them for the number of their charter members (99), are planning a "fly away" with the cooperation of the Federal

The seven charter members who have been flying continuously since the organization was founded in 1929 will take off at Dawn from Atchison on July 24. This "fly away" will spark a chain reaction that will blanket the capitals of America with official Ninety-Nine cachet covers.

The cost of these beautiful first day cachets will be $1 each. The entire proceeds received from the sale of these cachet covers will be turned over to the Ninety-Nines for the Amelia Earhart Scholarship Fund to further women's education in aviation.

Collectors who wish to receive such covers and at the same time help a noteworthy cause may send their money orders to Gimbels' Stamp Department in New York City or to the headquarters of the Ninety-Nines at 210 W. 55th St. in New York.

Jacques Minkus, who heads the Gimbels' Stamp Department, was asked by the Ninety-Nines to participate in this venture because of his cooperation with Amelia Earhart in the philatelic phase of her famous flights and because of his stampdepartments are located in cities all over the United States. Official flight covers can be purchased at any of the Minkus stamp departments until Aug. 3.

The Republic of China has issued a set of two new stamps commemorating the first anniversary of the "May Exodus" in which thousands of people escaped from Communist China to Formosa, seeking freedom and survival. The purpose of this issue, reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency, is to focus world attention on the people of Formosa and the evils of Communism.

One stamp shows a weeping girl who successfully escaped to Hong Kong, but was forcibly deported back to the Chinese mainland. The other stamp depicts a mass of refugees struggling to reach the border. Each stamp also features a silhouette of the Chinese mainland and the island of Formosa.

Great Britain has issued a two value set of stamps honoring its third National Nature Week. The design shows flowers with a bee hovering over them. At the top right-hand portion of the stamp there is a portrait of Queen Elizabeth in an oval.

INTERFAITH MOVE

TORONTO (AP) — Colin Venning is an officer of the Knights of Columbus who believes that interfaith understanding can be most effectively promoted by small groups working at the local level.

Since last fall he has been the moving force in a program designed to test this philosophy.

Venning and other members of the Roman Catholic organization have been guests at a synagogue, visited an Anglican parish and attended a meeting of the Muslin Society of Toronto.

In each case, they have learned about the practices of other religions.

THE SOLAR ECLIPSE of 1958 was a heavenly holiday for these Japanese schoolchildren of Hachijojima Island. They prepared the smoked glass in school to view the unusual sight. Today authorities don't consider smoked glass enough protection and warn of the danger to the eyes of viewing an eclipse without proper filter protection.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR

AP Newsfeatures

The solar eclipse, a heavenly display anticipated July 20 for a large area of America, is going to be a challenge for a great many camera fans. With many unknown factors, it is difficult to lay down exact rules, but here are a few suggestions for photographers gathered from past experiences.

First, we must emphasize again the warning against viewing the eclipse in any manner without proper filter protection. Such a filter shields the eyes not only against the visible rays of the sun but against the invisible ultraviolet and infrared rays which can damage eyes without warning.

VIEWING FILTER

A proper viewing filter can be made easily. Unwind a roll of film, exposing it to light. Develop it completely. Cut up the black negative into handy lengths. Put two thicknesses together and you'll have adequate protection for viewing directly or in front of the camera lens for framing the picture you are going to shoot.

For taking pictures, a different type of filter is needed for all phases of the eclipse except the moments of actual totality. You need neutral density gelatin filters of 5.00 strength. Two filters of lesser strength can be combined to make the 5.00 recommended. A deep orange or a red filter may be used with black and white films but only the neutral density filters can be used with color films.

During actual totality, which may last from one to two minutes, no filters are needed to take pictures. But continue to use the viewing filter if you are watching the proceedings.

ANCHOR CAMERAS

Cameras should be firmly anchored on a tripod. That eliminates the need of framing the view each time you press the button and it leaves your hand free to put on and remove filters as required. It also enables you to take multiple exposures on a still camera by uncovering and covering the lens at fixed intervals. Multiple exposures taken five minutes apart are recommended.

If you can possibly frame the picture by including a tree, church steeple, rooftop or television aerial, it will add visual interest. And the best vantage is a hilltop, rooftop or other point of elevation. Make allowance for the direction the sun is moving in framing the picture, especially in multiple exposures.

Use the longest telephoto lens on a still camera and the largest zoom position on a movie camera to get the biggest image possible. Set all cameras on the infinity mark. To protect the camera, if pointed at the sun for any length of time, shade it or cover it between exposures.

SUGGESTIONS

For the partial phases of the eclipse, with a 5.00 neutral density filter over the lens: With color films of from 25-32 ASA speed, shoot stills at 1-100 at f-5.6, movies at f-11. With films of ASA 64, close down one stop in each case. With films of 125-160 ASA, close down two stops. With Tri-X, Super Hypan, ASA 400-500, shoot at 1-100th at f-22.

During the minute or so of totality, no filters are needed to shoot pictures. Even a box camera can be pointed in the direction of the eclipse and an exposure made. The first few seconds of totality can be exposed on color films, 25-32 ASA, at 1-100 at f-4.5. Faster films can close down one or two stops more. Movie cameras can be set at f-8 in these first few seconds and opened up wide as full totality takes place then gradually closed down again. With this sort of maneuvering, a tripod is a must.

Camera fans who don't want to fuss with filters or risk their eyes, can still take eclipse pictures. They can photograph the interesting sidelights of the occurrence; people viewing the eclipse; around them in the wierd illumination; the dancing shadow bands or the "pinhole camera" images of the eclipsed sun which are formed on the ground from light filtering down through tree leaves. These are regular snapshot exposures according to the amount of light present.

DRAMA AND DEMON

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — A play about a church possessed by a demon, entitled "The Incumbus," was cited for the $1,000 first prize in Princeton Theological seminary's drama competition this year. The play was written by J. A. Greenhoe, of New Orleans, a former chemical engineer and now teaching drama at Dillard University.

Humanizing Structures Is Advised

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Modern living demands "humanized" buildings — structures that provide more than mere shelter, even highly refined shelter, structures adapted to serve their occupants and provide an environment fitting for the cultural progress of our time instead of homes with merely enough bathrooms and attached garages.

This is the opinion of a leading architect, D. Kenneth Sargent, dean of the school of architecture at Syracuse University and a member of one of the 100 largest architectural firms in the country.

NEEDS CITED

"There is little need for trick or the unique that does not contribute to meeting the needs of environment," Sargent said, urging that the building industry adopt an approach that will "humanize American homes" and make them meet the cultural and physical needs of all members of the family. "It is depressing," he said, "to see so many plans for housing calling today for the same kind of space and arrangement they did 25 years ago."

With the rate of progress today much more rapid than in previous decades, Sargent said, new challenges develop constantly for the architect, the contractor, the manufacturer and the craftsman.

"The goals of the construction industry must certainly be the production of better building combined with continued reduction in building costs," he said. "These are essential for the progress of the whole industry.

SERVICES

"We must improve our services — and improve them greatly — to meet the challenges of a growing population that will require — literally— building a second America in the next 40 years."

All too often, he warned, the building industry looks only at the brighter side of the picture, ignoring misuse of product and installation failures that, he said, cause much needless dollar waste each year. Greatly increased research, field testing and technical information must be applied to the industry at an accelerated rate.

Sargent is serving as a member of a joint committee of the American Institute of Architects and the Producers' Council that is preparing an ethical guide for the marketing of products for the building industry. In the guide he said, the committee hopes to define the opportunities and responsibilities of the architect, building, products manufacturer, contractor and subcontractor and craftsman.

Bright Child May Receive Poor Grades

By DAVID NYDICK

UPI Education Specialist

Occasionally an outstanding student may bring home unusually low grades on his report card. The child intentionally failed a test or missed answers. Don't be surprised. This unfortunately is a problem in some schools.

The basis of the problem is social pressure. The feeling is that other children will not be friendly with a good student. They will make him an outsider. This is strong pressure for any pupil.

This type of problem usually is started by students who are not doing well in their own school work. They are trying to build their own stature. The problem becomes serious when the better students do poorly so that they can be part of the group. It is important to teenagers to be liked.

RECOGNITION

Parents will not find it easy to recognize this problem. Their child will not readily admit he intentionally got poor grades. You will only be able to tell by observing an unusual drop in marks without an obvious reason. If you think this problem exists don't waste any time in getting it corrected.

There are various fators to be considered. It is not a minor difficulty for a child to work out. If he believes his acceptance depends upon being a poor student, there certainly can be an effect upon his grades.

As a parent you should have a talk with your child. Explain that such actions are wrong and not really the answer. The student who has the ability to be outstanding has a responsibility to himself and society to achieve at his best possible level.

AVOID BRAGGING

The question will arise as to how he can keep his friends. Perhaps he is partially at fault. He should not have a superior attitude because of his success as a student. He should not brag. Of course it is not something to be ashamed of or hide. It might also be explained that there is no great loss by not being a part of this type of group. This is fine if there are other groups for companionship.

The school should be made aware of this situation. This can be done through the school guidance counsellor or other school officials. Teachers can avoid making comparisons in the classroom.

Add Plants To Patio

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

Do you, Mrs. Gardener, have a patio that needs something to make it a bit more attractive, perhaps the addition of some plants. If so, then you may like to consider some large tubs made from old oil drums as containers. Use large plants around the patio because small plants are too insignificant to make a showing.

Some plants which you may consider are bamboo, pittosporum, Japanese yew, fatsia japonica, rice paper plant, Japanese plum and giant banana. These plants may remain out of doors during the winter and even though the foliage may be killed any from this group will come back in the spring. If you want fall color for the patio area consider the chrysanthemums, copper plant, geraniums, plumbago and the candle stick tree.

CUTTINGS

If you want to make some cuttings of your favorite plants, July and August are excellent months. Plants from which cuttings may be made are holly, viburnum, pittosporum, azalea, camellia, sasanqua and yellow jasmine.

Make the cuttings about five to six inches of tip growth, leaving two to four leaves on each cutting. Treat the base of each cutting with a root inducing hormone such as hormodin No. 1, No. 2 or No. 3 or rootone. Place cuttings in moist sand, vermilite or a mixture of both. Keep the bed damp and humidity as high as possible.

ROSES

In Louisiana normally, roses make vigorous growth during the spring and summer. A mid-August pruning is recommended if you want a fall bloom of top quality. This pruning should not be as severe as the winter pruning. Cut the canes of the more vigorous types to about 24 to 30 inches from the ground. Thin out some of the weak canes, and remove all dead or dying portions. An application of fertilizer high in nitrogen at the rate of one to two ounces per plant in August may be beneficial for light soils.

AZALEAS

If the leaves of your azaleas are yellowing and the veins remain dark green, the plant needs iron. Correct the deficiency by applying aluminum sulphate to the soil at the rate of one-fourth pound per square yard of soil surface. Broadcast the material. For a temporary correction, an application of ferrous sulfate can be sprayed on the leaves. The new chelated iron compounds are very good for correcting the deficiency.

HOME, GARDEN WEEK

Are you, Mrs. Homemaker, planning to attend the annual Home and Garden Week on the campus of LSU August 19-22. Our dean of LSU College of Agriculture, Dr. J. Norman Efferson, says that Home and Garden Week has two purposes. One purpose is to provide those attending with interesting and valuable information on recent developments in the arts of homemaking and gardening. The other is to afford them an opportunity to visit the state's largest institution of higher education and learn more about the services that the University offers to students on the campus and to all the people of the state.

LECTURES

Home and Garden Week lectures and demonstrations will be conducted by experts from the LSU faculty and staff and from other institutions and from business and industry. Topics will include Safety and health, family life, physical fitness, the family and leisure, style and quality in clothing, wills and property laws, home furnishings, and survival in the atomic ages. Garden topics will include use of native plants in landscaping, lawn care, flower arrangements, the world of birds, soil conservation and fertility, and rose growing.

All lectures and demonstrations will be held in air conditioned rooms. As usual there will be no charge for rooms but a registration fee of one-dollar will be charged to pay the cost of operating the air conditioning systems in the dormitories that would be closed down between summer school and the fall semester. So you, Mrs. Homemaker, will be housed in an air conditioned dormitory.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG

AP Newsfeatures

Water is the vital ingredient in the concrete mixture used for a patching job. It is also the vital ingredient in what is called the curing process, so necessary after the repair has been made.

Too much water in the mix will weaken the finished patch, although the concrete will appear to have hardened into a strong, solid mass. Too little water keeps the mixture from being workable; that is, the various components will not cling together properly.

If you buy one of the premixes, the instructions on the bag will tell you how much water to add. Be sure to follow them implicitly. Don't make a rough guess at how much a quart or a gallon is. If you mix the concrete, using the popular 1:2:3 proportion (one part portland cement, two parts sand and three parts gravel), five gallons of water for a sack of 90-pound cement usually is recommended. Some sacks give directions as to the amount of water. Some manufacturers avoid this, since less water is needed when wet sand is used.

In mixing concrete, run the tip of a trowel through it occasionally. The trowel should leave a smooth, even surface without any bumps when it is ready to be used.

CREVICES

There are some very small cracks in concrete that can be repaired with a mixture containing only portland cement and water. Generally, however, the crack should be enlarged along its entire length with a chisel and hammer before any mixture is applied. Making the crack wider at the bottom than at the top, known as undercutting, helps to keep the new mixture firmly in place. Be sure all debris and pieces of the old concrete have been removed from the opening before filling the area with the new concrete. When the mixture begins to set, usually in 20 or 30 minutes, smooth it down with a metal trowel or a wooden float. The trowel is used when you want a smooth surface, the float for a rough surface.

Curing the patch consists of wetting it down at least once a day for several days. This prevents the new concrete from drying out too fast. Concrete which dries out too quickly becomes flaky and powdery.

Why Grow Old

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

How are you doing? Are you allowing worry to cloud your days? Are you wasting energy by fretting over things which are not really important? So often we stew and fret and then something really serious happens to us. We look back and feel that we had no problems at all then. We are amazed that we were so upset.

Worry is a vicious habit and one which is difficult to break. Our habits of thought and our approach to life are as tenacious as habits in posture and food and drink; perhaps even more so.

Sometimes a poor state of health will lead to chronic apprehension. Many folks live in a state of fear. They worry about everything from what someone said about them to the welfare of their children. All the details of living become threats. Every minor problem in daily living assumes the proportion of a real crisis.

This is a terrible waste of energy and happiness. Such an attitude takes the joy out of living for the worrier and those around her or him. First be sure that your negative approach does not come from nervous exhaustion. Then try to do two things.

Face any problem you have. Do not hide your head in the sand or mull the question over for the rest of your life. Decide whether or not you can do anything to overcome the difficulty or to change the situation. If you can, act now. If you cannot, then adjust to it and do not wear yourself out worrying about something you can do nothing about. Folks sometimes spend a lifetime gnawing at some bone of contention or irritation.

One reader writes me now informing me that her main worry at the moment are those extra added inches on her hips. Well, no need to worry if you exercise properly. Try this exercise immediately.

Lie on your back with your arms out from the shoulder. Bend both knees up close to your abdomen. Hold them there as you roll from side to side. This is for the upper hipline.

If you would like to have my free leaflet, "Worry" send a stamped self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 64 to Josephine Lowman in care of Monroe Morning World.

Gibbs Cites Replacement CD Measure

Ouachita Parish Rep. Lawrence Gibbs started action Saturday in selecting seven persons capable of replacing him in the Legislature in case of a disaster in compliance with legislation recently passed calling for such action.

Gibbs said that under terms of Act 113 of the 1963 Legislative session, he as well as other lawmakers, are to appoint seven qualified residents of their parish or Senatorial District to replace them in Legislature should a disaster occur leaving the parish or District without representation in the Legislature. These seven names must be selected and their names filed with the Secretary of State, and from this list the governor will appoint a member to serve in the Legislature covering the period of disaster — such as atomic war.

Act 113 was Louisiana Legislature Senate Bill No. 34 by Senator Fruge which was introduced and passed in the Legislature and subsequently signed by Gov. Jimmy Davis.

Gibbs stated that he has asked seven organizations, representing seven different professions, to submit one name each to him for this purpose. He hopes to have the names within 10 days, and will forward the list to the Secretary of State.

The organizations requested to co-operate in this endeavor include the Ouachita Parish Medical Society, the legal profession, the Ouachita Parish School Teacher's Association, the City of Monroe School Teacher's Association, the Farm Bureau, the Central Trades and Labor Council, and the Ministerial Association of the Twin Cities.

At Least Three Die In Alabama

By United Press International

A car-train crash and two other traffic mishaps caused at least three accidental deaths in Alabama during the weekend.

State troopers said Melvin D. Reed, 24, of Lincoln, was killed when the car in which he was riding struck a freight train.

Davis Nelson, a milk deliveryman, was killed when his truck overturned while making his rounds in Roanoke early Saturday. Police said brakes on the vehicle apparently failed and it rolled backward down a steep hill and struck a power pole.

A SEVEN-FOOT, 225-pound black bear was killed Saturday in a Mandeville back yard. Mandeville is about 25 miles due north of New Orleans. Nicholas H. Dasch, who dropped the burly animal with one shot, said the bear had been bothering his honey bees. Two hives had been destroyed in previous raids. (AP Wirephoto)

Rail Strike Threat Hurts Market Climb

NEW YORK (AP)—The threat of an economy-crippling railroad strike lifted this week but the possibility of a paralysis continued to hang like a dark cloud on the horizon.

With only eight hours to go before the deadline, President Kenneyed persuaded the railroads to defer putting work rules in force and the unions to refrain from walking out.

Tension was heavy Wednesday as the hours ticked away toward the 12:01 a.m. Thursday deadline. The unions had turned down the President's proposal that the dispute be submitted to binding arbitration by Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg.

Shippers were figuring how they could route their goods without freight cars. Hundreds of thousands of commuters were trying to arrange others means of getting to their offices.

Shortly after 4 p.m. Wednesday the railroads and the unions agreed to a Kennedy proposal for a delay until July 29.

The President appointed a six-man labor - management panel, headed by Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz, to review the four-year-old railroad jobs dispute. It will submit its recommendations to Congress July 22.

"This nation faces widespread economic disruption, dislocation and distress unless this dispute is settled by other means" Kennedy sad. "I continue to believe that this controversy can and should be settled by voluntary and peaceful processes."

If Congress acts—perhaps to require arbitration—before the July 29 deadline there will be no strike.

But indications were that there were slim chances of clear sailing in Congress.

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, Senate Republican leader, said congressional Republicans would fight hard against any move for federal seizure of the railroads or compulsory arbitration. He predicted a long struggle.

On another sector of the labor-management front, a contract designed to set a pattern for the 750,000 Bell Telephone System employes in the United States and Canada was reached by the Michigan Bell Telephone Co. and the Communications Workers of America.

CWA President Joseph A. Beirne described the 38-month agreement as without precedent in the communications industry. It includes contract improvements amounting to about 20 cents an hour for the first 14 months of the contract with provisions for reopening wage negotiations in 1964 and 1965.

The Commerce Department reported that retail sales in June stayed at about the May level of $20.3 billion. Failure of sales to resume their climb in the last three months was surprising to some government economists.

Retailers, however, were optimistic about prospects for the second half of this year. A survey by the National Retail Merchants Association indicated that they expect sales to run 5 per cent ahead of a year earlier and profits to be up 10 per cent.

"Renewed confidence in the economic outlook was reflected throughout the survey," said J. Gordon Dakins, executive vice president of the association.

On the subject of the economy, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York reported early statistical returns for June indicated continued but moderate strength. It added that unemployment, particularly of teen-agers, continues as a problem.

Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges added an optimistic note by saying that a gross national product—total of all goods and services—of $600 billion annually was not out of reason for the fourth quarter. Earlier this year government economists estimated the 1963 GNP at $538 billion.

Automobile production boomed again this week with an estimated output of 161,600 passenger cars against 126,687 in the holiday-shortened previous week and $46,565 a year ago.

Production for the 1963 model year already exceeds the 6,687,000 for the entire 1962 model year and is nearing the record of 7.13 million 1955 models.

Steel production last week dropped to a five-month low, declining to 1,045,000 tons, or 11.6 per cent below the previous week.

Strong Monroe Doctrine Role Is Advocated

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI)— Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., Saturday advocated a stronger adherence to the Monroe Doctrine with respect to Castro and Cuba.

Stennis, addressing the 45th annual American Legion convention here, said "any further effort to introduce weapons and military forces into Cuba...will be regarded by us as an act of hostility..."

He said he was convinced it was "vital that we deal from a position of strength rather than one of weakness.

"The Cuban crisis last fall dramatically demonstrated how vital it is that we provide and maintain great military power," said Stennis. "It was only because we had powerful military forces—in being and combat ready—that we were able to call Khrushchev's hand."

He said, "we cannot co-exist with evil, nor can we rest easy with Communist tyranny and military might 90 miles from our shores."

Stennis told the group that he believed "if the Soviets had the intimate and detailed knowledge of our weaponry and retaliatory forces which is available to me, they would know beyond a shadow of a doubt that the provocation of a nuclear war would be nothing more nor less than an act of self-destruction."

Board Meeting Set To Discuss Weather Project

The board of directors of Northeast Louisiana Water Resources Corp. are planning a meeting within the week to discuss an extension project for the weather modification program, Fred Huenefeld Jr., president, said.

Directors will consider extending the rain - making operation from six months to one year and also will check finances of the program.

Huenefeld said the organization is still in process of fulfilling the fund raising program and emphasized that farmers who have not yet turned in their funds to send them to their respective county agents. "We need particular help in getting funds from the Delta area," he said.

Generators are still functioning in the entire district and have met with high successes. Bienville Parish farmers joined the project last week.

Eclipse To Be Seen Here Next Saturday

By JIMMY HATTEN
Staff Writer

Sometime next Saturday at locations on planet Earth, the sun, though high in the sky, will begin to blacken.

What is happening to the sun will be so dangerous that humans should not watch it directly. To do so would be to risk eye burns that may leave a blank spot in a person's field of vision.

The event will be an eclipse of the sun.

At some spots in the world, the eclipse, known as a solar eclipse because the moon will pass between the sun and the earth, will be total.

In the Ark-La-Miss., the moon will blot out 48.6 per cent of the sun at the height of the eclipse. In this area the eclipse will begin at 2:41 p.m. and end at 4:50 p.m. The maximum phase, or that phase in which 48.6 per cent of the sun will be covered, will be reached at 3:49 p.m.

NARROW PATH

Meanwhile, along a fairly narrow path across Japan, Alaska, Canada and Maine, the eclipse, as the Associated Press put it, "will be splendidly total."

The only other American localities where an almost total eclipse will occur are Boston, 94 per cent and New York, 89 per cent.

There is also a drop in temperatures, he said, since the sun's rays are blocked off.

Professor Powers said he wasn't sure whether or not animals react in a 50 per cent eclipse, such as will occur here.

Many who have tried them in the past have suffered eye injuries," the society reported.

EXPLAINING

These rays, when focused on the delicate retina of the eye, can cause harmful burns in much the same manner as a magnifying glass can focus the sun's rays on a piece of paper and burn it.

Because the retina is not sensitive to pain, the victim never realizes he has been harmed until it is too late.

Such burns of the retina are incurable, according to the society, and the victim will have a blank spot in his field of vision where the burn scar remains in the retina.

To do this, punch a round hole in the cardboard in order that the sun's rays are focused through the tiny hole onto a white surface. This results in a satisfactory image of the eclipse.

INFORMATION

But for scientists in general, the event will provide a wealth of information about the sun and its influence on weather, communications and the geomagnetic field.

According to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), this information may contribute to development of a means of forecasting solar hazards to space travelers.

From a scientific standpoint, NASA said, the eclipse "will be the most thoroughly observed in history.

U.S. astronaut M. Scott Carpenter will chase the moon's fast-moving shadow in a specially equipped jet laboratory plane in the neighborhood of Fort Providence, Canada.

Among observers with Carpenter will be Dr. Jocelyn R. Gill, NASA's manned space sciences astronomer. Gill will point out "various scientific details which astronauts may encounter in future space flights."

THIS PICTURE shows how in the past some persons have viewed a total eclipse of the sun. This man used a double thickness of black and white film which had been exposed and developed to mixiumum density. This is what some experts have advised. But the people who know — the Public Health Service says this is dangerous also; in fact, it advises not to look at it directly. If you do, eyes can be damaged irreparably. (AP Newsfeature Photo)

The aircraft will be almost eight miles up, high above the clouds and any weather disturbances.

ASSIGNMENT

Carpenter's special assignment will be an attempt to photograph the zodiacal light, a faint glow which seems to fill space between the sun and its planets.

Scientists believe it is the reflection of sunlight from dust particles and electrons dancing in space.

Other scientists on the plane will try to get the most extensive pictures yet taken of the sun's corona, the nearly white solar atmosphere which is visible only during total eclipses. The corona may fill planetary space as far as Jupiter, 483 million miles from the sun.

Meanwhile, on the ground, NASA scientists in Maine will try to photograph faint comets which may be in orbit near the sun.

The eclipse will be the first total one visible in parts of the United States since Jun 30, 1954, and the last one until March 7, 1970, when the eclpise will be total in Florida.

MAP SHOWS the extent to which the sun will be darkened in various parts of the United States during solar eclipse July 20. The eclipse will be total only in a fairly narrow path, about 60 miles wide, across Alaska, Canada and Maine. The eclipse will last about 100 seconds in northern Canada. Over Maine it will be a minute or less. (AP Wirephoto Map)

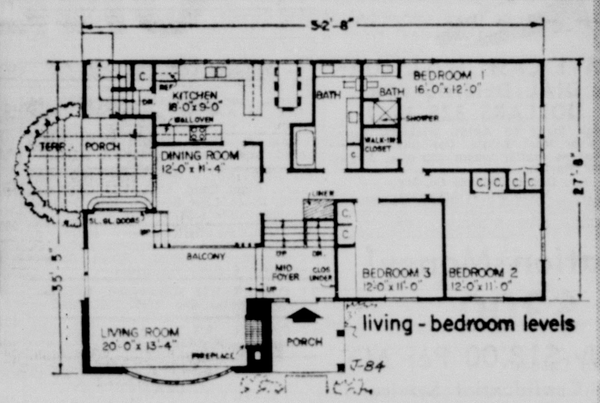
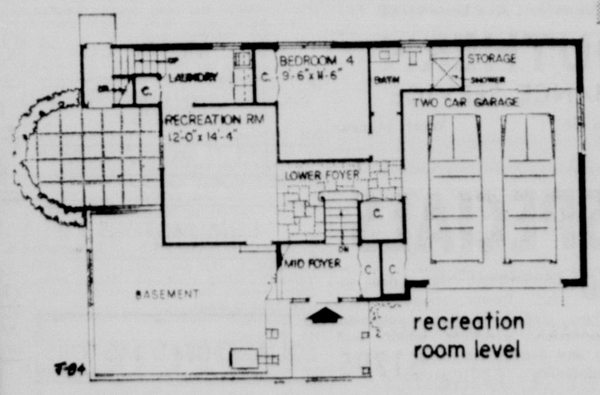
SOMETHING NEW: A gable-roofed wing, containing the living room, gives this bi-level home some of the flavor of a split-level. It contains three bedrooms on the main level, plus a fourth bedroom and third full bath on the bonus lower level.



"FLOATING" LIVING ROOM: The position of this living room is a sparkling innovation in bi-level design. It is two steps up from the foyer (at right, beyond the fireplace) and three steps below the dining room, separated by a balcony rail. Through the glass doors at left is a terrace-porch combination, enclosed on three sides.



FLOOR PLANS: The additional staircase in the rear improves traffic flow and saves steps for a housewife. House contains 1,532 square feet on the living and bedroom levels and 640 square feet on the recreation room level.

THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK

Gable Roof Bi-Level That's Different And Appealing

By JULES LOH

Just when you begin to believe the architects have thought of everything, along comes a brand new innovation that further refines an already established design.

Did you ever see a bi-level home with a gable-roofed wing? That's what today's House of the Week boasts—and the improvement on the inside is just as dramatic as on the outside.

In this house the living room, located in the gabled wing, is two steps up from the foyer and immediately visible when you step inside the front door.

There still is the usual bi-level stair arrangment—five steps up to the main level; five steps down to the lower level—but the side opening to the living room does away with the typical confinement and makes the foyer a gracious reception center. At the rear of the living room, in an ell, are the remaining three steps to the main level.

Both the exterior treatment and the welcome innovation inside give the house some of the flavor of a split-level, but the essential economies of a bi-level remain. Basically it still is a one-story house with the basement lifted out of the ground to make the cellar space habitable.

The architect of the handsome and somewhat revolutionary three (or four) bedroom home is Rudolph A. Matern whose ingenuity has long been established among homeowners. It is design J-84 in the House of the Week series.

The house contains only 1,532 square feet of living area on the main level, including the sunken living room. A bonus space of 640 square feet is on the lower level. Over-all dimensions are 52'8" wide by 27'6" deep.

The exterior is right up to the minute, but the gable gives it a distinctive colonial tone which insures its popularity for years to come. Architect Matern will send a 35-mm. photo of the original full color artist's drawing of the house free to anyone who asks. His address is on the J-84 study plan.

ADDITIONAL DETAILS

The "floating" position of the living room not only disposes of the deadly mid-level foyer problem but also helps the room itself. It is set apart, as a special place, which plainly adds to its formality.

The room is large (20' by 13'4"), has a grand fireplace in one corner, a huge bow window in front, sliding glass doors leading to the terrace porch two steps up, and a dramatic balcony separating it from the dining room.

Another excellent feature is the additional staircase in the left rear corner—in the housekeeping area where it is needed most. The stairs lead directly from the kitchen (and the terrace porch and backyard) to the downstairs laundry, and from there to the lower foyer. Thus you can go to the kitchen from any of the exterior entrances, including the front door and garage, without ever passing through the main living area.

The porch-terrace combination, enclosed on three sides, is another fine arrangement for those who like outdoor living but at the same time enjoy a little privacy.

Completely set apart in its own wing is the sleeping area, boasting three bedrooms of good proportions. The master bedroom has an adjoining private bath with stall shower. Closet space is excellent in all the rooms.

The main bathroom is ideally located to serve the daily living areas as well as the bedrooms. It is a true family bathroom, with two separate lavatories — not a single counter with twin sinks—and has closet space inside the room in addition to the linen closet across the hall.

A third full bath with shower is on the lower level, giving the fourth bedroom all the facilities needed to make it an ideal guest room or apartment for in-laws. Of course the lower level needn't be finished until the space is needed; and many a handy husband could do the work himself.

A full study of this architect-designed House of the Week may be obtained by writing THE HOSE OF THE WEEK c-o the Monroe Morning World, Monroe, La., and enclosing 50 cents to cover cost of handling and mailing. Please specify House Plan J-84.

West Monroe Rodeo Kicks Off Thursday

The West Monroe Rodeo, sponsored by the Northeast Louisiana Shrine Club, will open next Wednesday at 8 p.m. and extend through Saturday night.

Twin Cities Mayors Allen Norris of West Monroe and W. L. (Jack) Howard of Monroe have jointly proclaimed the week of July 15-20 as "Rodeo Week."

Tom Hadley of Ada, Okla., veteran rodeo announcer, will be emcee. Other attractions include Jim Eskew of Ardmore, Okla., World's Champion Trick Roper, and an Italian comedy team.

As one of the 500 - odd rodeos approved each year by the Rodeo Cowboys' Association, the West Monroe rodeo will be in the sport's major league, conducted under nationally recognized rules that assures top bucking stock in a hard-riding contest open to the best cowboys in the game.

Like all R.C.A. sanctioned, rodeos and the contest here will be built around the sport's standard events — saddle and bareback events — saddle and bareback bronc riding, calf roping, steer wrestling, and bull riding. Contestants will be competing for slices of $3,000 purse money put up by the rodeo committee, plus their own entry fees which will probably double the prize money payoff.

Rodeo livestock will be furnished by Tommy Steiner and Ralph Collier, both of Austin, Tex.

Prize money won here will be credited to the sport's world championship standings. National titles in rodeo are determined by the simple measure of who wins the most money during the almost year-round playing season. Competition culminates in December, with the game's title playoffs, the National Finals.

The finals entry roster is limited to the top 15 money winners in each event, their selection based on regular season winnigs. To test the competitive mettle of the Finalists, North America's top rodeo stock is screened for the roughest selection available.

A parade will be staged at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday, beginning at the Eureka Store parking lot on Commerce Street. The parade will move north on Trenton Street and proceed over the Highway 80 bridge to DeSiard Street by way of Walnut Street. It will disband at Five Points.

The parade marshals will be Paul Johnston and S. G. Nolan.

Cross Burned At Winnsboro

WINNSBORO (Special) — The charred remainder of a burned cross similar to a type used by the Ku Klux Klan was found on the lawn in front of a white resident's house here early Saturday morning, police here reported.

Neighbors said they saw the four-foot high cross burning about 10 p.m. Friday.

Police here said they were not notified Friday night of the cross burning, but reported seeing the charred remains on the lawn Saturday morning.

RUNS INTO OPPOSITION

HERTFORD, England (UPI) — The local government's plan to "shame" tenants of public housing projects into paying back rent by mailing them notices on red postcards has run into post office opposition.

"We cannot accept any color likely to strain the eyes of post office workers," an official said.

Area Oil Activity Shows Sharp Gain

Activity in the 15 parishes of the Monroe Oil and Gas District registered sharp gains last week, while fresh starts numbered 17 and four completions were recorded in three parishes.

The finals, which included two in Tensas Parish, also found one each in Catahoula and LaSalle, according to District Manager Duncan S. Cook.

Active rigs, drilling or testing in nine parishes, numbered 29, most of them coming in Tensas and LaSalle Parishes, which recorded six each. Ouachita, along with Rapides, had two working rigs wells, both drilling, one in the Cheniere Field, the other in the Cheniere Creek Field.

Other such rigs included five in Concordia Parish, three each in Franklin and Catahoula, and one each in Lincoln and Richland.

There were 17 new locations staked during the week in eight parishes. Ouachita and Catahoula had four each of them, Concordia had three, Morehouse two, and Rapides, Union, LaSalle and Tensas, one each.

The week's only recompletion occurred in LaSalle Parish, the West Catahoula Lake Field, and was Hunt Petroleum's Nebo Oil Company No. F-154 in section 34-7-3E at a depth of 4249 feet.

Fifteen wells were plugged and abandoned during the week: and the total on inactive sites stood at 84. Locations numbered 58; one permit expired.

Rail Strike Threat Hurts Market Climb

NEW YORK (AP)—The threat of an economy-crippling railroad strike lifted this week but the possibility of a paralysis continued to hang like a dark cloud on the horizon.

With only eight hours to go before the deadline, President Kenneyed persuaded the railroads to defer putting work rules in force and the unions to refrain from walking out.

Tension was heavy Wednesday as the hours ticked away toward the 12:01 a.m. Thursday deadline. The unions had turned down the President's proposal that the dispute be submitted to binding arbitration by Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg.

Shippers were figuring how they could route their goods without freight cars. Hundreds of thousands of commuters were trying to arrange others means of getting to their offices.

Shortly after 4 p.m. Wednesday the railroads and the unions agreed to a Kennedy proposal for a delay until July 29.

The President appointed a six-man labor - management panel, headed by Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz, to review the four-year-old railroad jobs dispute. It will submit its recommendations to Congress July 22.

"This nation faces widespread economic disruption, dislocation and distress unless this dispute is settled by other means" Kennedy sad. "I continue to believe that this controversy can and should be settled by voluntary and peaceful processes."

If Congress acts—perhaps to require arbitration—before the July 29 deadline there will be no strike.

But indications were that there were slim chances of clear sailing in Congress.

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, Senate Republican leader, said congressional Republicans would fight hard against any move for federal seizure of the railroads or compulsory arbitration. He predicted a long struggle.

On another sector of the labor-management front, a contract designed to set a pattern for the 750,000 Bell Telephone System employes in the United States and Canada was reached by the Michigan Bell Telephone Co. and the Communications Workers of America.

CWA President Joseph A. Beirne described the 38-month agreement as without precedent in the communications industry. It includes contract improvements amounting to about 20 cents an hour for the first 14 months of the contract with provisions for reopening wage negotiations in 1964 and 1965.

Otherwise, the week was rather barren of important economic developments.

The Commerce Department reported that retail sales in June stayed at about the May level of $20.3 billion. Failure of sales to resume their climb in the last three months was surprising to some government economists.

Retailers, however, were optimistic about prospects for the second half of this year. A survey by the National Retail Merchants Association indicated that they expect sales to run 5 per cent ahead of a year earlier and profits to be up 10 per cent.

"Renewed confidence in the economic outlook was reflected throughout the survey," said J. Gordon Dakins, executive vice president of the association.

On the subject of the economy, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York reported early statistical returns for June indicated continued but moderate strength. It added that unemployment, particularly of teen-agers, continues as a problem.

Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges added an optimistic note by saying that a gross national product—total of all goods and services—of $600 billion annually was not out of reason for the fourth quarter. Earlier this year government economists estimated the 1963 GNP at $538 billion.

Automobile production boomed again this week with an estimated output of 161,600 passenger cars against 126,687 in the holiday-shortened previous week and $46,565 a year ago.

Production for the 1963 model year already exceeds the 6,687,000 for the entire 1962 model year and is nearing the record of 7.13 million 1955 models.

Steel production last week dropped to a five-month low, declining to 1,045,000 tons, or 11.6 per cent below the previous week.

Strong Monroe Doctrine Role Is Advocated

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI)— Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., Saturday advocated a stronger adherence to the Monroe Doctrine with respect to Castro and Cuba.

Stennis, addressing the 45th annual American Legion convention here, said "any further effort to introduce weapons and military forces into Cuba...will be regarded by us as an act of hostility..."

He said he was convinced it was "vital that we deal from a position of strength rather than one of weakness.

"The Cuban crisis last fall dramatically demonstrated how vital it is that we provide and maintain great military power," said Stennis. "It was only because we had powerful military forces—in being and combat ready—that we were able to call Khrushchev's hand."

Stennis, who is the number two member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, rejected the idea of "peaceful co-existence with Castro."

He said, "we cannot co-exist with evil, nor can we rest easy with Communist tyranny and military might 90 miles from our shores."

Stennis told the group that he believed "if the Soviets had the intimate and detailed knowledge of our weaponry and retaliatory forces which is available to me, they would know beyond a shadow of a doubt that the provocation of a nuclear war would be nothing more nor less than an act of self-destruction."

Board Meeting Set To Discuss Weather Project

The board of directors of Northeast Louisiana Water Resources Corp. are planning a meeting within the week to discuss an extension project for the weather modification program, Fred Huenefeld Jr., president, said.

Directors will consider extending the rain - making operation from six months to one year and also will check finances of the program.

Huenefeld said the organization is still in process of fulfilling the fund raising program and emphasized that farmers who have not yet turned in their funds to send them to their respective county agents. "We need particular help in getting funds from the Delta area," he said.

Generators are still functioning in the entire district and have met with high successes. Bienville Parish farmers joined the project last week.

Eclipse To Be Seen Here Next Saturday

By JIMMY HATTEN
Staff Writer

Sometime next Saturday at locations on planet Earth, the sun, though high in the sky, will begin to blacken.

Chickens will stalk, clucking, to their roost. On river banks, bullfrogs will begin to croak.

A ngiht-like coolness will pervade the atmosphere.

What is happening to the sun will be so dangerous that humans should not watch it directly. To do so would be to risk eye burns that may leave a blank spot in a person's field of vision.

The event will be an eclipse of the sun.

At some spots in the world, the eclipse, known as a solar eclipse because the moon will pass between the sun and the earth, will be total.

In the Ark-La-Miss., the moon will blot out 48.6 per cent of the sun at the height of the eclipse. In this area the eclipse will begin at 2:41 p.m. and end at 4:50 p.m. The maximum phase, or that phase in which 48.6 per cent of the sun will be covered, will be reached at 3:49 p.m.

NARROW PATH

Meanwhile, along a fairly narrow path across Japan, Alaska, Canada and Maine, the eclipse, as the Associated Press put it, "will be splendidly total."

The only other American localities where an almost total eclipse will occur are Boston, 94 per cent and New York, 89 per cent.

Prof. Glenn Powers, head of the department of physics at Northeast Louisiana State College, said that a total eclipse seems just like nightfall.

And, not knowing the difference, day animals and fowls make ready for their rest, while the night animals become active.

There is also a drop in temperatures, he said, since the sun's rays are blocked off.

Professor Powers said he wasn't sure whether or not animals react in a 50 per cent eclipse, such as will occur here.

Many who have tried them in the past have suffered eye injuries," the society reported.

EXPLAINING

These rays, when focused on the delicate retina of the eye, can cause harmful burns in much the same manner as a magnifying glass can focus the sun's rays on a piece of paper and burn it.

Because the retina is not sensitive to pain, the victim never realizes he has been harmed until it is too late.

Such burns of the retina are incurable, according to the society, and the victim will have a blank spot in his field of vision where the burn scar remains in the retina.

Children are particularly susceptible to vision damage, according to the society.

But there is an indirect way to observe the phenomenon of the heavens.

The eclipse can be projected through a telescope or through binoculars onto a white screen. A simple eclipse viewer can be created from a piece of cardboard.

To do this, punch a round hole in the cardboard in order that the sun's rays are focused through the tiny hole onto a white surface. This results in a satisfactory image of the eclipse.

INFORMATION

But for scientists in general, the event will provide a wealth of information about the sun and its influence on weather, communications and the geomagnetic field.

According to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), this information may contribute to development of a means of forecasting solar hazards to space travelers.

From a scientific standpoint, NASA said, the eclipse "will be the most thoroughly observed in history.

U.S. astronaut M. Scott Carpenter will chase the moon's fast-moving shadow in a specially equipped jet laboratory plane in the neighborhood of Fort Providence, Canada.

Among observers with Carpenter will be Dr. Jocelyn R. Gill, NASA's manned space sciences astronomer. Gill will point out "various scientific details which astronauts may encounter in future space flights."

ASSIGNMENT

Carpenter's special assignment will be an attempt to photograph the zodiacal light, a faint glow which seems to fill space between the sun and its planets.

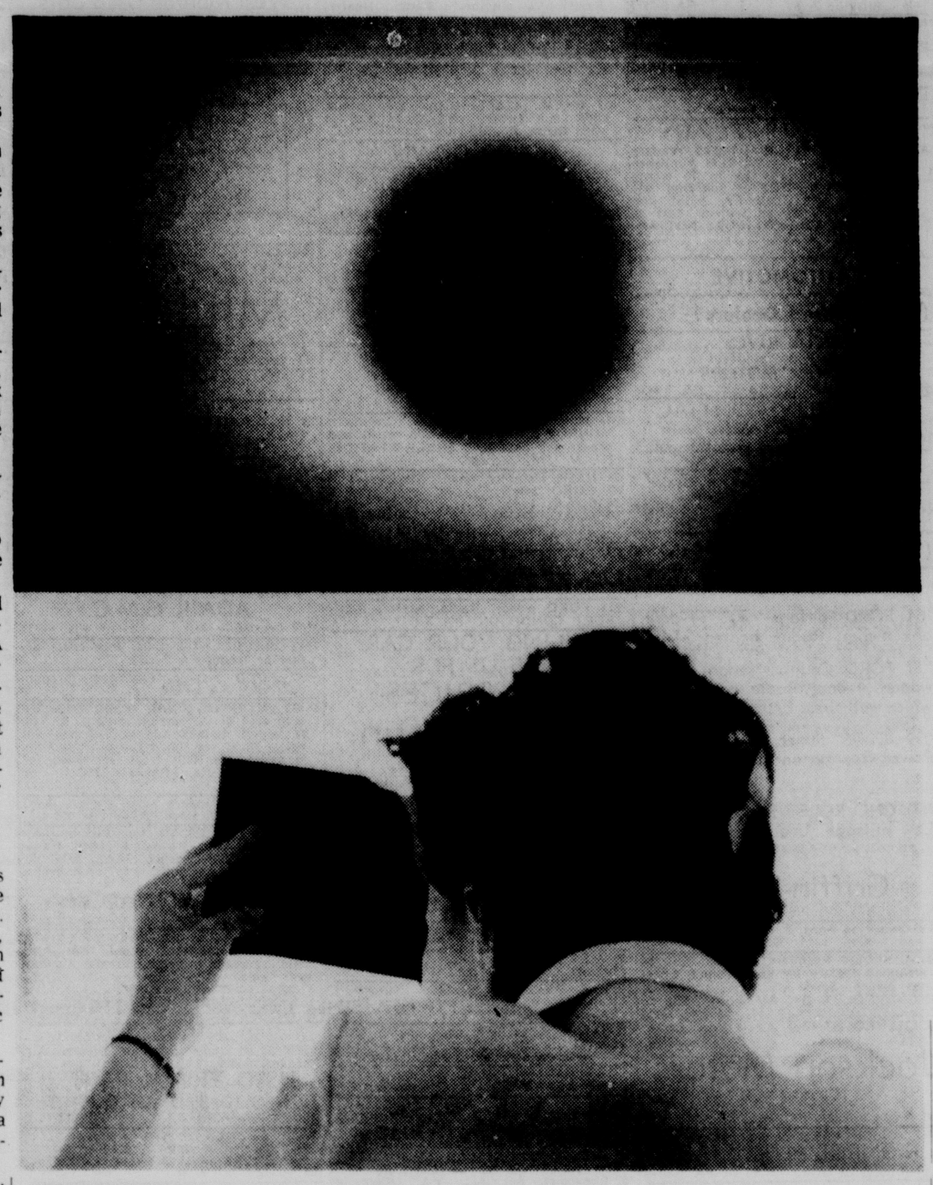
Scientists believe it is the reflection of sunlight from dust particles and electrons dancing in space.

Other scientists on the plane will try to get the most extensive pictures yet taken of the sun's corona, the nearly white solar atmosphere which is visible only during total eclipses. The corona may fill planetary space as far as Jupiter, 483 million miles from the sun.

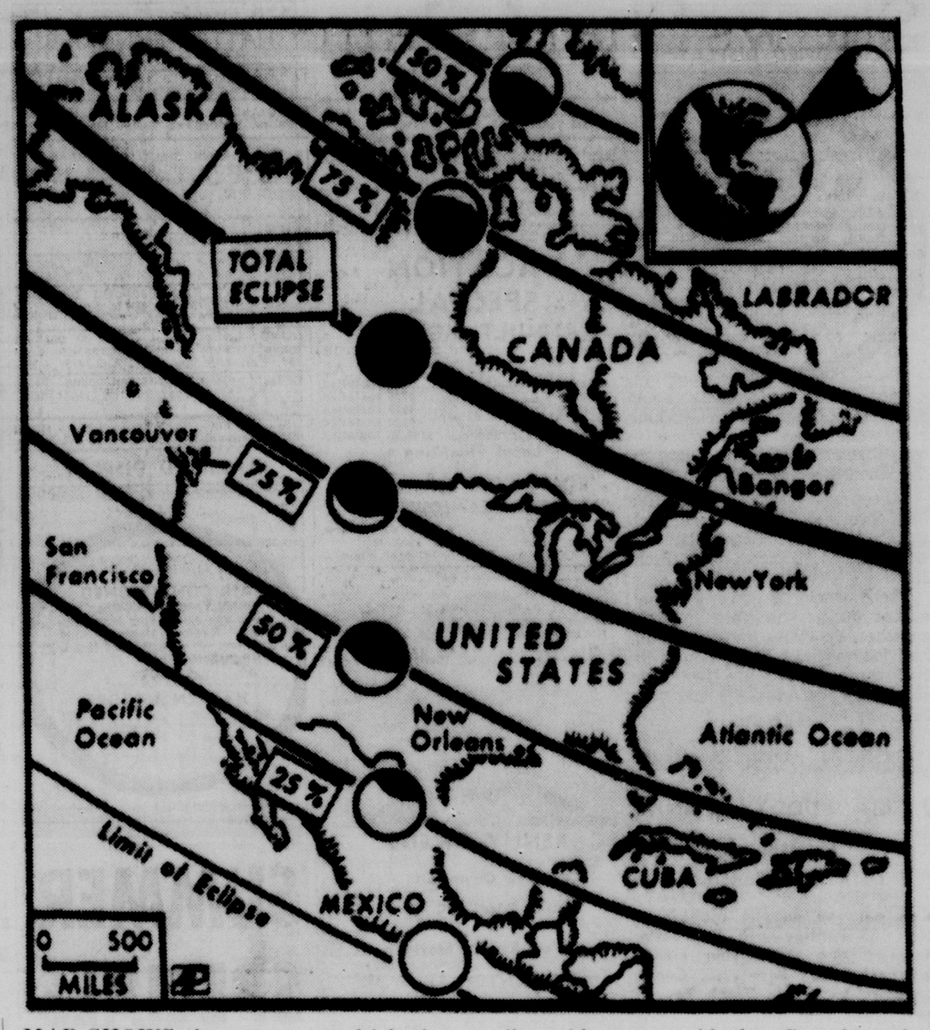
Meanwhile, on the ground, NASA scientists in Maine will try to photograph faint comets which may be in orbit near the sun.

The eclipse will be the first total one visible in parts of the United States since Jun 30, 1954, and the last one until March 7, 1970, when the eclpise will be total in Florida.

A total eclipse began at sunrise in eastern Massachusetts Oct. 2, 1959, but clouds blotted it out.



THIS PICTURE shows how in the past some persons have viewed a total eclipse of the sun. This man used a double thickness of black and white film which had been exposed and developed to miximum density. This is what some experts have advised. But the people who know — the Public Health Service says this is dangerous also; in fact, it advises not to look at it directly. If you do, eyes can be damaged irreparably. (AP Newsfeature Photo)



MAP SHOWS the extent to which the sun will be darkened in various parts of the United States during solar eclipse July 20. The eclipse will be total only in a fairly narrow path, about 60 miles wide, across Alaska, Canada and Maine. The eclipse will last about 100 seconds in northern Canada. Over Maine it will be a minute or less. (AP Wirephoto Map)

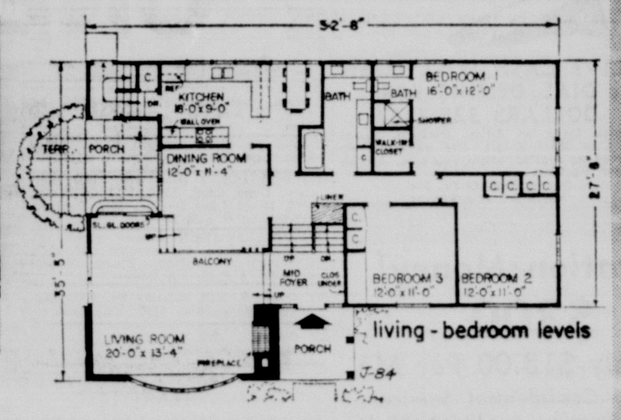
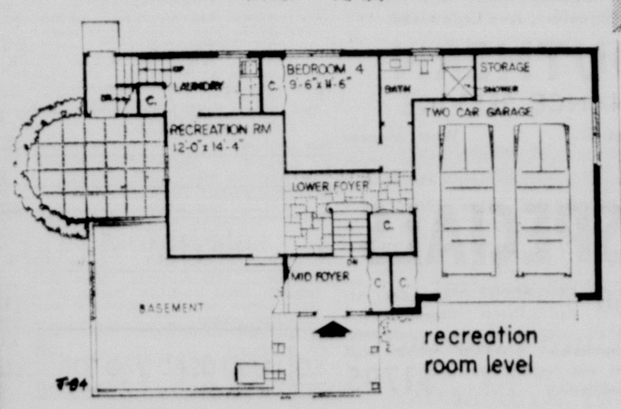
SOMETHING NEW: A gable-roofed wing, containing the living room, gives this bi-level home some of the flavor of a split-level. It contains three bedrooms on the main level, plus a fourth bedroom and third full bath on the bonus lower level.



"FLOATING" LIVING ROOM: The position of this living room is a sparkling innovation in bi-level design. It is two steps up from the foyer (at right, beyond the fireplace) and three steps below the dining room, separated by a balcony rail. Through the glass doors at left is a terrace-porch combination, enclosed on three sides.



FLOOR PLANS: The additional staircase in the rear improves traffic flow and saves steps for a housewife. House contains 1,532 square feet on the living and bedroom levels and 640 square feet on the recreation room level.

THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK

Gable Roof Bi-Level That's Different And Appealing

By JULES LOH

Just when you begin to believe the architects have thought of everything, along comes a brand new innovation that further refines an already established design.

Did you ever see a bi-level home with a gable-roofed wing? That's what today's House of the Week boasts—and the improvement on the inside is just as dramatic as on the outside.

For one thing, the cooped up effect of a mid-level foyer, a drawback in most bi-level homes, has been completely eliminated.

In this house the living room, located in the gabled wing, is two steps up from the foyer and immediately visible when you step inside the front door.

There still is the usual bi-level stair arrangment—five steps up to the main level; five steps down to the lower level—but the side opening to the living room does away with the typical confinement and makes the foyer a gracious reception center. At the rear of the living room, in an ell, are the remaining three steps to the main level.

Both the exterior treatment and the welcome innovation inside give the house some of the flavor of a split-level, but the essential economies of a bi-level remain. Basically it still is a one-story house with the basement lifted out of the ground to make the cellar space habitable.

The architect of the handsome and somewhat revolutionary three (or four) bedroom home is Rudolph A. Matern whose ingenuity has long been established among homeowners. It is design J-84 in the House of the Week series.

The house contains only 1,532 square feet of living area on the main level, including the sunken living room. A bonus space of 640 square feet is on the lower level. Over-all dimensions are 52'8" wide by 27'6" deep.

The exterior is right up to the minute, but the gable gives it a distinctive colonial tone which insures its popularity for years to come. Architect Matern will send a 35-mm. photo of the original full color artist's drawing of the house free to anyone who asks. His address is on the J-84 study plan.

ADDITIONAL DETAILS

The "floating" position of the living room not only disposes of the deadly mid-level foyer problem but also helps the room itself. It is set apart, as a special place, which plainly adds to its formality.

The room is large (20' by 13'4"), has a grand fireplace in one corner, a huge bow window in front, sliding glass doors leading to the terrace porch two steps up, and a dramatic balcony separating it from the dining room.

Another excellent feature is the additional staircase in the left rear corner—in the housekeeping area where it is needed most. The stairs lead directly from the kitchen (and the terrace porch and backyard) to the downstairs laundry, and from there to the lower foyer. Thus you can go to the kitchen from any of the exterior entrances, including the front door and garage, without ever passing through the main living area.

The porch-terrace combination, enclosed on three sides, is another fine arrangement for those who like outdoor living but at the same time enjoy a little privacy.

Completely set apart in its own wing is the sleeping area, boasting three bedrooms of good proportions. The master bedroom has an adjoining private bath with stall shower. Closet space is excellent in all the rooms.

The main bathroom is ideally located to serve the daily living areas as well as the bedrooms. It is a true family bathroom, with two separate lavatories — not a single counter with twin sinks—and has closet space inside the room in addition to the linen closet across the hall.

A third full bath with shower is on the lower level, giving the fourth bedroom all the facilities needed to make it an ideal guest room or apartment for in-laws. Of course the lower level needn't be finished until the space is needed; and many a handy husband could do the work himself.

West Monroe Rodeo Kicks Off Thursday

The West Monroe Rodeo, sponsored by the Northeast Louisiana Shrine Club, will open next Wednesday at 8 p.m. and extend through Saturday night.

Twin Cities Mayors Allen Norris of West Monroe and W. L. (Jack) Howard of Monroe have jointly proclaimed the week of July 15-20 as "Rodeo Week."

Tom Hadley of Ada, Okla., veteran rodeo announcer, will be emcee. Other attractions include Jim Eskew of Ardmore, Okla., World's Champion Trick Roper, and an Italian comedy team.

As one of the 500 - odd rodeos approved each year by the Rodeo Cowboys' Association, the West Monroe rodeo will be in the sport's major league, conducted under nationally recognized rules that assures top bucking stock in a hard-riding contest open to the best cowboys in the game.

Like all R.C.A. sanctioned, rodeos and the contest here will be built around the sport's standard events — saddle and bareback events — saddle and bareback bronc riding, calf roping, steer wrestling, and bull riding. Contestants will be competing for slices of $3,000 purse money put up by the rodeo committee, plus their own entry fees which will probably double the prize money payoff.

Rodeo livestock will be furnished by Tommy Steiner and Ralph Collier, both of Austin, Tex.

Prize money won here will be credited to the sport's world championship standings. National titles in rodeo are determined by the simple measure of who wins the most money during the almost year-round playing season. Competition culminates in December, with the game's title playoffs, the National Finals.

The finals entry roster is limited to the top 15 money winners in each event, their selection based on regular season winnigs. To test the competitive mettle of the Finalists, North America's top rodeo stock is screened for the roughest selection available.

Some 225 broncs and bulls are sifted from over 4,000 head in the professional bucking strings across the United States and Canada.

A parade will be staged at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday, beginning at the Eureka Store parking lot on Commerce Street. The parade will move north on Trenton Street and proceed over the Highway 80 bridge to DeSiard Street by way of Walnut Street. It will disband at Five Points.

The parade marshals will be Paul Johnston and S. G. Nolan.

Cross Burned At Winnsboro

WINNSBORO (Special) — The charred remainder of a burned cross similar to a type used by the Ku Klux Klan was found on the lawn in front of a white resident's house here early Saturday morning, police here reported.

Neighbors said they saw the four-foot high cross burning about 10 p.m. Friday.

Police here said they were not notified Friday night of the cross burning, but reported seeing the charred remains on the lawn Saturday morning.

RUNS INTO OPPOSITION

HERTFORD, England (UPI) — The local government's plan to "shame" tenants of public housing projects into paying back rent by mailing them notices on red postcards has run into post office opposition.

"We cannot accept any color likely to strain the eyes of post office workers," an official said.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Large Variety Of New Books

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

Again this week, there is a variety of new books, with material to interest every type of reader. Several fiction titles promise good reading. "The Far Side of Home" by Maggie Davis is the Current Literary Guild selection. This is another Civil War novel, but written in a different vein from some of the others. It is light reading and just right for summer. "The Silent Tarn" by Hannah Closs is the last book in her trilogy of life in Medieval France. This is a book which brings out the contrast between the world and the spirit and will be welcomed by all those who read her previous works "High Are the Mountains" and "Deep Are the Valleys." "Gentleman in Waiting" by Andre Couteaux is a satiric fable, which will appeal to the sophisticated reader. "The Month of the Falling Leaves" is the title of a tale of international intrigue, written by Bruce Marshall. Some of his situations are incredible, but it is interesting. "A Sense of Reality" is a collection of short stories written by Graham Greene. These stories are more concerned with the spirit than with action and are quite different from Mr. Greene's usual works. Probably the best book of the week is "The Fratricides" by Maurice Edelman. This is a story of international intrigue and strife, set in Algiers. Mr. Edelman writes well and knows his subject. This is an absorbing book.

One of the ways in which we stretch the Library book budget, is by purchasing books to fill in gaps in our collection from remainder dealers. In this way we often get very fine books at a discount and they are books which the Library needs. Last week we had an unusually interesting group of such books. "The Romance of Hassidism" by Jacon Minkin is one title. Counterfeiting in Colonial America" by Kenneth Scott is a scholarly and interesting volume. "Escape to Utopia" by Everett Webber is an account of the many communal living groups which flourished in this country in the 19th century. "Culture Under Canvass" by Harry P. Harrison is the story of the tent Chautauqua movement in this country. People past middle age remember when the Chautauqua was the most exciting event of the season and will want to read this book. "Indian Corn in Old America" by Paul Weaterwax is another informative book in this group. Also included is a book of Renoir drawings.

"The Landscape and the Looking Glass" by John H. Randall is a searching biography of Willa Cather. "The American Rebellion" written by Sir Henry Clinton is the account of the campaign in this country kept by the British commander during the Revolution. It is decidedly different from some of the other accounts. Also included in this group of books are two histories of the Civil War "The Great Rebellion" by Earl Schenck Miers and "Last Train From Atlanta" by Adolph A. Hoehling, which gives a fearful account of the battle of Atlanta. Still another book is a history of "Salem Witchcraft" by Charles W. Upham. "Chateaubriand" by Andre Maurois is a very good biography.

Also included were three reference books "A Dictionary of French Literature" by Sidney D. Braun a "Dictionary of Latin Literature" by James H. Mantinband and a "Dictionary of American Folklore" by Marjorie Tallman. All of these books will be most useful next year when students begin writing term papers. Some of them are on the subjects which were in great demand last school term.

Probably the most beautiful and finest book which we have had in long time is "The Collector's Dictionary of Glass" by E. M. Elville. This is a large comprehensive book, printed on fine paper and with excellent illustrations.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:

Most people don't mind painting the walls of a room; it's the ceilings that cause a problem. I used to wrap a cloth around the handle of my paint brush. Now I take a small paper plate, punch a hole in it, and insert the handle of the brush through the hole.

I use the smallest paper plate I can find so that I can see what I am painting! All the spatters and drips land in the paper plate!

Then I take another paper plate and fasten it to the bottom of the can of paint with glue or cement. This not only catches paint that runs down the side of the can, but makes a handy place to put the brush.

M.M.

COOKIE TRIM

DEAR HELOISE:

I use a pastry brush for putting icing on cutout cookies such as rabbits, trees, stars, etc. It is easy to use and gives a "fur-like" appearance to animals, goes on faster, and you can make swirls with it!

Mary Catherine

CURTAIN STRETCHER

DEAR HELOISE:

For those who use curtain stretchers and prick their fingers many times while stretching the starched curtains . . . I have found that I can hold the curtain in my right hand and use a plain fork (a salad fork is great) and "mash" the curtain over the sharp nails without pricking my finger in the least!

The tines of the fork "mash" the curtain down onto the wooden stretcher neatly, immediately, and it's an excellent substitute for my poor fingers.

And do women know that if they put the four corners of the curtains on the stretcher first and then go back and put the curtain on the nails between them, it will end up a perfectly-stretched curtain? It's always square this way.

Mrs. I. C. N.

CORNSTARCH USE

DEAR HELOISE:

I tried cornstarch on the backs of my davenport and chairs, where my family have rested their heads.

I put the cornstarch on the spots early in the morning and vacuumed it off before the family came home for supper. It cleans beautifully. Incidentally, our upholstery is nylon.

Sally Well

GREASE SPOTS

DEAR HELOISE:

When I am frying food I always get spattered with grease. I have several blouses with grease marks. I wonder if any of your readers know how to remove the spots.

Spotty

How about it gals? Anybody know? If so, why not drop us a line. After all, we are here to help each other. Send answers to Heloise in care of this paper.

Love,
Heloise

SLICK TRICK

DEAR HELOISE:

Just how in this world do you get the "slick" off your hands after using bleaches? The more soap or detergents I put on them, the more slippery they seem to get. Please help!

Ethel

Dear Ethel:

Any time you find anything slick on your hands, pick up your bottle of vinegar and pour a little bit of it over your hands . . . it will remove this slick feeling. Try it, you don't have to buy vinegar (as I am sure it is already in your cabinet).

Heloise

HANDY PULL

DEAR HELOISE:

Here is a great time-saver if . . . you have a nervous window shade!

I live in an old house with very high windows, and every now and then the shade "snaps up" to the top. Instead of getting my stepping-stool to reach the ring in the bottom of the cord . . . I keep a wire coat hanger handy (pulled out of shape so that the hook is at the top of the coat hanger). This is a long enough device to reach the ring of the shade and to pull it down when inserted in the hook of the shade pull.

W.P.E.

DEAR HELOISE:

For those women who have good table glassware, a cherished vase, or a plate-glass table top that is chipped, I wonder if they know that they can rub the chipped place with an emery stick, emery board, or a piece of black emery sandpaper?

If the chip is small it can be entirely eliminated; if larger, it can be smoothed out so as not to be too noticeable. Prevents many cut lips too.

FISH ODORS

DEAR HELOISE:

When cooking fish . . . to remove the odor from dishes, pots or pans, put a little vinegar in the dishwasher. I don't know how many dishes you will be washing but I normally use one-half cup of vinegar to a load of dishes.

Decatur

The hint about the vinegar is really terrific but I have one little note to add ...For those of us who do not have dishwashers we can use it in our sinks or dishpan. Just add one-half cup of vinegar to your rinse water.

Heloise

FOAM RUBBER

To make a smooth cut in foam rubber I dip my scissors in warm water frequently and then cut it. This works beautifully.

N. Tingley

WHEN BABY'S GROWN

DEAR HELOISE:

After baby has outgrown his bassinet, if it is on a stand, it makes a wonderful hamper for your ironing. You can just roll it into your ironing room and no heavy lifting is necessary.

J. G.

This feature is written for you . . . the housewife and homemaker. If you have a hint, problem or suggestion you'd like to share . . . write to Heloise today in care of this newspaper.
